JEROME CLOSES HIS CASE; THAW TO TELL HIS STORY ON STAND

Anxious to Counteract the Effect of His Confession of Slaying of White Told in Court by People's Expert.

(Special to The Evening World.)

POUGHKEEPSIE, May 15.—With the testimony of Dr. Carlos B. MacDonald, District-Attorney Jerome this afternoon rested his case in the habeas corpus proceedings of Harry Thaw, on hearing before Supreme Court Justice Morschauser. Thaw's counsel proceeded with rebuttal, calling Dr. Valdemar Sillo, of New York, who never has been mentioned in connection with the case.

The day was one of sensations. Following the testimony of Dr. Amos T. Baker, Acting Superintendent of Matteawan, who swore Thaw had confessed to him the details of the murder of Stanford White, Thaw's lawyer announced that the prisoner would take the stand in his own behalf, possibly to-morrow. Thaw added that he was anxious to testify and show that he is sane.

Through Dr. Baker, the world now knows why Thaw killed White, and knows, too, his emotions and sensations while the murder was being done.

These, according to Dr. Baker, were the words of Thaw's confession:

"I'm not insane now and never was, except for half a minute before I shot him and half a minute afterward. I felt like a normal individual would feel on the edge of a high precipice.

"My wife was there. I was there and the man who wronged her was sitting there on the very building where he had done his evil deed and where he meant to do more evil deeds.

"I was just going away when I saw him. He sat there glaring at me, and I thought of all these things and I knew he deserved death. So I drew my revolver and shot him three times.

"It took a plea of insanity to save my life and my lawyers and doctors were very clever about it."

Thaw listened intently but without change of face, as Baker detailed the things which he says Thaw told him the day after he was landed at Matteawan following his acquittal for murder, and on succeeding days.

Alongside this disclosure, which came out unexpectedly and with startling suddenness, the rest of Dr. Baker's testimony almost shrank into insignificance, although much of it, taken by itself, would have been startling enough.

After being led up to the story of the killing of White Dr. Baker said:

"He told me he married Evelyn Nesbitt because he loved her and wanted to make something out of her. He said he knew Stanford White had wronged her and had wronged many other girls. I asked him if White was a pervert. He said 'Yes.' I said, 'Then White must have been a lunatic.' He became indignant and said, 'It's no such thing. I have never answered you sharply, Dr. Baker, but you ought to know that perversion is no more an indication of insanity that the act of taking a cordial after coffee at dinner.'

"On March 1 he told me that his thirty-day period of observation was

GATES TO SUE JOHN E. MADDEN FOR $25,000

Nothing to Do With the Race Tracks, but a Stock Operation.

"Bet-you-a-million" John W. Gates and his one-time friend, John E. Madden, the racehorse owner and trainer, have come to the parting of the ways, and the Wall Street plunger has instructed his lawyers to bring an action for the recovery of $25,000 against the turfman.

Mr. Gates was in a towering bad humor when he left a consultation with his lawyers, Byrne & Cutcheon, and was asked regarding the matter to-day. He was in his suite of offices on the eighth floor of No. 111 Broadway when an Evening World reporter questioned him:

"Is the report true, Mr. Gates, that John E. Madden failed to make good on a $5,000 obligation to you at the race track?"

"Nothing of the sort," exploded Mr. Gates. "That is nothing to do with any race track operation. But I am going to sue him—you can go broke on that."

"Why are you suing him?" he was asked.

"Because I bought some stocks for him and he laid down on me," he said. "That's all there is to it, and I won't tell any more till the whole thing comes out, and it will pretty soon."

The impending litigation is assumed to be an aftermath of the liquidation of the firm of "Charles G. Gates & Co.," the "house of twelve partners," which was so successfully carried out about a year before the panic. Madden, it is generally understood, was interested in this business and Gates carried certain stocks for him.

The two men a few months ago were considered to be close friends. They were together at the race track and in a corner of the Waldorf-Astoria which was mostly devoted to the Gates-Drake coterie. Madden was often seen, hale-fellow-well-met and apparently prominent in the close councils.

WHITE SOX GET SERIOUS SET-BACK

(Special to The Evening World.)

PHILADELPHIA, May 15.—Fielder Jones, manager of the Chicago American League Club, has been indefinitely suspended by President Ban Johnson.

Serious complications may be the outcome of Wednesday's game between the Athletics and Chicago as a result of Jones being benched by Umpire Tom Connolly, for the action taken by President Johnson may give the White Sox such a setback as to seriously menace their chances in this year's pennant race.

When Jiggs Donohue made the claim in Wednesday's game that Harry Davis left third base before Anderson had caught Schreck's fly, Manager Jones came in from centre field and took up the argument himself. Before the argument had proceeded a full minute Connolly ordered Jones out of the game. Just what Jones said no one in the grand stand could hear.

OUTSIDER IN SMALL FIELD WON FOR BOOKS

BY VINCENT TREANOR.

(Special to The Evening World.)

BELMONT PARK RACE TRACK, May 15.—"Robert Cooper is in the stable. Money is down and he can't lose." This and the like was heard throughout the betting ring before the Baychester Stake event was run here this afternoon. There were only three starters in the race—Golden Pearl, the favorite; Robert Cooper, the "good thing," and Question Mark, the 6 to 1 outsider.

The public went to Golden Pearl, the wise money went in on Robert Cooper, and what do you think? Why, Question Mark, the outsider, won, and won all the way. It is a shame to estimate what the books won. Put it down as about $50,000 and you won't be far out of the way. The talent was dejected after this race and the bookies jubilant.

It is an odd thing, but true, nevertheless, in seven out of ten three-horse races of this kind, the outsider wins. It was just such a day as that at Jamaica, with the same betting conditions when Halket, the outsider, beat out the two hot ones off the griddle Incognito and Frizette. In this race it was said that the favorite people thought so little of their chances that they played Incognito.

They Are Still Waiting.

In to-day's race Question Mark made all the pace, with Golden Pearl second and the good thing, Robert Cooper, floundering back third.

"Why he hasn't been let down yet, wait until they reach the stretch, etc.," was the comment of the Cooper backers. Everybody waited in vain. Still-

WEST SIDE RALL PARK, CHICAGO, May 15.—Chance's world's champions began a battle this afternoon to get away from the Pirates, who when the game started were only one game behind the Cubs.

The new lineup of the champions was tried out for the first time this afternoon, with Evers at the top of the list and Hoffman in the regular berth as centre fielder. Circus Solly got the glad mitt when he appeared at bat.

Sunny weather and warm glowed on the ball park and quite a crowd came out to see meek and lowly of the league perform as the Cubs. Brooklyn has many friends here, and the club is always sure of generous applause while others in the throng have a habit of cheering for any batsender that makes a good fight against the champions.

Patsy Donovan is trying to figure out just why his team is at the bottom. The Cubs think he has a pretty good club, strong in pitchers and reinforced by the speedy second base play of Pattee.

The Cubs, while they figure on four straight, will be satisfied with three.

BOY LAUGHS AT MOTHER'S TEARS WHEN SENTENCED

Two Companions, Pleading Guilty With Him, Jeer at Justice Goff.

Three hardened boys laughed and jeered at the tears of their mothers and the reproaches of Justice Goff in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court to-day when he sentenced them after they had pleaded guilty to manslaughter in the second degree.

The boys are John Bell, nineteen years old, John Ryan, seventeen years old, and Thomas Haber, nineteen years old, and all of them are ex-convicts.

On the night of Jan. 7 the boys entered a small laundry kept by Chin Lung in Thirtieth street, near Seventh Avenue. One of them opened a cash drawer and a bell which rang wakened Lung. He ran into the shop from his bedroom and Ryan shot him in the abdomen, killing him.

When Justice Goff sentenced Ryan to fifteen years in prison his old mother burst out weeping and the boy broke into a laugh, and continued to cackle as the woman was led from the courtroom. Haber was even more brazen when he was told he would have to serve not less than nine years and not more than fifteen.

"Thank you," he remarked to the Justice. "You may keep the change."

Bell received the same sentence and he smiled contemptuously.

(Special to The Evening World.)

CINCINNATI, May 15.—The Giants went up against the home team to-day for the first game of their series. That the Giants are by far the most popular team that visits Cincinnati is shown by the Sunday game—the only Sabbath day appearance this season of the Easterners on the local lot. Excursions are coming from cities more than 200 miles distant, and the demand for seats indicates the largest crowd that ever witnessed a Sunday game in this city.

McGraw was interviewed to-day on the subject of the National League race, and insisted that the Chicago Cubs would cease to be the champions before July 4.

"They have tougher propositions to tackle this year than they had in 1907," said McGraw, "and my team is one of them."
