JEROME IS FORCED TO PROBE CRIMES OF TRACTION TRUST

The District-Attorney Secures from Recorder McAvoy an Order Calling a Special Grand Jury to Hold Sessions in October.

TIP GOES OUT THAT HE HAS TAKEN UP IVINS'S CHALLENGE.

Destruction of Inter-Met.'s Books, Showing How a Great Steal Was Accomplished to Be the Subject of the Grand Jury's Investigation.

That District Attorney Jerome would take up William M. Ivins's challenge to investigate the destruction of the books of the Inter.-Met. Company, brought out in the Public Utilities investigation, was to-day evident when the Prosecutor appeared before Recorder McAvoy in Part I., General Sessions, and requested a special Grand Jury for October. Mr. Jerome did not openly state that the Inter.-Met. revelations were the reason for the request, but said that he thought "pressing public business" required it.

The hearing was ex parte and little was said to give an indication of the nature of the business to be laid before the Special Grand Jury, but the tip circulated from sources near the District-Attorney's office was that the disclosures brought out by Mr. Ivins before the Public Service Commission would be probed with a view to bringing criminal charges.

The Order for the Jury.

After hearing the request Recorder McAvoy wrote the following order:

"It appears to my satisfaction from the statement of the District-Attorney of the County of New York that the public interests require a Grand Jury in addition to the regular one provided.

"It is ordered that the Commissioner of Jurors draw and summon an additional Grand Jury to appear at Part I. of this court on Oct. 7, 1907, at 10.30 o'clock forenoon.

"FRANCIS S. M'AVOY."

At last, under the stinging words of Mr. Ivins, it begins to look as though the District-Attorney would start in on his long forgotten, pre-election pledges to "follow the trail of corruption even if it led to the offices of the Metropolitan Traction Company." Little time has been lost by the busy uncoverer of corrupt business methods in fulfilling his promise to lay before the District-Attorney the testimony given before the Public Service Commission by Dr. Clifford Moorhead, secretary-treasurer of the Interborough-Metropolitan, concerning the destruction of books and records of the company at the time when the Court of Appeals was hearing a case in which the books cut a large figure.

Mr. Moorehead, who admitted he was known in Wall street circles as a "dummy director" for Thomas Fortune Ryan, showed a disposition at the hearing to take the entire responsibility of the book-burning upon his own shoulders, claiming he did it of his own initiative and not under directions from any one higher up.

Ivins Put It Up to Jerome.

Mr. Ivins announced his intention of laying the testimony before the District Attorney to determine whether anything illegal had been done by the members of the traction trust in thus destroying the books, and in the event of its being decided not criminal in doing so to urge the Commission to draft legislation making such acts illegal.

It is the general opinion that once the matter of alleged Metropolitan corruption is laid before a grand jury, that body in the present temper of public opinion will not allow itself to be suppressed, and that District-Attorney Jerome, under the lash of Mr. Ivins' words, will probably not leave a stone unturned in getting at the bottom of things.

Mr. Ivins this afternoon gave Mr. Jerome another pointer in connection with the investigation of the merger trust by the Grand Jury. He called Mr. Jerome's attention to Section 594 of the Penal Code.

This relates to the illegal selling of stocks and bonds with intention to defraud. The violation of this section is defined as a misdemeanor.

IGNORING ORDER, RAILWAY KEEPS GRIP ON BOOKS.

It became known to the public to-day that an order was issued six days ago by the Public Service Commission, in which a peremptory direction was given to the Metropolitan Street Railway Company, under authority of the Public Utilities act, requiring the production of all books and records for the inspection of Marvyn Scudder, the Commission's expert accountant. Five days were given in which to comply with the terms of the order.

The time limit for compliance, or formal refusal to comply, expired at midnight. No response of any kind was received by the Public Service Commission. At the offices of the Commission it was stated to-day that no communication of any nature had been received on the subject from the Metropolitan Street Railway Company, and that the company had not asked for an extension of time or communicated with the Commission in any manner.

In accordance with the law and the terms of the order the only alternative left to the commission is to get a mandatory order from a Supreme Court Justice. This will at once precipitate a fight, in which the constitutionality of the Public Utilities act may, and doubtless, will be attacked.

LIFE TERM FOR BOY CONVICTED OF MURDER

BATH, Me., Sept. 6.—Life imprisonment at hard labor in State prison was the sentence imposed to-day by Justice Whitehouse in the Supreme Court upon Sidney K. Preble, the fifteen-year-old boy who was found guilty by a jury last night of the murder of his companion, Norris Wheaten.

When the sentence was pronounced Preble bowed two or three times to the clerk and, looking around the courtroom, smiled for the first time during his trial. He will be taken to the Thomaston prison to-night.

OIL TRUST AND N. Y. CENTRAL AGAIN INDICTED UP-STATE.

JAMESTOWN, N. Y., Sept. 6.—The Federal Grand Jury this afternoon returned an additional indictment against the Pennsylvania and New York Central Railroads, the Standard Oil Trust Company and the Vacuum Oil Company of Rochester. Each indictment contains fifty-eight counts.

BRIGHT EYES WON'T PASS JOB UP TO FIDELIS.

Indian Spirit Maid Could Not Read a Sealed Letter.

and answer them, but of that I know nothing of my own knowledge—only what I have been told."

"Is it true that you have read a sealed letter sent to you by Dr. Funk?"

She Couldn't Call Bright Eyes.

"I myself have never read a sealed letter."

"Does Bright Eyes ever read them?"

"I have been so informed."

"Well, can't you call on Bright Eyes for a little help now?"

Mrs. Pepper-Vanderbilt, having made her position clear, declined to answer so flippant a request. There wasn't a sound from Bright Eyes, either.

A little further along Mrs. Pepper-Vanderbilt said she might have received letters from Mr. Vanderbilt bearing messages to Bright Eyes and to his first wife, in the spirit world. Mr. Rosenberg showed her a letter which figured in the evidence a few days ago and which was addressed to the then Mrs. Pepper, with an address "For Bright Eyes" in one corner.

"I never saw that letter until this minute," she said.

Mrs. Pepper-Vanderbilt went on to explain that Bright Eyes was sometimes very coarse in her work when it came to using a human body as a medium of transmission. For example, she often had fainting spells after a seance, and the doctors told her that she had weakened her heart by her personal sacrifices in behalf of Bright Eyes, Red Light, Thunder Cloud and the other regular residents of the spiritual Cherokee Strip.

Mr. Rosenberg directed her mind back to the main issue. He wanted to know why Mrs. Pepper-Vanderbilt couldn't get help from Bright Eyes now. The bishopess of the banshees explained, at length, that she had no power over Bright Eyes and could not at will call the Indian princess out of the ethereal blue which hangs over Brooklyn.

Counsel Offered to Sing.

Whereat Mr. Rosenberg showed that hundreds of times she had passed into the trance state at her seances at a given time—to wit, just after a hymn and a short speech, by some one, and that invariably Bright Eyes was immediately on the job. Although he admitted that he was not in good voice, he volunteered to hit up a hymn, if Mrs. Pepper-Vanderbilt thought it would expedite the reading of the sealed letter. However, there was no singing and he had to put the sealed letter back into his pocket.

Mrs. Pepper-Vanderbilt spent some time describing services she had held this summer at Pleasant Lake, which is a spot much beloved by spirits, and in Maine. She admitted that Bright Eyes had usually been present on such occasions, thus showing that the talented princess does not confine herself exclusively to the Brooklyn reservation.

No Pockets to Deceive.

Mr. Rosenberg showed an almost dressmakerly curiosity to know what sort of a costume the witness wore for her seances. He inquired particularly whether there were any concealed pockets or flowing sleeves in which letters or notes might be hidden. Mrs. Pepper-Vanderbilt met the insinuation with heat. Her official gown, she explained, was of black, without pockets. The sleeves were tight-fitting, following the mode of the hour.

"Did you ever take to your services the 'Medium's Blue Book,' giving the names of all the known spiritualistic believers in the United States, with valuable data regarding their families, their habits and their past lives?" inquired Mr. Rosenberg.

Mrs. Pepper said she had never used the handy volume which Mr. Rosenburg described. He asked her to tell about her last wedding.

She said she was married to Mr. Vanderbilt on June 1 of this year at the house which he gave to her in St. Mark's avenue by the Rev. Mr. Brecklen, of No. 339 East Fourth street, Manhattan pastor of Mount Hope Chapel. The witnesses were Judge and Mrs. Dailey. Right after the ceremony Bright Eyes took her off into a trance. She was subsequently informed that, through her, Bright Eyes had said that it was "a good thing," meaning by that the marriage, not the bridegroom.

Bright Eyes Makes Mistakes.

Mrs. Pepper-Vanderbilt said it was untrue that Mr. Vanderbilt had even been unduly associated with her during her widowhood, when she lived at No. 197 Waverly avenue. Mr. Rosenberg then indulged a pardonable inquisitiveness regarding the candy which Mr. Vanderbilt had sent to Bright Eyes.

"I never ate the candy," said Mrs. Pepper-Vanderbilt, warmly.

"Well, did Bright Eyes eat it?"

"No, material things are not for spirits. That candy thing that they're talking so much about was like this. Up at Pleasant Lake it was decided that each medium should accept from her friends contributions in memoriam of the particular spirits which controlled them. I let Mr. Vanderbilt know and he sent some candy in memory of Bright Eyes, she being a child spirit."

"Isn't it true that all gifts for spirits go their terrestial mediums?"

"Not at all," snapped Mrs. Pepper, getting quite mad all of a sudden.

"Are not the mediums the only persons who profit by the gifts of believers to those in the spirit world?"

"No, that isn't so at all."

"Did Bright Eyes ever tell a lie?"

"No."

"Did she ever make any mistakes?"

"Yes, I think Bright Eyes has made mistakes, but she never told a wilful falsehood."

Did Mrs. Vanderbilt-Pepper remember the horse Charley which Mr. Vanderbilt had given to Bright Eyes as a present? Yes, she remembered Charley—a gentle and faithful animal. Had she ridden behind him? She had. Had she passed into a trance on any such occasions? Strange enough, no.

She Used Bright Eyes's Check.

Here Dr. Fairbairn, the medical member of the lunacy commission, asked how Mrs. Pepper-Vanderbilt got a message to Bright Eyes. All Mrs. Pepper-Vanderbilt had to do, she said, was to think of the thing and the thought would be passed right along to Bright Eyes. It was but rarely that the astral Central reported the wire busy. The message went through promptly.

"Now, then," said Dr. Fairbairn, "it is in evidence here that Mr. Vanderbilt once sent Bright Eyes a check for some money. I would like to have you explain about that matter."

"It was last year, when I went to Europe, that that happened," explained the head of the First Church of Spiritualism. "I ran short of funds and could not get back to America to fill my engagements at Pleasant Lake. I knew that many of our followers there would be disappointed if I did not return in time. I am informed that Bright Eyes worried about this and she must have told my friends. So Mr. Vanderbilt sent a check for 1,000 marks."

"But I have been told that the check was for Bright Eyes," pressed the Commissioner. "Did you use it?"

"Yes."

"How was that check cashed?"

"At a bank."

"Who indorsed it?"

Mrs. Pepper-Vanderbilt became temporarily mute.

"Well, the check had to have some indorsement, didn't it?"

"Yes."

"And you got the money?"

"Yes."

"Then you must have indorsed the check?"

Mrs. Vanderbilt said she must have indorsed the check.

Bright Eyes Craves Harmony

Commissioner Ketcham, the legal member of the Board, insisted that if Mrs. Pepper-Vanderbilt wished to prove her husband's sanity she should give a convincing demonstration to show that his faith in her had been well founded.

"Can you get in touch with Bright Eyes now?" he asked half a dozen times in half a dozen ways.

"I don't know," she kept answering.

"Why don't you know?" said Mr. Ketcham.

"The conditions are not proper," said Mrs. Pepper-Vanderbilt. "To get in touch with Bright Eyes I must have harmonious surroundings. I must be passive, and I am not passive now; I have undergone too much mental agony in the last few days. Bright Eyes craves harmony."

Mr. Rosenberg asked her if any other spirit had been using her as a central lately.

"Yes," she said, "there is another spirit known as Fidelis, who has sent messages through me, according to what I have been told."

This is the first time Fidelis had ever been mentioned as a member of the talented circle which includes Bright Eyes, Red Light and the two spirit roosters. Mrs. Pepper-Vanderbilt seemed to have taken little interest in Fidelis, notwithstanding the spirit's pretty name.

She couldn't say whether Fidelis was a lady spirit or a gentleman spirit, or where Fidelis came from, or what Fidelis's nationality was. It was plain that, as an expert, Mrs. Pepper-Vanderbilt did not bank very much on Fidelis.

"Mrs. Williams, over in Staten Island, claims that she first discovered Bright Eyes?" suggested the crafty Rosenberg.

"I don't care to say anything about Mrs. Williams," answered the witness, in a tone which indicated that she could say a great deal about Mrs. Williams if she had a mind to.

"Has Bright Eyes ever been used by any other medium than you?"

Mrs. Pepper-Vanderbilt couldn't say. She said that some of her circle of followers had occasionally called Bright Eyes a "disser" in a friendly spirit of derision, sometimes when Bright Eyes was a little slow about getting down to her knitting. She took it that "Disser" was slang, but wasn't sure; it might be Indian or some other appropriately dead language.

Late this afternoon Miss Vanderbilt's lawyer finished his two-day examination of the bride. Mr. Vanderbilt's lawyer caused her to say again that she had used no undue influence over her aged husband, and then the hearing adjourned for the week.

DRAW REVOLVERS TO SAVE DRIVER

Mob Threatened to Lynch Man Whose Team Killed Five-Year-Old Child.

A mob of about three thousand persons came near lynching David Levenson, a driver, in Jersey City, N. J., this afternoon after the truck which the man was driving had run over and killed a five-year-old boy who was playing in the street. The police reserves were called to the scene, and even with their clubs and revolvers they had a hard time getting the man to the Seventh street precinct.

Brickland Blakey, five years of age, of No. 552 Grove street, was the victim.

LAUGHED SO HARD AT JOKE HE MAY LOSE HIS LIFE.

Old Man Toppled from Wall on Which He Was Sitting and Broke His Thigh.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 6.—A laugh over a joke may cost David Davis, aged seventy, his life, at least it will leave him crippled the remainder of his days. He is now in a hospital here, with a broken leg and fractured thigh, the result of the laugh.

Seated on a 12-foot wall with a number of companions yesterday, swapping funny stories, the old man laughed so heartily at one of the tales that he lost his balance on the wall and toppled over into the street. Owing to his advanced age the injuries may prove fatal.

Good enough for extravagant people; inexpensive enough for economical ones.

HORSE CARS MEET IN COLLISION IN OUR "1907" CITY

Here in the great teeming city of Greater New York, with its millions of population and its Black Hand societies and its soul affinities and its Little Bright Eyeses and its new Finger Building—no, not Singer Building; take a look at it yourself—a strange accident happened this afternoon.

At First avenue and Twenty-fourth street a northbound street car ran through an open switch and smashed into another car going south.

A big crowd at once gathered. A man and a woman riding on one of the cars were badly bruised. Ambulance Surgeon Rice, of Bellevue Hospital, patched them up and sent them home. They gave their names as Thomas Callahan, of No. 35 East Twentieth street, and Mrs. G. Lower, of No. 79 East Broadway. Max Ostrahoff, of No. 140 Essex street, who thought his ankles had been broken, made such a noise that Policeman Haslette locked him up in the East Twenty-second street station.

A horse known as Charley had his nose badly cut and one of his forelegs skinned.

The other horse affinity escaped unscathed.

No, patient reader, the horse was not a passenger. That's the funny part. For here in the great teeming city (see opening paragraph above) it was two horse cars that had a collision.

Later—The customary frenzied mob gathered and attempted to lynch the offending horse. Officer O'Hara dispersed the infuriated horde of 5,000 desperate men, women and children.

GIRL BABY'S AWFUL ECZEMA

Sight of Eye Destroyed by Disease—Tried Five Doctors but Grew Worse—In Agony Eight Months—Parents Discouraged, Until They Tried Cuticura Remedies

IN ONE WEEK ALL SORES DISAPPEARED

"Our little girl, one year and a half old, was taken with eczema or that was what the doctor said it was. We called in the family doctor and he gave some tablets and said she would be all right in a few days. The eczema grew worse and we called in doctor No. 2. He said she was teething, as soon as the teeth were through she would be all right. But she still grew worse. Doctor No. 3 said it was eczema. By this time she was nothing but a yellow, greenish sore. Well, he said he could help her, so we let him try it about a week. One morning we discovered a little yellow pimple on one of her eyes. Of course we phoned for doctor No. 3. He came over and looked her over and said that he could not do anything more for her, that we had better take her to some eye specialist, since it was an ulcer. So we went to Oswego to doctor No. 4, and he said the eyesight was gone, but that he could help it. We thought we would try doctor No. 5. Well, that proved the same, only he charged $10 more than doctor No. 4. We were nearly discouraged. I saw one of the Cuticura advertisements in the paper and thought we would try the Cuticura Treatment, so I went and purchased a set of Cuticura Remedies, which cost me $1, and in three days our daughter, who had been sick about eight months, showed great improvement, and in one week all sores had disappeared. Of course it could not restore the eyesight, but if we had used Cuticura in time I am confident that it would have saved the eye. We think there is no remedy so good for any skin trouble or impurity of the blood as Cuticura. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Abbott, R. F. D. No. 9, Fulton, Oswego Co., N. Y., August 17, 1906."
