BROKER THROWS HIMSELF BEFORE SUBWAY TRAIN

William Bourne Nevin, Pauperized by Late Market Slump, a Suicide.

WAS A NERVOUS WRECK.

Sold Prosperous Business in Northwest to Win Fortune in Wall Street.

William Bourne Nevin, a broker, who lost all his money in the recent market slump, committed suicide to-day by throwing himself under a Subway train at the Seventy-ninth street station.

His head and both legs were severed, but he was identified by a card in his pocket, and his watch.

Nevin had been a nervous wreck for a month. He had been forbidden by his physician to read the newspapers. It is believed that he disregarded this injunction and read in this morning's papers, or the afternoon papers of yesterday, of the Levy case at the Seventy-second street station.

He left the house of Mrs. E. L. Hatch, at No. 156 West Seventy-eighth street, where he boarded, at 9.30 o'clock, telling his wife that he was going to call on his doctor. Within ten minutes he jumped from the subway platform in front of a Lenox avenue local train.

After the card bearing his name had been found in one of his pockets, Lieut. Lonergan, of the West Sixty-eighth street station, went to the Seventy-eighth street address. It happened that Mrs. Nevin was in the hall when Lonergan appeared at the door. As soon as she saw him she divined that something had happened to her husband.

Despondent, Wife Says.

She questioned Lonergan, who admitted that Mr. Nevin had met with an accident. The distracted woman hurried to the station-house and there identified the watch and the card. She was not shown the body.

"I have no doubt," said Mrs. Nevin, "that my husband committed suicide. He had been ill with neurasthenia. His financial losses were more than he could bear.

"He was extremely despondent, but I did not expect that he would take his own life. I thought that he would easily rehabilitate himself as soon as he recovered his health."

Mrs. Nevin said that her husband was born in Montreal forty-five years ago. He was at one time, she said, a member of the Stock Exchange and of the brokerage firm of Houghtaling & Co., No. 5 Nassau street. He sold his seat and severed his connection with Houghtaling & Co., and went to the Pacific Northwest to engage in the real estate business with headquarters at Vancouver.

Sought a Fortune.

His business prospered but about eight months ago he sold out and returned to New York with his wife. He believed that the market conditions favored him in his designs to make a fortune in Wall street.

The October panic caught him unprepared, and in the subsequent market decline he was completely wiped out. He worried, his wife said, not so much about the loss of his money as about his losing his business grip. He feared he was too old to make another fortune.

W. R. Houghtaling, of Houghtaling & Co., said that Nevin was the board member of the firm for five years previous to 1902. He sold out then to go to British Columbia.

Nevin entered the station at 9.40 o'clock, just as the rush for downtown was slacking up. There were few persons on the platform. A Lenox avenue local was approaching, and Andrew Mulraney, of No. 174 West street, Brooklyn, was seated in the forward car looking out on the track ahead.

Saw Him Jump.

As the train drew into the station under slackened speed Mulraney saw a man jump from the platform to the track and fall across the rails.

The work of extricating the body from underneath the wheels was long and racking to the nerves of those engaged in it. With the permission of the Coroner the corpse was removed to the West Sixty-eighth street station.

Walsh, the motorman of the train that killed Nevin, and Carey, the conductor, were arrested some hours after the accident and locked up in the West Sixty-eighth street station.

CLEVELAND HEADQUARTERS FOR THE BLACK HAND.

CLEVELAND, Jan. 9.—That Cleveland is a centre of "Black Hand" operations is the declaration made by eighteen detectives from several important cities in the United States now here searching the city for members of that organization. Chief A. J. Humphrey, of Baltimore, who is trying to extradite John Scallata, wanted in Baltimore on a charge of dynamiting, has seven men with him and officers from New York, Buffalo, Syracuse, Harrisburg, Pittsburg and Wheeling are assisting the Baltimore official.

The wholesale manufacture of explosives, it is said, has been conducted in Cleveland by "Black Hand" men, and the police claim to have information showing that several hundred suspects have lately found asylum here. Through the Secret Service it has been learned that letters demanding large sums of money have been received by local wealthy Italians. Arrests are expected within a few days.

BERT COOPER WINS $1,250 FROM VESTA VICTORIA

Had Sued Her for Agent's Commission on Her $2,500 a Week Salary.

Bert Cooper, in his suit against Vesta Victoria, the singer, to recover an agent's commission on her $2,500 weekly salary, got a verdict in the City Court to-day for $1,250, the full amount of his claim. The case was tried before Judge Gray, and the jury deliberated for two hours before finding a verdict.

Henry J. Goldsmith, Miss Victoria's lawyer, in cross-examining Cooper asked:

"Didn't you draw a revolver and threaten to blow your brains out unless Miss Victoria married you?"

Cooper promptly admitted it, to the surprise of Goldsmith and the discomfiture of his own lawyer, a member of the House, Grossman & Vorhaus staff, who was vociferously objecting.

Justice Green sustained the objection, but too latae to shut off the admission for the ears of the jury.

Sues for His Commission.

Cooper's complaint sets forth that when Vesta Victoria first played in New York she got only $1,500 weekly salary. He contracted with her to act as her agent on a basis of 5 per cent. commission, and secured an engagement at $2,500. She played out that engagement and Cooper got his commission.

His claim in this suit is for commissions on her present engagement at the New York Theatre at $2,500 a week. It is a thirty-five-week engagement. She had played ten weeks and had refused to pay his commission, whereupon he brought suit through Morris H. Grossman for $1,200 commission, then accrued.

Cooper had testified that he first met Vesta Victoria in her dining-room at the Orpheum Theatre, Brooklyn, and had looked out for her interests snce.

Gave Him Many Presents.

"You were also assiduous in your attentions to Miss Victoria for her own sake, weren't you?" asked Mr. Goldsmith. "You called on her many times, both business and social calls?"

"I did."

"And she gave you many presents, did she not? A gold watch, for instance?"

"Yes, she did," said Cooper.

Cooper also admitted that his pretty client, smiling and blushing in a tailor-made costume of brown cloth, facing him in the court room, had given him diamond cuff links, a diamond scarfpin and sundry other baubles. S. had paid him, he said, $695.

"What did she pay you $695 for?" Mr. Goldsmith asked.

"Why, $500 of it was my percentage, $150 was for my services as her manager at Atlantic City, and the other $45 was the amount of a wine check I paid for her."

Never Employed Him, She Says.

Mrs. Victoria, who is Miss Lawrence in private life, took the stand, blushing like a peony. There was little of the accent or look of the disappointed maiden "waiting at the church" as she testified that Bert Cooper was never her agent or manager and never was employed by her in any capacity. She had been the recipient of offers of $1,000 increase in her salary, she said, from Percy H. Williams and from Klaw & Erlanger, and had finally accepted the offer of the latter.

"Mr. Bert Cooper had nothing to do with it," said the actress. "I gave him $695, the sum he mentions. I did not pay him. I gave it voluntarily because he insisted on it. He kept importuning me for money. He is a song writer, but had had no business and was hard up. I also gave him presents, but these were given merely through friendship."

The jury retired for deliberation, Miss Victoria going immediately to the New York Theatre.

TRICKED, SHE SAYS, IN A DIVORCE SUIT

Wife of Frederick J. Wheeler, Concert Tourist, Has the Case Reopened.

Steps were taken to-day to reopen the divorce action tried by depositions of stage people who were about to leave this jurisdiction with their respective companies, even the husband, Frederick J. Wheeler, being on the eve of sailing for a European concert tour.

On the evidence found in the depositions, which were undisputed, no defense being offered, Justice Davis was compelled to find that Henrietta A. Wheeler had admitted Martin Love in her apartment, No. 355 West One Hundred and Seventeenth street, on Jan. 24 last.

Ford Bennett, Hubert E. Eastman and her husband, Frederick J. Wheeler, had made depositions that they found Love and Mrs. Wheeler fast asleep. The witnesses swore that they awakened the couple before leaving.

Got Interlocutory Decree.

An interlocutory decree was granted and the news was sent to Wheeler by wireless to his ship, then a day out on the voyage to Europe.

But in affidavits presented to Justice Davis to-day by Abraham Snydecker, Mrs. Wheeler says:

"My husband and I were married in Trinity Church, Utica, Feb. 24, 1897, and we have one child—Ethel, eight years old. We had lived apart a long time and he has been sending $10 weekly allowance for the support of myself and Ethel. Last summer when he sued me for a divorce I was penniless and had no money to employ a lawyer to defend me, although I solemnly swear that I am innocent of the charges he preferred against me. I know Martin Love. He is an intimate friend of my husband. I have been trying to locate him, but cannot. I did not entertain him in my apartment.

"Shortly after the papers were served on me in the case I met my husband. I told him his charges were false and that he knew it. I told him I was trying to raise money to pay a lawyer. To this he replied: 'You are foolish. No lawyer will take a divorce case for less than $250, and you had better let me get a divorce, after which I will marry you again.

"I believed him and made no further efforts. Now I have learned my mistake, and I ask that the interlocutory decree granted to my husband be set aside and my default opened so that I may file an answer denying the charges against me and defending the case, for I have an undoubted defense."

Justice Davis promptly signed an order directing Wheeler to appear to-morrow before Justice Newburger and show why his wife should not be allowed to defend her good name.

HARRIMAN UNDER FIRE IN 30 DAYS

Government Action Against Railway Magnate Will Be Brought in Salt Lake City.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—It is now confidently expected at the Department of Justice that suit will be begun within the next thirty days against E. H. Harriman, involving the relations between the Union and Southern Pacific railroads.

At a conference held at the White House last May it was decided that the report of the Interstate Commerce Commission on this subject, when completed, should be referred to the Attorney-General for examination with a view to possible action against Mr. Harriman and these roads. There was some delay, however, in the completion of the report, and several matters intervened to prevent the bringing of the suit as then contemplated.

Messrs. Severance and Kellogg, who had been engaged as special counsel, made an independent investigation of the facts and questions involved in the controversy, and were ready to proceed with the suit when Mr. Severance was unexpectedly called to Europe. He is expected to return, however, in ten days or two weeks, when suit will be brought in Salt Lake City. It is understood that the procedure will be a suit in equity, in general analogy to the Northern Securities case.

ALFRED STEAD NOT DEAD.

LONDON, Jan. 9.—It was announced on Dec. 15 that Alfred Stead, son of W. T. Stead, editor of the Review of Reviews, was dead. This was an error, which has caused the family considerable inconvenience. Alfred Stead is alive, and is filling the position of Consul-General for Roumania in London. His brother William died suddenly last month, and the mistake arose through confusing the names of the two brothers.

READING, STRONG, AIDS OTHER STOCKS

Leaders Respond to Good Influence and Market Gains Are General.

Reading on strong buying jumped to 103, a gain of 3 1-8 points in the early market to-day, and the list, which had been uncertain and sluggish, immediately followed in the rise, good profits being the rule. Union Pacific and Northern Pacific each rose 1 1-4, Smelting 1 3-8 and other leaders large fractions. Trading became active on the advance.

The improved monetary conditions and continued buying of Reading, which extended its gain to 4 1-8, were the factors later in the session. The standard railroad stocks made a relatively better showing than the specialties. Minneapolis, St. Paul and Sault Ste. Marie improved 5, the common 1, Delaware and Hudson 4, Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis 3 1-2, United States Realty 2 1-2, Missouri Pacific and St. Paul 1 3-4, St. Louis and San Francisco second preferred 1 1-2, Illinois Central and American Smelting 1 3-8, Baltimore and Ohio and National Biscuit 1 1-4, and Pennsylvania, Canadian Pacific, Brooklyn Transit, American Cotton Oil and Pacific Mail 1.

Stocks continued strong during the entire session and closed at the highest of the day, the gains averaging 2 points. Reading in the final run ran its advance up to 5 1-8. The dealings were brisk.

The total sales of stock were 812,400 shares, and of bonds $3,054,000.

The author of the maxim, "Words were given us to conceal our thoughts," must at some time have worn tight shoes.

To obtain neatness or grace one does not have to squeeze into sizes too small, nor is it necessary to endure the pangs of burning, smarting soles—a panacea is provided in the Saks Cushion-Flex Shoe.

A soft, elastic and yielding inner cushion, upon which the foot rests, makes walking a pleasure. Yet with all the improvements tending to comfort, these shoes are smart and graceful.

INDEPENDENTS HIT BY TOBACCO TRUST

David Schulte Testifies that His Profits Have Fallen from 30 to 15 Per Cent.

Lawyer MacReynolds, chief counsel for the Government in the action brought against the American Tobacco Company for alleged violation of the Sherman act, to-day commenced the examination of independent tobacco dealers.

The first witness called was David H. Schulte, a retail dealer, whose corporation conducts a chain of stores in New York. Mr. Schulte testified that while he now had more stores than before the United Cigar Stores Company began business, and that his own business had prospered, his profit had decreased from 28 to 30 per cent., which it formerly was, to less than 15 per cent.

He said that he believed the policy of the United Cigar Stores Company was to get control of the retail business in this city, to the exclusion of the small dealers, many of whom, he declared, had been forced out of business. He testified that the number of tobacco jobbers had materially decreased since the formation of the Metropolitan Tobacco Company, a subsidiary corporation of the American Tobacco Company, and that there were only about fifteen independent jobbers now in business.

Albert H. Hillman, of the A. H. Hillman Company, No. 435 Pearl street, said that his business had gradually declined since the formation of the Metropolitan Tobacco Company and that there had been a general decrease in the number of tobacco jobbers in New York.

FIFTY-YEAR BONDS FOR CONSTRUCTION OF SUBWAYS

(Special to The Evening World.)

ALBANY, Jan. 9.—Another bill to facilitate the construction of subways was offered in the Assembly to-day by Mr. Lee, of Kings. The measure, which was handed to him by the Republican league of Brooklyn, allows the city to issue fifty-year bonds, irrespective of the debt limit, for the construction of subways and elevated railroads. The proposition was submitted to the Public Service Commissioners and is said to meet with their approval.

There is a further provision in the interest of dock construction. The city may issue twenty-year bonds, irrespective of the debt limit, for building docks.

WARDEN AT SNAKE HILL ENDS LIFE

Robert Ryan, Long Head of the Almshouse, Shoots Himself.

Robert Ryan, a sixty-three-year-old civil war veteran and a warden in the Hudson County Almshouse at Snake Hill, N. J., for twenty years, ended his life to-day by shooting himself in the left temple. Ryan had been despondent over illness for several weeks, and old wounds received in his wartime experience troubled him greatly.

His wife, also an employee of the almshouse, heard him leave the room early to-day, and a second later heard a shot. She found her husband dying in the passage outside their apartments.

It was at first reported that Ryan had been murdered, and the inmates of the almshouse were much excited. Dr. N. F. Feury, the almshouse physician, said that Ryan must have used his left hand to kill himself, as a wound in his right arm made it impossible for him to hold the pistol so as to fire a fatal shot. Ryan enlisted in a New Jersey regiment when he was fifteen years old and fought all through the war.

GIRLS IN PANIC RUSH FROM FIRE

Fire in the storeroom of the Michigan Furniture Company, at No. 175 East One Hundred and Twentieth street, to-day sent fifteen girls rushing to the street and caused a panic in the Harlem Prison nearby.

The fire was discovered by Miss Rose Mason, who sounded the alarm, and the girls employed in the upholstery department made a wild rush for the door. Several policemen, who were leaving the Harlem Court when the alarm was given quieted the frightened girls and ran into the building to see if all had escaped.

The smoke invaded the windows of the jail attached to the Harlem Court, and the few prisoners there began to make anxious inquiries when they heard the clang of fire bells. Warden Mallen unlocked all the cells and let the prisoners down the halls, assuring them that the door to the street would be opened the second there was real danger.

The firemen were kept busy half an hour before they conquered the flames.
