GEO. DIXON, ONCE WORLD'S CHAMPION, TAKES LAST COUNT

"Little Chocolate" Passes Away in Want—His Body Taken to Long Acre A. C. and Saved From Potter's Field by Friends.

YOU'VE heard the news—poor little old George Dixon is dead. To-day the body of the greatest little fighter that ever lived lies in melancholy state in the hall of the Long Acre Club. Friends that had half forgotten him while alive remember him now. They had his body taken from the morgue. They are busy collecting money to bury him with and place some sort of a stone above the grave. It is all that they can do. When the funeral is over the world will go on just the same, and in a few days more "Little Chocolate" will be only a memory.

Dixon died alone and deserted by the people who once shouted themselves hoarse over his victories and threw their hats into the air as they crowded about the ring to grasp his soggy fighting gloves. He died in Bellevue Hospital yesterday surrounded by doctors to whom he was just another "case" in the rush and flurry of thousands—a numbered and ticketed "case."

Even if Dixon had been able to ask for his friends in the last hour he might not have been able to think of any that would answer the call. He had drifted into the tide of homeless wrecks that swirl around dark corners and deserted, lonely places. Men who used to know him pulled their hats over their eyes and hurried by when they saw him. Toward the end it must have seemed to Little Chocolate that everyone he met was hurrying by.

AND only a few years ago George Dixon was the greatest little fighter in the world. He made thousands of dollars so easily that he never took teh trouble to count what might be in his pockets. He had a manager. He never bothered his head with figuring out just how much his manager ought to have of his earnings. He was satisfied with what came to him. His manager, anyway, who grew rich on Dixon's earnings in the ring, had promised to see that Little Chocolate would never feel want, so what difference did it make to him?

Dixon began fighting many years ago. He was born in Halifax, in 1870. He began fighting when he was sixteen years old. Tom O'Rourke took hold of him a couple of years later and managed him as long as he was a moneymaker. Then O'Rourke dropped him.

And Dixon was a money-maker for twelve years. In 1891 he beat Cal McCarthy for the feather-weight championship of the world. For ten years he held the title—the longest reign on record. During all of that time Dixon was a gold mine for O'Rourke, who grew fat and sleek and rich. If Dixon had possessed some of O'Rourke's shrewness he might have become rich, too ,for plenty of money went to him. But he thought it would always come just as easily. He "blew" thousands of dollars on wine and revelry. He gave away or "lent" much more than he spent. His own people hung to him like leeches, an dafter every fight they borrowed what they could and took the rest away from him wit hloaded dice.

On one occasion, when Dixon was about to fight at the Broadway, he went to a friend of his, handed over a hundred dollars—all the money he had in the world at the moment—and said: "You keep this for me and give it to me a few days after the fight. These niggers will trim me of what I get, and I want to have a few dollars to fall back on."

SURE enough, Dixon got his money for fighting, went out among his dusky followers, and was "trimmed" out of every cent of it. Then back he went to his first friend and asked for the hundred dollars.

"Why, George," said his friend, "I knew you'd just blow all that money on those waffless niggahs, so I jus' done took it an' went an' bought me a lot of fine clothes with it. You don't mind, do you, George?"

If Dixon "minded" he kept still about it. He was used to being trimmed. What difference did one more "touch" make?

After all his prosperity Little Chocolate was in the Terry McGovern, and all of a sudden he began the backward slip that all fighters must come to sooner or later if they stick to the ring. Dixon still had some money, for he had always fought on the level. He went on fighting, first with Patsy Cline, and lost back more and more. In England, at last, down and out in health and pocket, he was stranded in London. Big Tim Sullivan bought him a steamer ticket back to New York. Here he tried once more to fight. It was a pitiful attempt. Tommy Murphy mercifully knocked him out while the Philadelphia fans jeered and hooted the struggling little black man for his poor showing. There was nothing of the old fighting Dixon then but the sick. All of his old strength and swiftness and skill had gone. He was a wreck.

THEN Dixon went right along drinking whatever he could get to drink, and living in out-of-the-way places as best he could, often hungry and cold, and without even a place to sleep in. At the benefit to Terry McGovern Dixon was given a few hundred dollars. But he did not learned from said experience. He treated it the way of the thousands that had preceded it. Dixon came to New York. He was only a wreck now. He shuffled along the streets past the brilliantly-lighted places where he had been popular as long as he had money to spend. Now and then he applied for help to the men he had helped, only to be thrown or kicked out into the street again, or at best, met with excuses instead of aid. One man, Mike Harrison, a saloon-keeper, took him in and charitably kept him alive.

And all this time Dixon drank whenever he could get anything to drink. He became a sodden wreck, without intelligence or desire to save himself. So he was taken to Bellevue in a dying condition. The doctors asked him a few questions. He told his age. Asked for addresses of friends he said: "If anything happens to me let Mike Harrison know. I guess that'll be about all." And a few hours later he died.

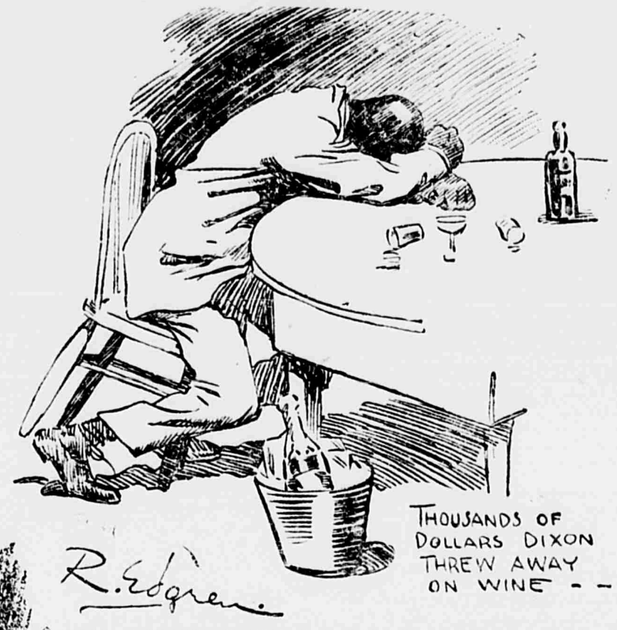
In his fighting time Dixon made not less than $300,000. Much of that went to O'Rourke. What Dixon got went more easily than it came. He never had any idea himself how much he spent or how he spent it.

"I was a foolish boy," Dixon said to me a few weeks ago. "I spent or gave away all I got. But I don't see any of the people I helped willing to do as much for me. The only people who stand by me at all now are the people I never did anything for."

Strangers not of his own race are going to bury Little Chocolate. George Considine has already raised a subscription fund. The boxing clubs in New York are following suit. Sporting men, when they chance to think, are the most liberal in the world. It's too late to do any thing for little old George Dixon now, but at least he'll not be buried in Potters' Field.

THREE PERIODS IN DIXON'S LIFE.

GEORGE DIXON WHEN HE WAS CHAMPION.



HOPPE BARS NO ONE IN BILLIARD WORLD

Talk That He is Side-Stepping Match With Slosson Has No Foundation.

Boy Wonder Is Ready to Defend His Title Against All-Comers.

WILLIE HOPPE, the youngest of billiard champions, has a very genial disposition, but when he read in a morning paper that he was ducking a match with George Slosson he hardly knew whether to smile or get real angry. There was certainly cause for his amusement, as those who have followed the developments of the billiard championship struggle during the past two years will remember.

It was about that time that Hoppe returned from Paris bringing with him the 18.1 world's championship emblem, which had been held by Maurice Vignaux, who obtained it from Schaefer and successfully defended it against the best players in France and America. Vignaux was supposed to be practically invincible at this style of play. When Hoppe returned to America, however, he found none waiting to challenge, and when he proposed a match with Slosson he was told to "go and get a reputation."

When they did meet, however, the youngster easily demonstrated that he was the Student's master, and it was no surprise to many when in a later contest in the Garden hall, Slosson, after another defeat, threw his cue stick to the floor and declared that he was out of the game for all time. So far he has kept his word, and there is apparently no reason to think his game is anyway improved, although in room practice he has shown well against the amateurs.

Hoppe forfeited the 18.2 emblem to Sutton about a year ago, when he went to Amsterdam and Paris to fill an academy engagement. Upon his return he was sincerely desirous of meeting either Schaefer or Sutton for either the 18.1 or 18.2 championships, which they respectively hold. At this time, however, challenges had been made and accepted by Cutler and Morningstar, and Hoppe is now obliged to play his line to regain possession of the emblems.

Under the rules governing the emblems, which are recognized as representing the championships and to which all the billiard players including Hoppe, unanimously agreed, the contests are limited to 500 points in one night's play. These rules could not be changed without consent of the players themselves. Hoppe, however, wants to play either Schaefer or Sutton a 1500 point match of 500 points a night, and says he will bet $2,500 on the side. He is still awaiting a reply.

So far as Slosson's interest in this matter is concerned, it does not appear that Hoppe has challenged him, nor is there any reason to see why he should. To see Hoppe in such a match the youngster would have nothing to gain and much to lose. The advertisement of such a match would be beneficial to Slosson's room, but Hoppe needs no advertising, as his position in the billiard world is well understood. In view of what has transpired friends of Hoppe say that the Student should follow his own advice to the youngster of two years ago.

ALL PENNANT WINNING YACHTS HAD RECORDS

THE annual championship awards made by the Long Island Yacht Racing Association, which have just been announced, show that the boats winning the pennants have excellent records. In Class B, for example, the Hamburg won eight of fifteen races, was second in three others and four times sailed alone. She scored 27 points out of a possible 30 and a rating of 90 per cent.

In the raceabout class the Pretty Quick sailed in eleven races and won 30 points out of a possible 36 making a record of 75 per cent. She won four first and four second prizes and was third twice. Rascal III., in fifteen races, won 33 out of a possible 51 points and closed the season with a percentage of 32. Chinook, in the same class, won two out of ten races and a percentage of 60. The Dorothy, built for Baltimore yachtsmen to compete for the King's cup at Jamestown, started six times, winning four first and two second prizes in the Q class, while the Captain, which won the cup, won three first and four second prizes, making a record in eighteen contests of about 56 per cent.

The Grace, of the New Rochelle Y. C., won the pennant for class R sats, but sailed in only six of the twelve races and closed the season with a record of only 41 per cent. The Thelma, in the same class, won three of the four races in which she started, but failed to qualify for six giants in the New York city class in the Adirondack and Alera each entered sixteen races, and the former won the pennant by a narrow margin.

The Vaquero won in the Larchmont Twenty-one footers with a percentage of 86, other wins in various classes being the Echo, in the New Rochelle design; Skeeter, in the Manhasset Bay "dog" class, with a percentage of 91, Tantrum, in the American Y. C. 30-foot class, with a percentage of 88, and Arizona, in the Manhasset one-design class, with a percentage of 91, winning nine out of twelve races.

Fought Fast Draw.

(Special to The Evening World.)

HAVERHILL, Mass., Jan. 7.—Willie Cassell, of Bridgeport, Conn., and Dick Nelson, of Brooklyn, N. Y., fought eight rounds to a draw before the Haverhill A. C. last night. The bout was to go twelve rounds to a decision, but the attendance was small and the principals refused to go the limit.

No Crimson-Cornell Race.

(Special to The Evening World.)

BOSTON, Jan. 7.—The Harvard crew management has announced that there will be no race with Cornell this year, as there has been for the past three years. No reason is given for discontinuing a race that has been very popular at Harvard as well as at Ithaca, although the Crimson has as yet failed to defeat the Cornell oarsmen.

Cornell Crew Out.

ITHACA, Jan. 7.—The Armory was filled with crew candidates last night. In answer to Coach Courtney's demand for men, over one hundred responded. Beginning next week regular work brought out five old varsity men—Stroke Cox, Gayett, Bayer, Gracy and Brownley. The four members of the famous Worst crew, Captain Coulson, Seymour, Walsh and Holt. Six of the members of last year's freshman crew reported, besides a lot of first-year men and other available candidates.

Walkers on Six-Day Grind.

AKRON, O., Jan. 7.—The six-day walking match at Perkins Rink, here, began at 11 o'clock yesterday, with seventeen entries as follows: George Noimack, Sam Day, Peter Golden, George Carpenter, Tom Slater, Sam Harris, Dave Bennett, Tony Loesin, S. Geiler, George Kluberkranz, J. W. Gray, Hahn, Jack Haven, M. Wearle, H. D. Truax, Maurice Vaughn, E. B. Vogler, and an Akron unknown. Four are from this city. Kluberkranz made the first mile in six and one-half minutes.

STINGER BATTERED UP BY CROS

"Kid Stinger, the game and hard-hitting little Italian fighter of Philadelphia, who was a great kid with the five-ounce gloves six months ago, has gone back. At the stag of the Dry Dock A. C. last night he met Leach Cross, the east side lightweight, in the main bout of six rounds, and what Cross did to him in that session is a shame to relate. Cross just jobbed him, hooked him, crossed him on the law and all comers at him on the chin whenever he wished. If Stinger was right he would have probably lasted a couple of rounds, but as he was far from it Cross had the easiest kind of a time in outpointing him. He won from the first tap of the gong until it rang again for the first time. A collection was raised for George Dixon. It amounted to $60.50.

Hanrahan Beats Wilson.

At the stag of the Consolidated A. C. last night Joe Hanrahan and Barney Wilson met in the star bout of six rounds. It was a rattling good mill, and every one of the 500 club members present at the battle Wilson had at least a slight edge on Hanrahan, but despite this big advantage Hanrahan put up such a good bout that a draw would have been the verdict if a decision was rendered.

DOINGS IN SPORT WORLD

A DUAL MEET HAS BEEN Arranged between the Bath Beach Swimming Club and the Twenty-third street branch of the Y. M. C. PRESIDENT CHARLES H. EBBETS, of the Brooklyn Club, announced yesterday that he had given Joe Corbett his unconditional release, and had released Pitcher Farley to the Waterbury Club, of the Connecticut State League. Corbett has been under reserve by the Brooklyn Club since the consolidation with Baltimore in 1900. Since then he played with the California State League before that organization got into organized baseball.

SEVERAL INTERESTING ROLLER skating events will be decided this week at the Clermont Skating Rink, Clermont and Myrtle avenues. On Thursday evening the special attraction will be a two-mile relay race between the "999" team, composed of Ryan, Blackburn, Kranz and McCormick, and the Clermont Club, represented by Burke, Jordan, Hutchinson and Perry. A four-cornered professional race will be held on Saturday night. The contests are Harry Mcdonald, Frank Dowd, of Dallas, Tex.; Pierce, of Syracuse, N. Y., and Robert Murray, of Dayton, O.

PITTSBURG, JAN. 6.—HANS WAGNER, the shortstop of the Pittsburg baseball team, has been offered as much money as he receives from the Pittsburg Club for playing baseball if he will organize a hockey team for the town of Uniontown, and play on it, the team to be a member of the Central Pennsylvania Hockey League.

ARMORY A. A. HAS INITIAL SHOW TO-NIGHT

Jimmy Gardner and Joe Walcott Scheduled to Go Twelve Rounds.

BY JOHN POLLOCK.

PUGILISM will probably get a big boom in Boston to-night, and if everything goes along all right there is no reason why that city should not be able to pull off many important battles in the future. The Armory A. A., which was organized a few months ago for the purpose of placing the boxing game on a high scale and which also has a legitimate membership of the best and most influential men of Boston, will give its opening show with a twelve round bout between Jimmy Gardner, of Lowell, Mass., and Joe Walcott, the ex-welterweight champion. Both men are in the best of condition.

Barry Calls Off Bout with Langford.

There will be no fight between Jim Barry, the Chicago heavyweight, and Sam Langford, the colored pugilist, before the Pacific A. C. of Los Angeles, Cal., on Jan. 14. The fighters met on the street in Los Angeles a few days ago and had hot words, which would have resulted in a free-for-all fight had not friends of both men interfered. Barry immediately called off the bout and says he will never fight another colored boxer.

Joe Thomas Is Now a Heavyweight.

Joe Thomas, the California pugilist, has taken on so much weight during the last twelve months that he is now compelled to fight in the heavyweight class. In just one year Thomas says he has taken on eighteen pounds, and on that account he is compelled to fight the big fellows. His first battle in that class will be with Jack "Twin" Sullivan for ten rounds, before the Pacific A. C., of Los Angeles, Cal., on Jan. 21.

Kelly and Neil to Fight, Jan. 18.

Eddie Kelly, the little feather-weight fighter of Buffalo, who fought at the local club stags over a year ago, and who has also made good in fights in Buffalo and other cities, has arrived at San Francisco in search of fights. He has been matched to meet Frankie Neil, the California boxer, for twenty-five rounds before the Olympic Club, on Saturday, Jan. 18. Kelly ought to make a good showing against Neil.

Willie Lewis to Box Sailor Brown.

Willie Lewis, who hit Pat O'Keefe, the Irish champion, so hard on the jaw, flooring him four times, and finally making Pat quit by staying down until he was counted out, has another match on his hands. He was signed last night to meet Sailor Brown, the husky South Brooklyn fighter, for six rounds in the main event at the stag to be held by the Dry Dock A. C. on Monday evening, Jan. 20.

Bernstein and Cross Matched.

Another match clinched last night by Joe Cain, matchmaker of the Dry Dock A. C., was one of six rounds between Leach Cross and Joe Bernstein, the east side boxers. They will meet at the next stag of the club, on Monday night. Bernstein has been out of the game for a long time, but he has been taking a hard rare training and is liable to make a great showing against Cross.

Doherty in Town Looking for Fights.

Jack Doherty, matchmaker of the Standard A. C., of Lymansville, R. I., is in town in search of fights. He is trying to arrange a fifteen-round bout between Amby McGarry and Billy Glover for the next show of the club, on Jan. 16. Glover's manager has accepted, and it is expected that McGarry will do likewise. Doherty will probably land a bout or his club between Willie Lewis and Frank Mantell before he goes back home. Lewis's manager has agreed on the terms.

Harry Lewis to Meet Mantell Jan. 23

The match between Harry Lewis, of Philadelphia, and Frank Mantell, of Pawtucket, R. I., has finally been arranged. They will engage in a ten-round bout before the Edgewood A. C., of New Haven, Conn., on the night of Jan. 23. Lewis has arrived at New Haven, and will train for the battle at a roadhouse just outside of the city. The winner will fight Mike ("Twin") Sullivan before the same club.

Buckley Has Tickets for Big Fight.

Local sporting men who are going to Boston to witness the twelve-round fight between Packey McFarland and Tommy Murphy on Jan. 14, had better make application to Jim Buckley for their tickets, for no tickets will be sold at the club-house on night of the contest. Buckley has 100 of the best seats for the fight having applied to the club for more than he is entitled to, in order that he may be able to accommodate the New Yorkers who are going to see it.

"Young Erne" to Tackle "Young Loughrey."

JackMcGuigan, matchmaker of the National A. C., has clinched a good fight for his show on Saturday night. He has secured "Young Erne" and "Young Loughrey," the Quaker City lightweight, to box for six rounds in the main event. Loughrey has been coming to the front rapidly as a result of his good fighting, and as his manager is of the opinion that he can beat Erne the match was speedily arranged.

Ketchell a Wonder.

Harry Foley, manager of Joe Thomas, the California middleweight, in a letter to Bob Deady, matchmaker of the Industrial A. C., of Philadelphia, says that Stanley Ketchell, the Montana fighter, who has beaten Thomas in two fights, is the best middleweight that has been seen in action in San Francisco in a long time. He further states that Ketchell will beat Hugo Kelly and Bill Papke if he ever meets them.

JAPANESE GIANT HAS FUN WITH PARTNERS

HITACHIYAMA, champion wrestler of Japan, has broken into vaudeville after the fashion approved by American and English fighters and men of muscle. This week Hitachiyama is exhibiting his three hundred and odd pounds of beef, brawn, etc., at Hammerstein's. He wrestles after the Japanese fashion with several of the members of the troupe he brought from Japan. Hitachiyama takes his art very seriously, and goes through all the ceremonies that are considered necessary to wrestling in championship matches at home.

The stage shook when he walked out to perform yesterday. It shook harder as Hitachiyama picked up his assistants and hurled them to the mat heels over head.

The wrestling is entirely different from our American style. It looks more like a boxing match between grizzly bears than anything else. The way Hitachiyama cuffs the others about would shock Commissioner Bingham if he happened to see the performance.

As soon as he gets through showing New Yorkers what made him famous the ponderous Jap is going to England, where he intends to challenge Hackenschmidt, Padouby, Zbysco and all the rest of the European giants to meet him—Japanese style.

BROWN A. A. STAG TO-NIGHT.

A good card of bouts has been arranged by Bill Brown for the regular weekly boxing stag of the Brown Gymnasium A. A., which will come off in its clubhouse in West Twenty-third street, near Sixth avenue, to-night. In the main bout Jack Dorman and Johnny Dohan, the local lightweights, will tussle for six rounds. This ought to be a corking fast bout, as both men are aggressive and clever two-handed fighters.
