ROBBED AND BEATEN.

A Fort Keogh Soldier Assaulted and His Ready Money Taken from Him.

On Wednesday John W. Starr, a soldier from Fort Keogh, came to the city, and made complaint that he had been robbed of $10 and showed an artistically decorated face to prove that he had been beaten, by one Fred Sauer, a discharged soldier, and his companion, Chief Jackson at once arrested Sauer and lodged him in jail.

Starr's version of the case is to the effect that he and another soldier named Debbins started for the post about 11 o'clock on Tuesday night, and just after crossing the bridge over Tongue river they were met by Sauer and another man. Sauer at once struck Starr in the face and knocked him off the track. Starr jumped up and started to run, as he did so pulling a tobacco sack out of his pocket containing $10 in silver, which he intended to use as a sort of slung-shot to defend himself, but Sauer was too quick for him and again knocked him down, beating him pretty severely, and taking the money away from him.

As the alleged robbery occurred on the reservation, the prisoner was turned over to Deputy Marshal Ed. Jones, and on Wednesday he was arraigned before Commissioner Kreidler. Sauer denied any knowledge of the crime, and his preliminary examination was set for Friday, March 31, at 10 a. m.

"The MacKaye Spectatorium."

Some idea of the immensity of the scenic area of "The MacKaye Spectatorium" at Chicago can be gained by comparing it with the notable theaters of the world. The largest scenic area at present is that of the Grand Opera House, at Paris, which has about 20,000 square feet. One gets a conception of the magnitude of "The MacKaye" Spectatorium" when it is learned that the scenic area is 104,000 square feet.

A Disturber at a Rehearsal.

Julius Eichberg writes: "At the occasion of a musical festival in Dusseldorf I witnessed a scene that produced general and not unjustifiable excitement among those present. It was at the last rehearsal of Beethoven's ninth or choral symphony, and the great hall was filled with people from near and far anxious to hear the then but little known work. While the orchestra played the first movement we noticed a dark bearded, spectacled, middle aged man in the audience, who had a score before him and was gesticulating wildly, being evidently very much dissatisfied with the performance. Suddenly he arose, advanced toward the orchestra and began to shout:

"'This is all wrong. It was not thus that my immortal friend, Beethoven wanted his masterpiece to be played. You ought to play it much slower, and in this way.' He began to beat time vigorously to the astonished musicians, entirely ignoring Mendelssohn, who conducted the symphony. At this moment several people forcibly ejected the disturber from the hall. The man was the well known Professor Anton Schindler, Beethoven's constant friend during the last years of his life and the author of a 'Biography of the Master.'"—Boston Journal.

Accommodating.

Husband—After today I'm going to try a new plan with you. Every time you get a new dress it must be understood that I can invite my friends here to a little poker party and a merry time generally.

Wife (sweetly)—You can have them every night, dear, if you want to.—Truth.

It Was.

"Is that a new overcoat?" asked Killjordan.

And Shadbolt simply pointed to the front of it to show that the buttons had all come off.—Chicago Tribune.

How We Grow Old.

The thread that binds us to life is most frequently severed ere the meridian of life is reached in the case of persons who neglect obvious means to renew failing strength. Vigor, no less the source of happiness than the condition of long life, can be created and perpetuated where it does not exist. Thousands who have experienced or are cognizant—including many physicians of eminence—of the effect of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, bear testimony to its wonderful efficacy as a creator of strength in feeble constitutions, and debilitated and shattered systems. A steady performance of the bodily functions, renewed appetite, flesh and nightly repose attend the use of this thorough and standard renovant. Use no local tonic represented to be akin to or resemble it in effects in its place. Demand the genuine, which is an acknowledged remedy for indigestion, malaria, nervousness, constipation, liver and kidney complaints and rheumatism.

Mrs. Paisley.

Whenever I see Hood's Sarsaparilla I want to bow and say 'Thank You.' I was badly affected with Eczema and Scrofula Sores, covering almost the whole of one side of my face, nearly to the top of my head. Running sores discharged from both ears. My eyes were very bad. For nearly a year I was deaf. I took HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA and the sores on my eyes and in my ears healed. I can now hear and see as well as ever." Mrs. Amanda Paisley, 176 Lander Street, Newburgh, N. Y.
