AMUSEMENTS

KATHERINE McDONALD AT THE BUTLER TODAY

Katherine McDonald who was last seen in this theatre in "The Thunderbolt" will be screened at the Butler theatre today in "The Turning Point."

The story, which is an adaptation of the Robert W. Chambers' novel of the same title, tells the story of the failure of the firm of Edgerton-Tennant Co., as a result of which Diana Tennant and James Edgerton, daughter and son of the dead partners are thrown on their own resources. By chance they meet in New York City. A mutual love interest is checked when, in order to be constantly with Diana, Edgerton decides to assist her in her career as a professional hostess for fashionable affairs. To save the man she loves, Diana forces him to declare love and then points out the right way for him to earn the love and admiration of a woman. Succeeding incident lead Diana to strongly suspect that her great love has robbed her of Edgerton forever. Meanwhile a shadow of the most unfortunate incident in her life is constantly cast before her by a disreputable Col. Curmew who seeks to frighten her into taking steps that would make her unworthy of her ideals. The exciting moment comes when all evidence is against her. A revelation of the true Reno event has been made. And Edgerton who has been listening at an open door walks in the room. The ending is most unusual and interesting. Included in the program is a one-reel Prizma subject "Out of the Sea."

Tomorrow—Doris Kenyon in a mystery melodrama "The Hand Box," by Louis Joseph Vance, also Mr. and Mrs. Carter De Haven, well known stage comedians in their best picture "Hoodooed." Coming—Monday, D. W. Griffith's supreme masterpiece—"Broken Blossoms," the picture that became famous over night.
