IN THE MUD.

The Great Kentucky Derby will Be Contested today.

They Are All Mudlarks and No One Can Predict the Winner—Names of Horses and Riders.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 9. That classic turf event, the Kentucky derby, will be run over a slow track tomorrow. Three days of rain have put the track at Churchill Downs in bad condition, but the sun came out today and the wind began to blow, and if there is no more rain the track will be fair. In all probability there will be six starters and they will be ridden as follows: Lookout, by Krunze; Boundless, by George Metz; Buck McCann, by Thorpe; Plutus, by A. Clayton; Linger, by Martin; Mirage, by Isaac Murphy.

Which of them is the best is the question to be asked. It is pretty hard to answer, not because none of the five or six starters is a mudlark, but because all of them are more or less fond of a heavy track. If there were no mud horses in the race, Cushing and Orth would probably prefer heavy going, as Lookout and Boundless have demonstrated that it does not stop them, but, as the others are equally good or better in the mud, they would rather see a dry track. Buck McCann comes of mud stock and, if the distance is not too far for him, and he does not give it up in the stretch, he ought to have no trouble in leading the others safely.

One thing is certain, however, the Scoggans have their hearts set on winning the race. The reputation of their great sire, Buchanan, is at stake. He has the name of getting only sprinters, and the Scoggans can afford to give double the value of the stake to disprove it. Plutus likes the mud and he has no objections to rain. The stable is a trifle mysterious about him and it is hard to obtain any information, except as to his general condition. No one outside of his trainer, owner and rubbers has seen him work better than 2:42½, but the impression prevails that he has covered the distance in at least six seconds better.

Linger won his stake at Lexington in the mud. The distance was a mile and a sixteenth, and the weight 94. In the derby he will have to take up 122 and go three-sixteenths further. This will probably stop him. Mirage is not much thought of, but there is no telling what Murphy's luck will bring about.

Minister Blount.

WASHINGTON, May 10.—Officials of the state department tonight confirm the predictions heretofore made that ex-Representative Blount would be appointed resident Minister to Hawaii. It has been supposed that Minister Stevens would remain in charge of the legation until the 24th inst., at which time he announced his intention of sailing for San Francisco. It was not known that Stevens was instructed to forwith turn over the legation to Commissioner Blount who had been appointed his successor. There is reason to believe that Stevens was not allowed to remain in charge of the legation until the 24th inst. because of his activity in behalf of annexation.

It is further stated at the department that Bowen and Sewell, who went to Honolulu shortly after Commissioner Blount's arrival are active in their effort to stimulate sentiment on the island in favor of annexation and there is reason to believe that they sought to create an impression in so doing that they are representing the president. Secretary Gresham has informed Blount that the president repudiates everything said and done by these gentlemen. It will be remembered that Sewell was an applicant for the position of third assistant secretary of state under the present administration, but failed to secure the appointment.

The members of the diplomatic corps in Washington expect that, in course of a few months, the Spanish government will elevate its legation in Washington to the grade of an embassy. Whether or not the Duke of Veragua will be appointed ambassabor, as a Chicago dispatch intimates as probable, no one in this city can say.

Tragedy Near Castle.

BIG TIMBER, May 8.—By telephone report has been received here of a fight six miles south of Castle in which Deputy Sheriff Wm. Rader was shot and instantly killed by Wm. Gay, whom he was endeavoring to arrest. It was also reported that Gay was killed, but later reports throw some doubt on this fact. Another man, name not known here, is said to have been involved in the fight against the officer. The information has been received that tee affair has caused the most intense excitement in vicinity of Castle.

GOSSIP ABOUT MEN.

Governor Flower of New York and J. Sterling Morton spent their boyhood days in school together.

Cardinal Vaughan, the archbishop of Westminster, keeps himself in good physical condition by taking a 5-mile walk every day.

M. Godefroy Cavaignac is a reserved, cautious and even unpopular sort of man. Like President Carnot, he is a civil engineer by profession.

Judge R. R. Nelson of the United States district court of Minnesota is the only man on the district bench appointed before the civil war.

As a memorial to their father, Jay Gould's children are arranging to build a church at Roxbury, N. Y., where the Wall street wizard was born.

Blaine was superstitious in regard to seven and believed that if he should outlive the completion of his ninth seven years he would recover. He did not.

Charles S. Hamlin of Massachusetts, who has been appointed one of the assistant secretaries of the treasury, is a distant connection of the family of Hannibal Hamlin.

Mr. Olney is the sixth Bay State man to become attorney general of the United States. His predecessors were Theophilus Parsons, Levi Lincoln, Caleb Cushing, Ebenezer R. Hoar and Charles Devens.

The Duke of Argyle, who is the father-in-law of Queen Victoria's daughter, has no sense of humor whatever. He is an earnest writer and has contributed some profound essays to the British quarterly reviews.

The Hon. Philip Stanhope, recently sent to parliament from Berwick, is married to Countess Tolstoi of Russia, who continues to use her own name, though she took his. He is a brother of the Earl of Stanhope.

ODDS AND ENDS.

It is computed that there is $4,000,000,000 in gold and jewels at the bottom of the sea on the route between England and India.

The Languedoc ship canal in France by a short passage of 148 miles saves a sea voyage of 2,000 miles by the straits of Gibraltar.

The sounding board of pianos, the most important part of the instrument, is made of American spruce and is as carefully chosen as the wood for a violin.

It is asserted that waterproof sheets of paper gummed and hydraulically compressed make a material as durable as leather for the soles of shoes. It also makes serviceable horseshoes.

About $100,000 worth of pearls have been taken from the waters of Wisconsin streams during the last few years. Some single pearls obtained there have been estimated to be worth $1,000.

The headquarters for the sale of false hair is at Marseilles. Twenty huge bales of Chinese human hair arrived there recently and will be manufactured into curls, frizzes and crimps for English ladies.

Why People Dislike a Book Agent.

"What is there about a book agent or a peddler of any kind that is so distasteful to the ordinary citizen of today?" said Martin Cole. "The efforts of these people to make a living is conscientious, and I am positive there is no work on the face of the earth that is half so wearisome or soul trying as this one thing of canvassing books. There is no satisfaction in it and not even a good living. Every one turns with disgust from the book agent. Probably it is because people cannot brook anything outside of the regular lines of trade. They prefer to have things in their proper places—books in a book store, candy in a candy store and the like throughout the long list of earthly articles that we use. Then they want the stores close at hand, so that they can rush out and secure what they want, paying spot cash for it.

"These are what people term the legitimate lines of trade, and they are. Then when a peddler arrives, the merchant or the ordinary citizen immediately figures out that anything that must be brought about to him to effect a sale must not be good. It is outside the legitimate line, and if it were good it would simply be placed upon the market through the ordinary channels and left for the public to conceive its merits. So, then, I figure out that this dissatisfaction with book agents and the like resolves itself into the great law of order, which is an innate desire in the heart of everyone."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Pigs Feet and Terrapin.

A observing business man, who has had occasion to patronize at one time or another nearly every restaurant in the purely commercial section of the city, has discovered an odd relationship between two articles of diet which rarely if ever occur singly upon a bill of fare.

"You can be reasonably sure," he said the other day, "that when you see 'liver and bacon' set down among the edibles you will not have to look far to discover that you can also obtain a 'chicken liver omelet.' Perhaps this will explain," he added cynically, "why it is that so often the liver of the fowl is found in small triangular pieces in the omelets."

The gentleman might have transferred his observances also to certain up town restaurants which cater to the "swell" members of society. It's dollars to doughnuts that in at least one-half of those which boast of their fine cooking, whenever terrapin a la Maryland or Philadelphia or any other style is to be had, it will require but little urging to obtain fried pigs' feet.

Pigs' feet and diamond back terrapin do not closely resemble one another in their natural state, but what a difference when they are stewed, either separately or together, with Madeira wine and various concomitants! An epicure only can detect the subterfuge by the slightly larger bones of the pig's trotters.—New York Herald.

How to Select Good Help.

One of the most astute business men in New York city, who has through his own efforts built up an enormous establishment, and who gives employment to hundreds of men, some of them at very large salaries, told me he had very little difficulty in finding the right kind of men for any department of his work. I was surprised to learn this and asked him what was the secret of his success. He said:

"I have men to whom I pay as much as $6,000 a year. I have sometimes been disappointed in my selection of helpers, but as a rule I never fail to get the kind of a man I want. My first rule is to select for experienced help only the men who have succeeded in what they have undertaken.

"No matter how prepossessing a man may be, how taking in appearance or in apparent qualifications, I never engage him," he added, "if I find that he has made a failure in anything. On the other hand, no matter how plain and unprepossessing a man maybe, if I learn from his story that he has been promoted step by step; that he has always remained in a place until he was advanced, and that every change he made was a change for the better, I engage him at once. Such men never dissappoint me."—New York Mail and Express.

Ice In the Government Buildings.

One gets a vivid notion of the magnitude of the departments from the vast quantities of ice and coal which are required to quench the thirst of the 23,000 clerks and keep them warm. The treasury consumes a ton and a half of ice daily, taking an average the year round. An equal quantity is used in the war, state and navy building. But the department of the interior is the great devourer of ice. Including the pension office, it gobbles up from five to six tons every 24 hours.

The quantities utilized are variable. Each department makes its own contract for ice, bids being advertised for annually. No definite amount to be provided is agreed upon. The contractor gets as much for supplying all the frozen water required, whatever it may be. All the departments, together with their branches, consume 24,000 pounds every day.—Washington Star.

Play Better Than Gymnastics.

The pre-eminently recreative exercise is play. This natural gymnastics brings with it an attraction that animates the most indifferent and gives inspiration to the most phlegmatic. And what a contrast there is between pupils exercising in play and those upon whom systematic gymnastics are imposed—between English school children, for example, and French!—M. F. Lagrange in Popular Science Monthly.

Bargain Goods Factories.

Lynn, Mass., has a bargain goods factory, which turns out cheap goods of excellent appearance for the bargain counters. The American bargain seeker has called for such things, and now if shams are made to deceive him he must not grumble. There are 16 of such bargain goods manufactories, and the bargain goods era is just now at its zenith.—Exchange.
