HELD IN TOMBS SIXTEEN MONTHS, THEN DISCHARGED

District-Attorney Finally Convinced That Pavoni Killed Man in Self-Defense.

Henrico Pavoni, who has been in the Tombs sixteen months under indictment for murder, was to-day discharged upon his own recognizance by Judge O'Sullivan in Part V. of General Sessions. The District-Attorney's office had taken only a year and four months to discover that Pavoni killed Annunziate Legato, a notorious Black Hand man, in self-defense.

The slayer was secretary of the commune of Saverato, in the province of Calabria, until he came to this country two years ago. He went to Pittsburg, N. Y., [illegible] and got a job as bartender in a saloon on the same street. Legato learned that the young man's parents in Italy were wealthy and began a systematic effort to blackmail him.

Pavoni received Black Hand letter after letter. Black Hand letter and promptly turned them over to Detective Joseph Petrosini. Finally he got a letter informing him that if he did not meet Legato at Mott and Grand streets on the night of Nov. 13, 1906, and give him $50 he would be murdered.

Petrosini advised Pavoni to meet Legato and invite him to the saloon upon the pretense that he would give him the money there. Pavoni acted on this advice, but as he came up to the Black Hand man Legato said: "You have been turning my letters over to the police, so I am going to kill you." Legato drew a pistol, but before he could use it Pavoni got his weapon out and killed him.

All of these facts were laid before Assistant District-Attorney Ely and corroborated. Nevertheless, he insisted that Pavoni should plead to manslaughter. Abraham Levy, the prisoner's counsel, would not listen to this and insisted on a trial or discharge. The lawyer won and Pavoni was set free.

ROMAN SENATORS PRISONERS UNTIL VERDICT IS REACHED.

ROME, Feb. 24.—Over one hundred Senators, composing the high court which is judging the case of Nunzio Nasi, the former Minister of Public Instruction, who is charged with embezzlement from the State Treasury, have been locked up in the Palazzo Madama, the meeting place of the Senate. The Palazzo has been cleared of all clerks and servants, excepting those strictly indispensable to the deliberations of the Senators. The members of the court are being kept in the strictest isolation, carabineers and police watching all the entrances to the building, not forgetting the roof, and they will not be allowed to leave until they have agreed upon a sentence.

The authorities have taken steps to preserve order in Sicily. Sig. Nasi is a Sicilian, where the popular feeling over his trial runs high.
