OBSERVATIONS AT A SPECTACULAR SUNDAY NEW YORK FIRE

A SQUAD of firemen was playing a stream on the Madison avenue front of the Eighty-sixth street car depot which attracted the biggest Sunday crowd ever seen in New York. Commissioner Lantry came along. He saw the men were dangerously near the building. "Say, you boys, get back there!" he shouted. "You're too close to that wall. I'd rather see the whole blamed building burned than have one of you chaps hurt. Get back."

The firemen "backed" with a grateful look at the Commissioner.

IT was a frightfully hot blaze. At one time the entire area of the building was a veritable mass of flame. The rubbernecks who filled the adjoining streets in dense masses were forced to hold their positions because of the great crowd that pressed them forward from behind. The scores of lines of hose could not be moved and the heat played havoc with the rubber as well as the rubbernecks. There were a series of loud pops as one line after another burst, and great geysers of water rose in the air and caught the ascending cinders. This mixture came back impartially on the crowd, and some tall swearing was heard as white straw hats and light summer suits were converted into black and smudgy wrecks. There was a little compensation in the shower, as it helped to cool the toasted though begrimed onlookers.

A LITTLE bit of a man with a little bit of a mustache and a fiercely red necktie was the busiest man on the job. He button-holed almost everybody he stumbled into and invariably yelled "Get outside the lines." Few heeded him—he looked so harmless. He tackled Janitor Shelly, who was watching the fine big public school across the street with keen apprehension. "Get out o' here," said the little man.

"Get out nothing," replied Shelly. "I'm janitor of that school and I'm going to stay here and do what I can to save it and the property in it."

"Don't care. Get out of here. I'm Deputy Police Commissioner Bugher and"—— the little man was stopped abruptly.

"I'm Jack Shelly, janitor of Public School, No. 6, and I'm going to stick here until the last cinder is quenched. I'm paid by the taxpayers of the city to watch this property. The way to watch is to watch," said Jack. He stayed on the job.

THE nearest fire engine to the blaze is No. 22, on the block between Third and Lexington avenues—about 200 yards away. The engine went to the scene on a "still alarm," the members of the company having observed the great volume of smoke and flame belching into the sky. They wondered why no alarm was sent in.

"It's the old story," said one of the firemen. "The employees tried to fight the fire instead of first sending in an alarm. When we got to work the flames had the building on the bum. Those fire extinguishing things may be all right, but they give a false sense of security. The thing to do when fire starts anywhere is to send in an alarm. Let the extinguishers be called into play afterwards."

THE pressure in the mains was wretched. For fully half an hour after the fire started the engines pumped their hardest, but the only result in every instance was a puerile stream that made the firemen say awfully hot things. The pressure was increased when the fire had things its own way, and then a fine fire-fighting scene was presented. Twelve streams were directed on the structure from the east side of Madison avenue, each one swishing through a second-story window and all aligned as evenly as the Seventh Regiment on parade.

"I'M blessed if that Eighty-fifth street wall isn't goin' to off," said Building Inspector McGee, who was specially detailed by Commissioner Murphy to observe the fire. He ran to where the crews of two engines and several hook and ladder companies were at work. "Run for your lives," he yelled. The mendashed back. They were moving as the entire side of the building leaned over and fell to the street in a solid mass with a crash that was heard throughout Yorkville. Only one man was slightly hurt. It was a mighty close call for all the others.

"I was sure that wall couldn't hold much longer," said McGee. "I was told by Deputy Commissioner Bugher that my badge was not regular. I wonder what would have happened if I had paid any heed to him and left my post."

"I'd have been a busy man," said Deputy Coroner Lehane.

FIRST DRY SUNDAY FOR TOWN IN 172 YEARS.

Saloons Until Yesterday Had Never Closed Their Doors in Ste. Genevieve, Mo.

STE. GENEVIEVE, Mo., June 17.—The saloons here yesterday closed their doors, and for the first time in 172 years the town was "dry." The action was taken on the advice of the prosecuting attorney.

Ste. Genevieve was founded in 1735, and since its founding drinking places have never been closed.

The World printed more "Vacation Guides" in 1906 than any other New York newspaper. Remember this when you get a week or a month off.

The Wanamaker Store — Store Closes at 5.30 P. M. — The Wanamaker Store

THERE isn't a woman within twenty miles of New York City who wouldn't feel aggrieved if she failed to learn about tomorrow's Annual Event at Wanamaker's, in time to share the good fortune. So here is the story that will make Tuesday, June 18th, a day long to be pleasantly remembered by several thousand women—and one of the great merchandise days of the year, for this store.

Seven Thousand Five Hundred Fine, New Lingerie Dresses & Shirt Waist Suits

At $4, $5 and $7. Regularly $6 to $20

We took the cream of the entire surplus product of one of the best makers of women's washable dresses in America. We had our pick at practically our own prices. So we took only the high-grade suits and dresses. The bargain was so good that the maker wanted to trade back afterward—offered us a handsome check to release him of the sale.

But Wanamaker merchandising is for the benefit of the public, and when we get something specially fine, it goes to our customers—the whole of it, and as good as we can make it.

Tomorrow morning the dresses will be ready. The finest and choicest offering of the kind that we have ever made. The quantity is a little more than half what we had a year ago—they won't go so far, but everybody will get better values, right down to the last suit in the collection.

The pictures suggest the beautiful styles—models of which we have large quantities; but there are A HUNDRED AND THIRTY-THREE DIFFERENT STYLES in the assemblage. Something to exactly suit every woman who comes.

There are Lingerie Dresses, Princess Dresses, Tailored Shirt-Waist Suits, Over-Waist Dresses and Dutch neck styles. Sleeves are long, short or three-quarter length. Materials are mostly imported, and include plain white and hand-embroidered linens, blue and tan linens, fancy cheviot and madras, dotted and figured lawns, black lawns, silk madras, Persian lawn, dotted Swiss muslins, brocades, chambrays and percales.

It is just as though we started out, at the beginning of the season, to get the smartest brains in the business to design beautiful dresses and select most effective fabrics, and then let you come and select from all at an average of half their real worth.

All are spic-span-new. Each dress in its own box, to go to you in perfect condition.

This is a better and finer offering than the one we made when you took almost five thousand suits in a single day. So this lot may be exhausted before the day is over, vast as it is.

Never was finer selection among the most effective dresses and suits for Summer wear. Never were better values offered anywhere. And look how little the prices are:

$6 to $8 Suits and Dresses at $4
$9.50 to $11 Suits and Dresses at $5
$12 to $20 Suits and Dresses at $7

All beautifully made, carefully finished, in every way desirable dresses. Be early tomorrow. It will pay you to come a hundred miles to buy several of these remarkable dresses at Wanamaker's tomorrow. Your good fortune is only the greater if you have little distance to come. Never have you been better repaid for the trip. Not on sale today. Ready when the doors open tomorrow.
