LITTLE HEROINE SAVES CHILDREN FROM FLAMES

Margaret Euler, Thirteen, Rescues Six From Burning Apartment House.

"DIDN'T DO ANYTHING."

Braves Danger Repeatedly While Men Scramble for Fire-Escapes.

Mararet Euler, thirteen years old, of No. 302 East One Hundred and Third street, to-day went through fire and smoke and snatched six children from death.

No. 302 East One Hundred and Third street is one of the better class of tenements. Early to-day the fifteen families were aroused by loud cries of "Fire!" and men, women and children scrambled out of bed and into the hallways. The fire was in the apartment of Dr. Abraham Wolfson, on the second floor, and when the panic-stricken tenants reached that section of the house they were driven back by the volume of smoke and flash of flame.

In the backward rush to the fire-escapes the strong overcame the weak and women and children were knocked down and trampled upon. Before the firemen arrived the third floor hallway was clogged with half-suffocated human beings groping along, some on hands and knees, seeking a window or fire-escape.

Men Get to Escapes.

It was at this stage that little Margaret Euler took a hand. Standing on the rear fire-escape she saw strong men and women climb out and reach the next house in safety while inside, in the smoke-filled room, mothers were clinging to their children and being brushed aside.

Turning back into the room Margaret snatched an infant from its mother's arms and climbed out of the window and over into the adjoining house. Then she went back. She found the woman on the point of fainting, a second child clinging to her skirts, and screaming in terror. Taking up the baby Margaret pushed the woman to the window and out into the fresh air. She guided her across the fire escape—and left her with her two children.

"Didn't Do Anything."

Then Margaret went back again. Smoke was coming out of the window.

"I got down low like the firemen do to get the fresh air," she said afterward. "I heard a woman's voice and I found her in the hallway. She was helpless and had a baby and an older child. I just took the baby and pulled the others after me. She was all right when she got on the fire-escape."

Climbing the fire escape to the fourth floor, Margaret found another helpless woman with an infant and helped them out. She went back again and dragged an eight-year-old boy out, and was on her way back when the big firemen arrived and led the little heroine away.

The firemen kept the fire confined to the Wolfson apartment.

"I didn't do anything," said Margaret to an Evening World reporter. "I carried my brother George and my sister Lizzie down and then I helped the others out. That is all."

Margaret lives with her widowed mother, who has six children.

LEGISLATORS VOTE TO KILL NEW ORLEANS RACING.

BATON ROUGE, La., June 3.—At a meeting of the joint Judiciary Committee of the House of Representatives of the Louisiana Assembly, to-day, the bill prohibiting bookmaking and other forms of gambling at race-tracks received a favorable report. Out of thirty-two members present, twenty-seven declared themselves in favor of the measure.

The bill, if passed, will in effect abolish the long racing season which has marked the winter in New Orleans for many years.

100 TO 1 SHOT WINS THE GREAT ENGLISH DERBY

Signorinetta an Italian Horse. Captures Rich Prize—Americans Not In It.

WAS AN EASY WINNER.

Belmont's Norman III., the Favorite, and Vanderbilt's Seasick II. Away Out.

LONDON, June 3.—A rank outsider, Signorinetta, owned by E. Ginistrelli, and quoted in the betting at 100 to 1 against, to-day defeated all the American, British and French cracks and captured the Derby Stakes, valued at 6,500 sovereigns, and the greatest prize of the turf world.

The Italian horse simply cantered home from the hot favorites by two lengths. A neck only divided the second horse, the Duke of Portland's Primer, and the third, Barclay Walker's Llangwm.

Signorinetta's time was 2 minutes 39 4-5 seconds.

Mercutio led to the mile post, when August Belmont's Norman III. drew to the front. The American horse, however, going down the hill, was overhauled by Mountain Apple, ridden by Lyne, an American jockey. Lyne held the lead, with Signorinetta, Primer and Llangwm, ridden by Maher, in close attendance until the quarter mile home, when Signorinetta, the only filly in the race, came on with a rush and romped home the easiest of winners. Mountain Apple was fourth.

It is probable that Signorinetta did not carry more than $25 of the public's money, and her victory was received with blank dismay. The quoted price on her, 100 to 1 against, was purely nominal; the layers would have given any price asked. Except from the bookmakers, who had reaped perhaps the richest harvest of their lives, there was not a cheer to proclaim the victory of the Italian entry.

Belmont's Horse Favorite.

The race was made particularly interesting from the American point of view by the fact that for the first time in the history of the race, an American colt, Norman III., owned by August Belmont, of New York, by Octagon—Nineveh, was the favorite, while William E. Vanderbilt's French-bred colt Seasick II., by Elk—Saf Saf, also occupied a very good position in the betting.

Mr. Belmont's Norman III. was fresh from a victory at Newmarket, where he won the 2,000 Guineas Stakes from King Edward's Perrier, and Mr. Vanderbilt's Seasick II. had just come over to England from France, where he captured the French Derby.

In addition to the American horses entered two American jockeys, Maher and Lyne, had mounts in the race. Maher, who already has three Derby wins to his credit, rode Llangwm, and Lyne was up on Mountain Apple, owned by J. Buchanan.

Throng of Americans.

The oldest Derby goers say there never was such a perfect day or such a great crowd at Epsom Downs. It is certain that never in recent years has so much enthusiasm been evinced. From early morning all the roads leading to the Downs had been crowded with vehicles. So thick were they, indeed, that on the main thoroughfares motor cars and carriages had to move at a snail's pace.

Included in the crowd was a very numerous attendance of Americans, and the Stars and Stripes flew from many coaches and automobiles.

The royal party arrived before the first race was run. Richard Croker also was one of the early arrivals. He was followed closely by the Vanderbilts and the Belmonts, and as the afternoon advanced the crowds increased until, between the races, a black compact mass covered the course from Tattenham Corner down to and beyond the Paddock.

A. G. Vanderbilt was among the late arrivals, coming down on his famous coach with a party of friends. The coaching stand was largely monopolized by Americans. The younger generation was represented by a party of young girls bedecked with the national colors and armed with horns, ready to proclaim the victory of anything American, horse or jockey.

Vanderbilt and Belmont Talk.

Mr. Vanderbilt, the owner of Seasick II., was asked for his opinion of the race, and in reply said he had done his best and could do no more. Mr. Belmont, owner of Norman III., said he had nothing to say. "The public has seen as much of the race as I have," he added.

After all the expectations Maher was the only American to figure prominently in the Derby to-day, which, from the spectacular point of view, was the greatest Derby for years.

Signorinetta is the first filly to win the Blue Ribbon since the victory of Shotover in 1882. Seasick II. finished sixth, King Edward's Perrier thirteenth, Norman III. fifteenth, and Azote, the milk-fed horse, seventeenth.

MILLIONAIRE'S DAUGHTER MYSTERIOUSLY SHOT.

PITTSBURG, June 3.—Amanda Wettengel, daughter of Harry C. Wettengel, a millionaire coal operator, was mysteriously shot last evening while seated in a lawn swing at the home of J. T. Gormley, her brother-in-law, on the Steubenville Pike, Chartiers Township. The bullet, which came from a rifle, penetrated her left leg above the knee. Her condition is said to be dangerous.

The shooting was not made public until to-day. A rigid investigation as to whether the bullet was a stray one or fired by an assassin is being conducted.

TELLER WHO SHOT HIMSELF WAS SHORT $10,000

ried examination of the paying teller's accounts was made after the suicide, by Mr. Frew, who reported to the main office of the bank at No. 13 William street, that his investigation did not reveal a penny shortage. He explained, however, that it would be necessary to make a more searching examination to prove conclusively that the paying teller's accounts were all straight.

After the man's death in Bellevue two letters were found in his clothing, one addressed to his wife and the other to Manager Frew. The wife got to the hospital ten minutes after her husband died and swooned at the news. When restored the letter was given to her and she went away without opening it. Later relatives would not allow her to be interviewed. The letter for Mr. Frew was held at the hospital until he called for it. Later the Coroner made it public.

Shortly after the manager heard the suicide had left a letter for him President Nash sent two expert accountants to the branch to go over the dead man's books. Mr. Nash said that he had always had perfect confidence in Muir.

He had been married eight years and was a devoted husband and father. His associates in the bank declare that his habits were exemplary. His salary was $1,500 a year. Only a week ago Muir was promoted from the post of receiving teller to paying teller. He seemed greatly elated over the promotion, and when he left his wife to go down to the bank this morning he appeared to be in his usual fine spirits.

Before he left the bank last night he balanced his money to a dollar, and when the branch opened this morning he had all his books and balances and cash in perfect order. He had been at his window an hour and 15 minutes when he went into Manager Frew and said he was going down stairs to look through the waste baskets taken down on May 28 and May 29. He said he would be gone about twenty minutes.

Took the Bank's Revolver.

Returning to his cage, he got the bank's revolver and hid it under his coat. A clerk remembered afterward that he had seen Muir fumbling in the drawer where the weapon was kept.

When he got down to the basement he ran into Townsend Bragan, the janitor. He asked Bragan to go upstairs and get some discarded papers that were laid away in the manager's office. There was nothing singular in the young man's manner, and the janitor went upstairs. He waited fifteen minutes before he could get in Mr. Frew's room, and then returned to the cellar with the papers.

No one had heard the report of the revolver, and when Bragan reached the foot of the stairs he stumbled over the unconscious body of the paying teller. There was a wound in his right temple, and the revolver lay a few feet from where he had fallen. The janitor rushed upstairs and Mr. Frew telephoned to the West Forty-seventh street station.

There was a Dr. McAdam, a depositor, at the paying teller's window when the tragedy was discovered, and he went down to the basement to do what he could for the wounded man.

Detectives Barren and Glynn came from the West Forty-seventh street station and called an ambulance from Roosevelt Hospital. Then Glynn placed the dying man under arrest. Ambulance Surgeon Swan rushed Muir to his hospital, but when he arrived there and announced that it was a police case he was ordered to turn about and drive down to Bellevue.

Long Ambulance Journey.

Meanwhile no effort was made to save the paying teller's life, and undoubtedly the shock of the long ambulance journey hastened his end. Five minutes after he had been carried into the prison ward at Bellevue he died.

Meanwhile Mr. Frew had telephoned to Mrs. Muir at the Florence apartment-house, where she was dressing her two little girls, one four years old and the other two, to go out. The manager told her Muir had met with an accident, and asked her to hurry down to Roosevelt Hospital. Calling in a neighbor to look after the children, she hastened to the hospital, arriving there a few minutes after her husband had been driven away. When she got to Bellevue he was dead.

Manager Frew said this afternoon:

Baffled by the Tragedy.

"I was completely baffled by this tragedy. Muir came to work here when he was a boy of seventeen. This branch of the Corn Exchange was then the Home Bank. From a small clerkship he worked himself up to be receiving teller, and then a week ago he was promoted to paying teller.

"His manner of living, so far as we could learn, was above reproach. He did not drink and had no bad habits. He always arrived at the bank fifteen or twenty minutes before his regular time, and in no sense could he be called a clerk watcher.

At the main office of the bank in William street Vice-President Walter E. Drew said:

"When I heard of the attempt of Walter Muir to end his life I was greatly amazed. I cannot account for it. He was a most popular man and trusted absolutely by the officials of the institution."

His Home Life Happy.

Neighbors and intimate friends of the paying teller informed an Evening World reporter to-day that no home could be happier than that of the Muirs. The young man's devotion to his wife and children had even attracted attention, as he never seemed to be out of their company.

HEAD ACHED FOR OVER TWO YEARS WITHOUT A STOP

Experience Little Short of Marvellous, Said Mrs. Rodman, Tuesday.

Several statements were given for publication Tuesday afternoon in connection with the preparation now being introduced in New York by L. T. Cooper at the Riker store, Broadway and Ninth street.

Cooper has been meeting the public at this store for some time. He claims that stomach trouble is responsible for the poor health of modern people, and crowds have been flocking to talk with him. Within the past few days he has put his medicine on sale at all druggists in New York, although he still continues to meet the public at the Riker store.

A sample of the statements is as follows—Mrs. Robert Rodman, of 355 West Forty-fifth street, said: 'For over two years I have had headache all the time, have had gas on the stomach whenever I ate and no food agreed with me or gave me any strength. I have been under constant treatment by physicians, who told me that I had catarrh of the stomach and gastritis, but did not help me in the least.

"I heard of this Cooper's New Discovery from many people, but refused to try it for some time, as I had lost all faith in any medicine to help me. Finally I was persuaded into trying it and came downtown and talked with one of Mr. Cooper's men, who sold me the medicine.

"I took it for about a week before I noticed any improvement. Then my headaches began to grow less violent. They gradually left me, and I have not had a sign of headache for the past two weeks. My appetite has increased tremendously, and my food does not disagree with me any more, as I can eat whatever I like with no gas or indigestion afterward. I am stronger, sleep better and feel better in every way. I did not imagine there was a medicine on earth that could bring back my health the way this has done. It is little short of marvellous and better than I ever hoped when I started to take it."

ROOSEVELT NAMES IOWA MAN FOR NEW YORK JOB.

WASHINGTON, June 3.—The President to-day appointed Roy H. Chamberlain, an attorney-at-law of this city, to be General Appraiser of Merchandise at New York.

CHARGED WITH PUSHING BOY FROM FIRE-ESCAPE.

Charged with pushing an eight-year-old boy from a fire escape eighteen feet to the ground, seriously injuring him, Mrs. Selma Shenkman, of No. 83 Monroe street, was held in $1,000 bail to-day for examination on June 15 by Magistrate Steinert in the Essex Market Court. The boy, Cornelius Fredericks, is now in Gouverneur Hospital with seven stitches in his chin. He lives at No. 605 Water street.

The woman had nothing to say. Detective Donnelly, of the Madison street station, said she had told him that the boy was annoying her. Seven-year-old Thomas Sharkey, of No. 605 Water street, appeared against Mrs. Shenkman. The lad said that she pushed him from the fire escape also, but he slid down a ladder.

ROOSEVELT HAS PLANNED TO HALT STAMPEDE FOR HIM

PITTSBURG, June 3.—The automobile tour of Speaker Cannon and party has been abandoned. Speaker Cannon and Congressman Landis go West to-night over the Pennsylvania Railroad. Senator Hemenway left here last night.

In refusing to discuss politics Speaker Cannon said:

"I don't wish to discuss politics. However, I am willing to stand on the record of the last Congress. I have had a fine trip and only wish I could continue it in an automobile clear home, but I have some telegrams calling me home, and to save time I shall have to take the train here."

Congressman Landis, referring to a report that the Chicago convention would result in a stampede in favor of President Roosevelt, said:

"I have been assured by men close to President Roosevelt that the President has taken measures to forestall the stampeding of the convention to him. I know that the President does not want the nomination and will not accept it. Of course if the convention should nominate him and then adjourn he would have to take it."

TO BREAK $2,000,000 WILL OF BALTIMORE LEADER.

BALTIMORE, June 3.—A contest over the $2,000,000 estate left by Thomas N. Lanahan, the aged lawyer and politician, who died on May 17 last, was begun in the Orphans' Court to-day. Edward J. Lanahan, a nephew of the dead lawyer, filed a caveat to the will, which at the time it was filed was said to have been drawn by Mr. Lanahan himself, alleging that undue influence was practised upon his uncle, and also that he was of unsound mind at the time the will was executed.

Thomas M. Lanahan was the political adviser of the late Senator A. P. Gorman, the late I. Freeman Rasin and other leaders of the Democratic party in the city and State. He left no immediate family.

MANY VICTIMS IN TEXAS TOWNS HIT BY TORNADO

Houses Destroyed by Wind Storm and Cloud-Burst—Communication Cut Off.

WICHITA FALLS, Tex., June 3.—Scores of persons are believed to have been killed or seriously injured in a tornado, accompanied by a cloudburst, that swept over this section of Texas to-day. The storm area reached to Vernon.

Many houses have been blown down and communication has been cut off in all directions.

SYRIAN WEDDING AT KALIL'S.

Editor of Al Hoda Marries Belle of the Colony.

With the beautiful ceremonies of the Maronite Church a Syrian couple were united in marriage last night at Kalil's restaurant. Helen Abu Kalil, whose brunette beauty makes her the belle of the Syrian coterie on the Heights, Brooklyn, wedded Salloum Mokarzel, assistant editor of Al Hoda, the New York Syrian daily paper.

As the bride entered the restaurant of which her brothers Gabriel and Shikari are the proprietors, "Open Thy Windows, Love" was chanted by a quartette. Bishop Stephan, of the Maronite Church, Brooklyn, clad in lace chasuble and gold-embroidered stole first blessed holy water and sprinkled all present. After reading the wedding service he placed a gold ring on the little fingers of the right hands of the couple, then took two garlands of white roses and crowned both bride and bridegroom. The young couple, wearing the symbol of youth and purity, each placed a right hand in the hand of the Bishop, who pronounced them man and wife. Then he removed the crowns. The honeymoon will be spent at Niagara.

SEERESS, HEAD OF CULT, IS STRUCK BY AN AUTO.

Mme. Adele Rique Has a Wrenched Back and Her Nerves Are Badly Shattered.

Mme. Adele Marie Rique, the President of the Self-Improvement Club, is in bed in her apartment in the Hotel Wroxeter to-day with a wrenched back and a set of shattered nerves as the result of being knocked down by an automobile last night.

Mme. Rique was on her way to the Hotel Manhattan, and was crossing Broadway at Forty-fifth street, at 6.30 o'clock, when the machine came up behind and struck her. The driver of the car did not stop.

Mme. Rique is the seeress who discovered the secret of locating one's affinity by a combination of colors, and she has established a cult. Clad in a classic robe embroidered with cabalistic characters, she lectures once a week to seekers after the truth.

MRS. LOCKWOOD ASKS FOR ABSOLUTE DIVORCE.

Wants Her Three Children But Doesn't Ask for Alimony.

An interlocutory decree of absolute divorce was asked for to-day by Ralph G. Miller on behalf of Mrs. Isabelle Lockwood from Bernoni Lockwood, jr., on the report and recommendation of ex-Justice Edward W. Hatch, referee. All the papers were handed up to Justice Greenbaum, who reserved decision.

The papers will not be open to scrutiny, but it is said that Mrs. Lockwood's request for a decree is based on evidence that her husband visited Philadelphia last April with a woman and that they registered as man and wife at the Continental Hotel.

Young Lockwood is the son of Benoni Lockwood, prominent in insurance circles and vice-president of the Board of Fire Underwriters. His marriage took place ten years ago and the couple have three children, the eldest nine years old. The custody of the children is asked for by Mrs. Lockwood. She asks for no alimony.

The break in the family occurred last December. Mr. Lockwood going to the Hotel Iroquois, in West Forty-fourth street, while Mrs. Lockwood and the children remained in the family mansion at No. 137 East Seventy-ninth street.

Mrs. Lockwod is a younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George T. Bonner, of No. 18 East Seventy-fifth street. Mr. Lockwood is a lawyer, with offices at No. 2 Rector street.

THREATENED BY A GANG.

Saloon-Keeper Told That He Must Not Prosecute Fake Wardman.

Robert R. Mulvey, who has a saloon at No. 654 Liberty avenue, East New York, said to-day he had been threatened by several members of the late "Kid" Twist's gang if he prosecuted a man arrested for impersonating an officer.

John Morgan, of Sumner avenue, Brooklyn, is the name the prisoner gives. Mulvey says he was introduced as "Wardman Daly, of the Liberty avenue station," and that he paid him $5 on a promise of "protection."

Shapdale closed with a rush under a hard drive and won going away at the end. Waponoca had plenty of speed, but stopped very suddenly at the end. Racquet held on well. Star Thistle quit.

BIDS ON BIG SIPHON.

The Board of Water Supply, which opened bids yesterday for the construction of the Rondout Siphon of the Catskill Aqueduct, has tabulated the proposals.

S. Pearson & Son, the English firm, which bid lowest on a majority of the seventy items in the competition, is highest of the five bidders. The lowest bid is that of the T. A. Gillespie Company, $6,290,803. The other bids were: Bradley Contracting Company, $6,414,336; MacArthur Brothers Company, $6,419,173; Degnon Contracting Company, $6,579,410; S. Pearson & Son, $6,787,111.

The lowest bid is nearly a million dollars above the estimate of the board's engineers as to the cost of the work. They estimated
