WENT TO POLICE STATION TO BUY ROUND O' DRINKS

"Set 'Em Up, Bartender," Said Vogt to Lieutenant, but He'd Been to Brooklyn.

There is a figure "8" on the lamppost in front of Oak street police station, which means that it is the Fifth Precinct. This figure has got a lot of chaps looking for five-cent drinks into trouble, and to-day caused some embarrassment to Adolph Vogt, a jeweller, of No. 874 Second avenue.

Mr. Vogt had been over in Brooklyn visiting friends. He came back to Manhattan with a bank roll of $474, wearing jewelry valued at $1,000 and feeling about as generous as a man could feel. Mr. Vogt went forth to buy drinks for poor men, and he figured the best place to find them was in one of those five-cent rum shops.

The figure "8" loomed up big before the jeweller, and he walked into the station-house. Lieut. Larry O'Brien was at the desk when the stranger entered, waving a roll of bills.

"Come up all you fellows and drink your fill," he called to half a dozen policemen in the rear room. "We'll have a cold bottle, too, and we'll have another one. Then it's to the best eating-house on the Bowery for food. Now set 'em up, bartender, and set 'em up quick," he added, looking at O'Brien.

Suddenly Mr. Vogt's glance was held fast on O'Brien's shield and brass buttons.

"Is the place pinched?" he gasped.

"No, but you are," answered O'Brien, who objects to being mistaken for a bartender. "This is no saloon. It's a station-house."

"Brooklyn is responsible for this," Mr. Vogt said as he was led away to a cell. "Brooklyn is most demoralizing."

EVEN CHAUFFEURS ARE HELD UP HERE

Evidently No Longer Immune, One Gets Considerably Cut Up.

Pullman car porters are warned to be careful. Now that a chauffeur has been robbed it may be their turn next. None of the favored classes is immune any longer. Vested rights are liable at any time to lose their vest. Standard Oil got fined twenty-nine millions. Succor! succor!

The unfortunate individual who found that even being a chauffeur does not afford protection from the brotherhood of free rovers of the highway is Jeremiah Haynes, of No. 435 West Thirty-eighth street. A policeman found Mr. Haynes lying on the sidewalk at Tenth avenue and Forty-ninth street early to-day. He had a gash in his scalp and three knife cuts in his back.

At Roosevelt Hospital Mr. Hynes was soon able to tell his story. He was on his way home from the West Forty-ninth Street Precinct of Garageville-on-the-Gasoline, when three burly ruffians set upon him. One of them felled him with a blackjack, and another poked him in the ticklish part of the back with a knife. Then they frisked him for $17 and departed.

Is no profession safe from the attacks o fthe predatory in New York?

NOVELTIES IN GOWNS, FURS AND LINGERIE.

Arnold, Constable & Co.'s Fall Opening Gives Up-to-Date Display of Feminine Goods.

Feminine faddists and aesthetes, as well as the strictly classy and chic dressers, may find their "hearts' desire" at Arnold, Constable & Co.'s fall opening.

In the way of novelties this store, whose September displays are always epoch-making events in New York fashions, shows more sensations this year than ever before. Just a few of these are the tunic skirt, the hipless Empire skirt, the Calve muff and the new French lingerie.

In the exhibition parlor for robes and costumes one of the striking models is the Paquin black satin Ondoyant, with the touch of American Beauty velvet at neck and collar. The Empire skirt is named the tunic, and the front is draped in a style absolutely novel, having a few folds like drapery at the knees. The sleeves, as are most of these in the swell costumes, are kimona.

Three-piece gowns are shown in the Arnold, Constable & Co. display. One particularly striking costume is of blue broadcloth, with the Empire skirt, having a panel front. The waist is of tucked chiffon, with a front piece of filet done in Oriental colors. The jacket is the exact cut of a gentleman's evening coat and is braided in black.

One of the most striking three-piece suits is of delft-blue broadcloth, with Louis Quatorze coat of the same color, while still another has the blue costume with a black velvet coat.

The display of hand-embroidered French lingerie is one of the most exquisite that ever held the attention of admiring woman, and the lingerie tables are the most popular spots in the exhibition room.

As always at Arnold, Constable & Co.'s opening, the furs are unusually attractive. Among the novelties is the Calve muff, which is in shape like a bolster—by no means small.

The most popular furs for evening are white fox and ermine, combined with lace, and for daytime sable, mink, broadtail or whatever fur is becoming to "my lady." The ever-popular kimona sleeve or fichu effect has made itself felt in the fur styles, and one of the most striking sets is of black broadtail with the big fichu or Pillirian trimmed in lace and the large flat muff of the same combination.

In automobile coats Aleutian seal is shown in stunning styles.
