YPRES CHANCES OF BEING CITY SPOILED BY THE WAR

BEATEN BACK FROM ZENITH ATTAINED IN 1300 BY MANY CONFLICTS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—Ypres, beaten back from the zenith which it attained around the year 1300, ever dropping lower in the scale of importance, is today apparently facing the last few scenes of its tragic decline. For weeks Ypres has figured prominently in the war dispatches, as Germans and Allies have rolled to alternate destructive waves over its site, says a statement issued by the National Geographic Society today.

"Ypres was formerly the capital of West Flanders. It is situated 25 miles south of Ostend, on the Yperlee. The town lies in the midst of a fruitful region, which is drained, swamp and marsh land. Since the flooding of the country as a war measure, the swamp land is today as it was in the Middle Ages.

"In the 14th century, Ypres rivaled Bruges and Ghent. It was one of Europe's great cloth-weaving centers, a city of vast wealth, and one known everywhere through the excellence and popularity of its products. In its prime, it was a city of 200,000. Prior to the war, its population numbered 17,000.

"The cloth-making industry of Ypres dates back to 1013. As this industry grew, and skilled weavers, dyers and finishers were gathered to the city, Ypres came to occupy in the woolen and mixed-fabric world much the same place that, today, Nottingham takes for the manufacture of lace curtains or Lyons for the manufacture of silk. It is said that by the first quarter of the 15th century, Ypres had 4,002 looms going constantly.

"On July 11, 1302, it was their 'Sicilian' contingent that turned victory to the honors of the Flemings in their battle with the French under the walls of Courtrai, 12 miles east of Ypres. The Flemish army numbered 20,000 citizens of Ghent, Bruges, and Ypres, and the French, 7,000 knights and 40,000 foot soldiers.

"Perhaps popular things the fearful plague of 1347, and then a wild incursion of wars blighted the hopes of Ypres, sapped its strength, destroyed its industry, killed off and scared away its people, ruined its homes, and, finally, broke its spirit. The re-establishment of an independent Belgium found it hopelessly beaten in the struggle for prosperity and prestige.

"Coins, linen and woolen cloths and laces are still manufactured—or were before the war—in Ypres, but it is now just one of a multitude of textile towns, and the world today will take little notice of the manner of its passing."

Mothers Tell of Mother's Friend

Experience is or should be our best teacher. Women who have obeyed the highest and noblest of all sacrifices, the struggle for the life of others, should have a better idea of helpful influence than those who theorize from observation.

At any rate when a prospective grandmother urges her daughter to do as she did—to use "Mother's Friend," there is ample reason to believe it the right kind of advice.

"Mother's Friend" is an external application for expectant mothers. Its purpose is to furnish pliancy to the muscles, to take away the strain on the cords and ligaments, to relieve the tension of nerves and tendons so apt to provoke or aggravate nausea, morning sickness, twinges of the limbs and so on.

Although in the nature of things a woman would use "Mother's Friend" but not rarely, yet so effective has it been found that this scientific remedy is on sale in most drug stores throughout the United States. It is now prepared by Bradfield Regulator Co., 20 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., and advertised by its users for forty years. This is a fine record for such a special remedy and the grateful letters received today are just as appreciative as were those of years ago, notwithstanding that methods are supposed to have greatly advanced. Ask at the drug store for a bottle of "Mother's Friend." It is worth while.

What is said herein of "Mother's Friend" is but a repetition of the thanks expressed by thousands of happy women who have successfully used this massage external application.
