FORGED PAPERS FOUND IN TWO BROOKLYN BANKS

Attorney-General Jackson Says Borough Bank and Jenkins Trust Company Officials Are Criminally as Well as Civilly Liable.

Attorney-General Jackson gave out a statement this afternoon to the effect that, in his opinion, evidence of both criminal and civil liability has been unearthed in the investigation of the Borough Bank, of Brooklyn, and the Jenkins Trust Company, of Brooklyn.

The statment, after reciting the appointment of receivers for six banks earlier in the day at Kingston, says:

"It was on Oct. 25 and 26 that Supt. Williams, of the Banking Department, reported to the Attorney-General that he had taken possession of the Williamsburg Trust Company, the Hamilton Bank, the Borough Bank, the Jenkins Trust Company and the International Trust Company, and that it was unsafe and inexpedient for those institutions to continue doing business.

"The statute requires that upon receiving such reports from the Superintendent of the State Banking Department, the Attorney-General shall proceed at once in the courts against the insolvent institutions. The language of the statute is mandatory in this respect, but Mr. Jackson was anxious to give the banks ample opportunity to secure the necessary additional resources to enable them to safely resume business and he accordingly refrained from taking any action until to-day.

Both the Attorney-General and Supt. Williams sought to co-operate with the officers and directors of the closed banks in an effort to put them on their feet again. On Thursday Supt. Williams informed the Attorney-General that the banks mentioned were unable to secure the necessary additional capital, and that they hould be placed in the hands of receivers without further delay.

A Receiver Necessary.

"With respect to each bank mentioned, Supt. Williams yesterday made an affidavit, part of which is as follows:

"That from his examination of the affairs of the said defendant (bank) and from his knowledge of its condition, deponent further says that said defendant is in an unsafe condition and unable to pay its depositors and their creditors promptly on demand and in full, and that it has become and is necessary that the affairs of the said defendant shall be administered, by a receiver or receivers, to be appointed by and subject to the direction of the Court.

"Not until these affidavits were received did the Attorney-General proceed, and he will continue to co-operate in all efforts to rehabilitate the banks now in the hands of temporary receivers.

During the last few days Attorney-General Jackson has had the services of one of Supt. Williams's experts in an investigation of the books and other records of several of the insolvent banks for the purpose of procuring evidence as to the civil and criminal liability of the officers and directors of these banks.

Civil and Criminal Liability.

"Evidence of both civil and criminal liability, in the opinion of he Attorney-General, has been unearthed, and the investigation thus far has been confined to the Borough Bank of Brooklyn and the Jenkins Trust Company.

"In the Borough Bank of Brooklyn there has been found evidence of illegal overloans, overdrafts, forged paper and other criminal transactions, all of which will be presented to the Grand Jury.

"In the Jenkins Trust Company there has been found evidence of illegal over loans. For instance, the records show over loans to the president aggregating $557,000. The Banking law prohibits the loaning to any officer or director of more than 10 per cent. of the capital stock and surplus, and also prohibits a loan to any amount to any officer or director without the approval of a majority of the trustees. The capital stock of the Jenkins Trust Company is but $500,000 and its surplus $197,000. It is claimed by the trustees that they knew nothing about these illegal loans to the president."

COURT APPOINTS RECEIVERS FOR SIX CITY BANKS.

KINGSTON, N. Y., Nov. 16.—Temporary receivers were appointed to-day for six New York city banks and trust companies which recently suspended payment.

The include the Hamilton, Brooklyn and Borough banks and the Williamsburg, Jenkins and International Trust companies. Application for the receivers was made by William Mackey for Attorney-General Jackson.

Several of these institutions were taken in charge by Clark Williams, State Superintendent of Banks, on Oct. 26. The receivers were appointed by Supreme Court Justice Betts. The temporary receivers, with the amount of the bond, follow:

Williamsburg Trust Company of Brooklyn—Frank L. Papst, President of the Buffalo Dredging Company; bond, $100,000.

Brooklyn Bank of New York—Bruyn Hasbrouck, of New Paltz; bond, $150,000.

Hamilton Bank of New York—Frank Wise, of Albany; bond, $50,000.

Jenkins Trust Company, of Brooklyn—John Mulhall, of New York; bond, $200,000.

Borough Bank of Brooklyn—Henry A. Powell, of Brooklyn, and Isaac N. Cox, of Ellenville; bond, $100,000 each.

International Trust Company of the Borough of Manhattan, Goodwin Brown, of New York; bond, $100,000.

Orders to show cause why permanent receivers should not be appointed were granted and were made returnable before Justice Betts, of Albany, on Nov. 20.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Nov. 16.—Fifteen thousand persons were on Ferry Field this afternoon when the whistle blew for play between the Pennsylvania and Michigan elevens.

Michigan won the toss. Hollenbach kicked off. The ball was in midfield almost constantly for the first ten minutes, being punted back and forth. On a fake kick Hammond made fifteen yards.

Magoffin fumbled a punt on Michigan's fifteen-yard line and Ziegler got the ball.

Pennsylvania tried a forward pass, fumbled and it was Michigan's ball on her own five-yard line. Hammond punted to the 25-yard line. On a short on-side kick by Hollenbach Gallagher took the ball over for a touchdown. Scarlett kicked goal. Score: Pennsylvania, 6; Michigan, 0.

Hammond punted to midfield and Rheinschild got the ball on a fumble. Hammond punted again to Pennsylvania's 20-yard line. Hollenbach carried the ball back 15 yards on a fake kick.

Score end of first half: Pennsylvania, 6; Michigan, 0.

HARVARD HAS A HARD CONTEST

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 16.—Another great army of football enthusiasts surged out to the Stadium to-day to see the annual contest between Harvard and Dartmouth.

To the Crimson eleven it was the last strenuous preparation for the match with Yale next Saturday. For Dartmouth to-day's game marked the close of a hitherto successful season, although the Green's schedule has been unusually easy. Capt. Parker, left guard of Harvard, was unable to go into the game and Hoar took his place.

Early in the first half Harvard was within five yards of goal, but could not score. Then Dartmouth rushed seventy yards to Harvard's twenty-five-yard line, was sent back on penalty to the forty-yard line; then rushed to the twenty-yard line. A try for goal from placement failed, and the half ended without score.

Final score: Dartmouth, 22; Harvard, 0.

Morris High School eleven, which last Saturday won the city football championship from De Witt Clinton, was pitted against High School of Commerce team on the Bronx Oval this morning.

The score was a tie—5 to 5—Commerce with a 80-yard run carrying the ball over in the last two minutes of the play.

Now that the Morris eleven has proven itself to be one of the best schoolboy elevens in the East it does not lack for loyal backers. The din of a few hundred Commerce enthusiasts was lost in the medley set up by the natives from over the Harlem.

Little Nixon, Morris's heady, steady quarter-back, used excellent judgment throughout the game. Time and again he would give the signal for two of his backs to dash around an end. In the meanwhile he would conceal the ball from his opponents for a second or two; then, turning suddenly, he would deliver the ball to a lone half-back for long gains through the line.

BOOKMAKERS AND LAYERS PLAY TAG AT BENNINGS

"Keep Moving" System Has Public Guessing to Collect Wagers.

(Special to The Evening World.)

BENNINGS RACE TRACK, WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—The keep-moving system by bookmakers was resumed here to-day at the opening of the fall meeting. In the ring and on the lawn it looked like there was more layers than players. Compared to the method of making wagers on the Metropolitan tracks the game is hard. One has to wend his way in and out the crowd, getting a glimpse every now and then of the programmed slate of the bookmaker, but, no, real good look.

Capt. Dapane, head of the Pinkerton's race track force, kept the layers on the move all the afternoon. None is allowed to stand in one spot. While it is troublesome getting down bets, the collection of winning wagers is twice as hard. You have to dig around and locate the man with whom you bet. He never is in the same spot.

Fine weather was dead out for the opening. Twas just like spring and the crowd on hand was big.

John Boler Lays Odds.

John Boles, brother of George, the dethroned bookmaker, was among the army of "moving layers" on the "asphalt lawn". His appearance created a mild sensation among those who figured that he had come under ban with his brother, George.

John said there was nothing startling in his making a book again. He had never been requested not to and so far as he knew he had as much right to make a living making a book as anyone else, and it seemed so. His booking has no connection with that of his brother.

Handicap the Feature.

The Columbia Handicap was the feature of the day and it was a big betting event as far as betting goes among Washingtonians. Oraculum as the favorite, with Oxford next choice and Dolly Spanker third in the fancies of the crowd.

Dolly Spanker's price went steadily out hear and head with Comedienne. The latter got the verdict with Oraculum third. The rest offered no serious contention.

Glaucus Wins the First.

Glaucus, a good thing backed with the money of Plunger Charlie Heeney, won the opening dash in a big gallop. Tee Tick and Ardri, the favorite, made most of the pace until well into the stretch, where Liebert brought Glaucus up with a rush. Ardri was second in front of the well-played King Thistle.

Guardian Won the Chase.

The Colt entry, Kara and Prince of Pilsen, was made favorite in the Blandensburg steeplechase, but Kara, the one relied on to win, fell at the first jump. All who bet on the stable gave on all hopes of cashing then. Prince of Pilsen ran a remarkable race, making up thirty lengths at the end, and was beaten only a head. He swerved in the stretch, and that cost him the race. Guardian was the winner. He led all the way but in the stretch looked beaten a couple of times. He just lasted, however. Essex was third.

Bocks Beat This One.

Joe Notter put over his first winner of the meeting when he got Belle of the Bay home in front of the hot favorite Pins and Needles. Neoskaleta was third. All the New Yorkers and Washingtonians went to Pins and Needles as if the race was over. Neoskaleeta and Princess Nettie got some play but most of the money went on Pins and Needles. The "keep moving" layers won enough on this race to put them ahead on the opening day's speculation.

KILLED GIRL BECAUSE SHE REFUSED TO MARRY HIM.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 16.—Angered because of her refusal to marry him, A. Weneke shot and killed Emma Korner here to-day while she was on her way to work. He was refused by the girl yesterday and he brooded over the matter until this morning when he waylaid her. He was arrested.

The girl was seventeen years of age and Weneke twenty-one.

RECEIVER NAMED FOR STEAMSHIP COMPANY.

BOSTON, Mass., Nov. 16.—Hollis R. Bailey, of this city, was appointed a receiver to-day for the Enterprise Transportation Company, of Worcester, Mass., which has been engaged in running a line of passenger and freight steamers between Providence, Fall River, Newport and New York. Judge Lowell, of the United States Supreme Court, made the appointment.

The petitioner was John P. Whaley, of New Jersey, a creditor for $5,000.

ARREST POINTS TO A CONSPIRACY OF SMUGGLERS

One Man Held in $5,000 Bail—A Man and a Woman Under Suspicion.

After working for two months on what the Federal authorities deem a most important smuggling case, the office of the U. S. District-Attorney and the Surveyor of the Port last evening caused the arrest by Marshal Henkel, at the Continental Hotel, Broadway and Twentieth street, of Austin F. Montayne. He was arraigned to-day before U. S. Commissioner Shields in the Federal Building and held in $5,000 bail.

The Government purposes to show a smuggling conspiracy to bring in Paris gowns, and the arrest of a woman and another man will be necessary.

Lawyer Hugh Gordon Miller said that the woman in the case brought in three trunks on Sept. 13, which were made the basis of the present complaint, and which contained the alleged smuggled goods. The lawyer said the trunks were declared and that the duty, amounting to nearly $6,000, was turned over to a prominent New York attorney who has since died. Mr. Miller said the lawyer in question had not concluded his arrangements with the government at the time of his death and that the money is still tied up in the attorney's estate. His name could not be learned. The complaint charges that Montanye brought into the United States from Paris, France, on Sept. 13, the following goods:

One black and green princess gown, 1 green coat, metal trimmings; 1 striped velvet costume, 1 wine-colored gown, 1 black costume, red trimmings; 1 wine-colored costume, three pieces; 1 white lace costume, head trimmings; 1 black lace costume, head trimmings; 1 wine-colored plush costume, 1 wine-colored princess gown, 2 wine-colored lace waists, 1 velvet bolero, 1 blue silk gown, 1 black cloth coat, 1 black crepe costume, 1 light blue evening gown, 1 black lace costume, 1 light blue princess gown, three lace waists, 1 combination suit underwear, 1 fur coat, 1 feather boa, 6 metres cloth.

BURGLAR WITH PISTOL IN HAND AWOKE GROCER

McLaughlin Sprang at the Intruder, Who Backed Down Stairs Without Shooting.

NEWARK, N. J., Nov. 16.—A masked man with a revolver in his right hand was what Daniel McLaughlin, a Harrison grocer, saw when he was awakened by a noise in his room early to-day. McLaughlin lives at No. 516 Central avenue, Harrison.

Unawed by the revolver the grocer jumped out of bed and yelled "Murder! Police!" Then he started for the burglar. McLaughlin's cries aroused everybody in the house and the burglar began a retreat, but kept the grocer, who followed him, covered with the revolver.

After he had backed down the stairs to the ground floor the robber made a dash for the rear door, which he had left open, and ran from the house and along the Erie Railroad track.

McLaughlin, being undressed, could not follow him, and had to content himself with notifying the police by telephone of what had occurred.

BAY ST. LOUIS FIRE SWEPT; FAMOUS CONVENT BURNED.

BAY ST. LOUIS, Miss., Nov. 16.—Fire which was swept by a high Gulf wind early to-day burned everything in its path and caused damage of about $300,000. St. Joseph's Convent, one of the most famous institutions of its kind in the South, was totally destroyed, and the Catholic Church and parsonage were also burned.

Other buildings destroyed were the Oisane Theatre, Hotel Clifton, Cumberland Telephone building and the Butler building.

YALE FIELD, New Haven, Nov. 16.—Yale defeated Princeton in their annual football game to-day by 12 to 10. It was the hardest fought game in the history of the Tiger-Eli contests, characterized by surprising reversals of form.

During the first half it was all Orange and Black, with Yale fighting stubbornly in the ruck. Booth made a 75-yard run for a touchdown and Harlan kicked a goal from the field after three failures. McCormick also ran thirty-five yards.

In the second half Yale made a few changes in her line and then tore out Tiger hair by the handful, wrecking her line and gaining at will.

To-day was made to order for the great game. The air was dry and clear, with just enough of autumn coolness to put life into the clashing teams. Overhead the blue sky hung like a great Yale banner.

All around the great grand stands the clustering hills were topped with autumn orange. Over the orange hills a deep blue haze lay like a pall. Perhaps it was this omen that discouraged Princeton's cohorts.

Whether it was superstition or the financial situation, Princeton wasn't remarkably active in producing rolls of the long green. In town Yale enthusiasts paraded the streets, looking for wagers. At Heublein's, the famous resort of college sporting men, Yale offered 2 to 1 on the blue, with few takers.

For some unknown reason Princeton, always willing to back her team against the world, was overcome with financial shyness.

All through the morning special trains disgorged their beribboned and flag-waving cohorts and backed away to side tracks. Thousands of automobiles came whizzing from all points of the compass. Here and there a motor could be seen stalled along the roadway, and the crowds in the special trains grinned.

In the ancient college town every house fluttered with banners of blue. Along the streets thousands of peddlers displayed flags and song books and football novelties with ribbons of blue or orange attached.

33,000 in the Stands.

At noon the huge grand stands stood bare under the sun. New sections in yellow pine rose to the sky. Thirty-three thousand persons those stands were to seat before two hours had passed. In the broad spaces between stands and fence other thousands stood.

By half-past twelve all New Haven was moving out toward the battlefield. By one o'clock the mountainous grand stands blossomed into a mass of color—orange on the west, blue on the east. Outside the gates speculators vainly begged for tickets. There was none to sell.

Late comers, who had depended upon picking up pasteboards at the entrance,
