CARE OF HORSES.

1. Never allow any one to tease or tickle your horses in the stable. The animal only feels the torment and does not understand the joke. Vicious habits are thus easily brought on.

2. Never beat the horse when in the stable. Nothing so soon makes him permanently vicious.

3. Let the horse's litter be dry and clean underneath as well as on the top. Standing on hot fermented manure makes the hoofs soft and brings on lameness.

4. Change the litter partially in some parts, and entirely in others every morning, and brush out and clean the stall throughly.

5. To procure a good coat on your horse, use plenty of rubbing and brushing. Plenty of "elbow grease" opens the pores, softens the skin, and promotes the animal's general health.

6. Never clean a horse in his stable. The dust fouls the crib and makes him loathe his food.

7. Use the curry-comb lightly. When used roughtly it is a source of great pain.

8. Let the heels be well brushed out every night. Dirt, if allowed to cake in, causes grease and sore heels.

9. Whenever a horse is washed, never leave him till he is rubbed quite dry. He will probably get a chill if neglected.

10. When a horse comes off a journey, the first thing is to walk him about till he is cool if he is brought in hot. This prevents his taking cold.

11. The next thing is to groom him quite dry, first with a wisp of straw and then with a brush. This removes dust, dirt and sweat, and allows time for the stomach to recover itself and the appetite to return.

12. Also let his legs be well rubbed by the hand. Nothing so soon removes a strain. It also detects thorns or splinters, soothes the animal, and enables him to feed comfortably.

13. Let the horse have some exercise every day. Otherwise he will be liable to fever or bad feet.

14. Let your horse stand loose, if possible, without being tied up to the manger. Pain and weariness from a confined position induces bad habits, and cause swollen feet and others disorders.

15. Look often at the animal's feet and legs. Disease or wounds in those parts, if at all neglected, soon become dangerous.

16. Every night look and see if there is any stone between the hoof and the shoe. Standing on it all night, the horse will be lame next morning.

17. If the horse remains in the stable, his feet must be "stopped." Heat and dryness cause cracked feet and lameness.

18. The feet should not be "stopped" oftener than twice in the week. It will make the hoofs soft, and bring on corns.

19. Do not urge the animal to drink water which he refuses. It is probably hard and unwholesome.

20. Never allow drugs to be administered to your horses without your knowledge. They are not needed to keep the animal in health, and may do the greatest and most sudden mischief.—Whip and spur.

THE HENS FOR FARMER.

If a farmer keeps hens chiefly for the purpose of supplying his own table with meat and eggs, he will do well to raise birds that belong to one of the large breeds. The choice will lie between the Brahmas, the Cochins, and the Plymouth Rocks. There are no objections to any of these breeds. The light Brahmas have been most favorably known for over thirty years, and for general merit, they are not surpassed by any of the newer breeds. The light Brahma fowl meets every requirement of the farmer. It is a very handsome bird, and is an ornament to the premises. It is a contented, home-loving bird, not inclined to wander about and get into mischief. It is a large bird, and furnishes a fine roast. If its flesh is not quite as tender or delicious as that of some of the French fowls, it is at least very good. A Brahma fowl is easily dressed, and when plucked presents a fine appearance. The eggs of the Brahma are large and well formed. Though they bring no more in the market than small eggs, they are of much greater value, as their size and weight indicate. Brahma hens of suitable age, if they have warm quarters, will lay during the entire winter. They are patient sitters and good mothers. They are not as greatly addicted to scratching and making havoc in the garden as fowls belonging to the smaller and more active breeds. Being heavy, they never attempt to make long flights. They can, if it is desired, be kept in an ordinary farm-yard without making any additions to the fence. They do not suffer when kept in partial confinement. They will thrive, gain in weight, and produce eggs when kept in a yard or building, provided they are supplied with suitable food, water, and materials for forming the shells of eggs.

If Brahma fowls are not the favorites of breeders, the cause may be found in the circumstance that they are no longer novelties. Breeders, like nurserymen, prefer to raise and sell new things. They can obtain higher prices for them, as they are desired by amateurs, while they have little competition. Light Brahma fowls are now well distributed throughout the country. Birds of pure strains or their eggs can be obtained at comparatively low prices. It is to the advantage of farmers who have nothing but mongrels on their places to obtain a supply of them. Many farmers think that they can not afford to keep animals of pure blood. They acknowledge their superior value, but they have not the money to purchase them. Very few farmers are so short of means that they can not raise money to pay for a sitting of eggs. It takes several years to raise a flock of improved sheep or a herd of pedigree cattle. But a flock of fowls of pure blood can be secured in one year at the expense of a few dollars. These fowls will be conducive to pleasure as well as profit. It will cost no more to keep them than an equal number of common fowls, whose flesh and eggs are generally inferior. The farmer in any town who makes the first start in keeping superior fowls can generally make money in selling birds or their eggs to the neighbors. If one farmer makes a new departure in keeping fowls his neighbors generally follow his example, and in most cases they will purchase breeding stock from him. Eggs of light Brahma hens obtained very early in the season will produce chickens that will lay eggs during the next winter. Few farmers who have kept superior fowls a few years are dissatisfied with the result or are willing afterwards to raise common barnyard chickeps.—Chicago Times.

SOUTHERN DAIRYING.

BY "STOCKMAN."

It has been an opinion widely held, and a very natural one, that dairying would soon assume considerable prominence among the industries of the South, since stock raising advances from beef growing to dairying as a county grows older and more thickly settled. The growth of Southern dairying was rendered more probable by the fact that the South is well adapted to this industry. Beef animals will endure a more rigorous climate than dairy animals, and be profitable. Milch cows are sensitive to cold, and severe weather has a marked effect upon the flow of milk. Also, dairying requires more green food than beef growing. Beef animals should have green food, and yet beef is well made on dry food, and fat beef is best made largely on grain with hay. On the other hand the grains are not good food for dairy cattle. Nothing produces milk like green food, and the highly successful dairyman must be prepared to feed green food at all seasons of the year. The climate of the South would make it comparatively easy to provide this, and at a comparatively small cost. Hence, it has been thought that dairying would prove more profitabje in the South than in the North. Because of this the Southern people have been urged to take up dairying; and the inquiries they make concerning methods and dairy cattle are evidence that they are disposed to listen to the recommendations made to them. But the developments made in the manufacture and sale of oleomargarine make it questionable if it would be wise policy for any section to go largely into dairying. It is never wise to bind ourselves to facts no matter how disagreeable they may be. Though the manufacture of bogus butter ought not to be, this does not in the least lessen its manufacture and sale, and in quantities that are already enormously large. It is all well enough to discuss ways and means for stopping the manufacture of bogus butter; but while this discussion is going on we can not wisely ignore the fact that this manufacture is greatly lowering the price of and demand for real butter. The manufacturers of daily supplies report their trade very dull, and assign as a reason the low price of dairy products. And unless the manufacture of bogus butter is stopped, and it will require a very stringent law backed by a strong public sentiment to stop it, while those already engaged in dairying may find it better to continue in this industry than to drop it, people should adopt a decidedly conservative policy about going into it; and before large expenditures for dairy supplies and cattle can be recommended, the course of oleomargarine and the attitude of the public towards its manufacture and sale must be further developed.—Texas Farm and Ranch.

Burning a Horse's Mouth for Lampas.

Professor Charles P. Lyman, Veterinary Surgeon to Howard University, expresses his opinion that there does not exist, in connection with the condition called lampas in horses, the slightest necessity for the use of the hot iron. Unfortunately there still exists "in the country" and among a certain class of would-be wise ones, an old but erroneous idea that the swelling caused by certain irritations of dentition, and occurring upon the roof of a horse's mouth and behind the front teeth, are in themselves a diseased condition with which there is an augmentation of the substance of the part which can only be healed by using a red-hot iron made something in the shape of a wide chaw, and with it actually burning and clawing out a portion of the substance of this part. The facts are that the swelling occurs much as do other swellings upon the body, i. e., as a result of irritation in a part thus it at first a flow of blood to it, which causes heat and redness following this, as nature's relief for the accompanying pain, certain of the structures give way and there is an outpouring of serum into the part that causes swelling of it. Realizing this, and taking a hint from nature, the really knowing ones make with a small sharp blade, upon the swollen gum, a few long strokes, this (scarification) just sufficient to still further relieve the pressure upon the blood vessels of the parts and so quiet the throbbing ache. In a little while the pain ceases, the swelling subsides, and the animal returns to his food. As for the rationale of the treatment with the red-hot iron claw, it is just as necessary that the painful session gone so frequently seen on our babies' mouths at the time of active dentition be removed from them in this way, as it is that the similar condition in a horse's mouth should be so relieved. Still, I imagine, if this operation, "which would not hurt much," were proposed for his child, the mind of one, seven of the benighted "horse operators" would recoil from the simple performance.

Corn for Green Fodder.

Corn, taking all things into consideration, is the most profitable crop for green fodder, and sweet corn is the most palatable and nutritious on account of the larger quantity of soluble saccharine matter in it. Corn has also the advantage of a rapid growth, and two crops may be grown in one season by planting an early kind which matures in two months. Narragansett sweet corn is the best variety for this purpose, and if planted in May is ready for use in July, and the second planting comes in September. Evergreen sweet corn planted in July is ready for use in October, and gives about double the yield of the smaller kinds. Branching Durra is a species of millet, and while it is an excellent crop for the South it is not equal in value to sweet corn for the North, East, and West.

Courtesy at Home.

One is forcibly reminded, in going from place to place, how small and seemingly trivial often are the things which go to make or mar the comfort and peace at home. In some house-holds there is a genuine good will and kindness which only works out half its mission, for the reason that it does not express itself in little courtesies of speech and action. These are more important than some of our busy men and women may realize. The ready "thank you," "if you please," &c., at table and elsewhere, the quiet "excuse me" when obliged to pass directly before or inconveniently near another; the loving "good night" and cheery "good morning," although little things, are helps in making a happy home. Courtesy is but the ready overflow of kindness and good-will to all, and is therefore but a natural expression which costs nothing, but which often cheers an aching heart, and which never fails to make home brighter and more attractive to old and young.

Raised On A Farm.—"Born and raised on a farm." A boy should thank God for being so fortunate as to be born and raised on a farm. There is no place on this green earth so well adapted to perfectly develop the mind, muscle and manhood as a farm. There a boy has the purest air, the freshest and healthiest food, plenty of rare-stricted exercise, the brightest sunshine and the soundest sleep—the very conditions necessary for the highest development. Nine-tenths of all the men who have made their mark in any business profession or pursuit, have been born and raised on a farm. This is not because there is better blood on the farm, but because the surroundings on a farm life are better calculated to call out what there is in a boy, and develop a full-grown, healthly, perfect, self reliant man. —Toledo Blade.

Indians, says a correspondent, do not know what kissing is. He lived two years in Indian Territory among the Creeks, and never once knew of an Indian man kissing an Indian woman.

Two Dangerous Seasons.

Spring and fall are times when so many people get sick. The changes in the weather are severe on feeble persons, and even those naturally strong are apt, as they say, "to be feeling miserable." Then they are just in condition to be struck down with some kind of fever. A bottle or two of Parker's Tonic will invigorate the digestion, put the liver, kidneys and blood in perfect order, and prevent more serious attacks. Why suffer, and perhaps die, when so simple a medicine will save you? Good for both sexes and all ages.

The London Times recently said that the Smithsonian Institute afforded a better course of ethnological teaching, based on primitive relics, than can be had anywhere else in the world.

Good Results in Every Case

D. A. Bradford, wholesale paper dealer of Chattanooga, Tenn., writes, that he was seriously afflicted with a severe cold that settled on his lungs; had tried many remedies without benefit. Being induced to try Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption did so and was entirely cured by the use of a few bottles. Since which time he has used it in his family for all coughs and colds with best results. This is the experience of thousands whose lives have been saved by this Wonderful Discovery. An End to Bone Scraping.

Edward Shepherd, of Harrisburg, Ill., says: "Having received so much benefit from Electric Bitters, I feel it my duty to the suffering humanity know it. Have had a running sore on my leg for eight years; the doctors told me I would have to have my bone scraped or leg amputated. I used, instead, three bottles of Electric Bitters and seven boxes of Bucklen's Arnica Salve and my leg is now sound and well."

Electric Bitters are sold at fifty cent. a bottle, and Bucklen's Salve at 25c. per bottle by R. E. Luhn.

A Down Town Merchant,

Having passed several sleepless nights, disturbed by the agonies and cries of a suffering child, and becoming convinced that Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup was just the article needed, procured a supply for the child. On reaching home and acquainting his wife with what he had done, she refused to have it administered to the child as she was strongly in favor of Homœopathy. That night the child passed in suffering, and the parents without sleep. Returning home the day following the father found the baby still worse and while contemplating another sleepless night, the mother stepped from the room to attend to some domestic duties and left the father with the child. During her absence he administered a portion of the Soothing Syrup to the baby and said nothing. That night all hands slept well, and the little fellow awoke in the morning bright and happy. The mother was delighted with the sudden and wonderful change, and although at first offended at the deception practiced upon her, has continued to use the syrup, and suffering crying babies and restless nights have disappeared. A single trial of the syrup never yet failed to relieve the baby, and overcome the prejudices of the mother. Sold by all druggists. 25 cents a bottle.

CURE FOR PILES.

Piles are frequently preceded by a sense of weight in the back, loins and lower part of the abdomen, causing the patient to suppose he had some affection of the kidneys or neighboring organs. At times, symptoms of indigestion are present, as flatulency, uneasiness of the stomach, etc. A moisture, like perspiration, producing a very disagreeable itching, particularly at night after getting warm in bed, is a very common attendent. Blind, Bleeding and Itching piles yield at once to the application of Dr. Bosanko's Pile Remedy, which acts directly upon the part affected, absorbs the Tumors, allaying the intense itching, and effecting a permanent cure, where all other remedies have failed. Do not delay until the drain on the system produces permanent disability, but try it and be cured. Price, 50 cents. Sent prepaid on receipt of price. Address, The Dr. Bosanko Medicine Co., Piqua, Ohio. Sold by Carleton & Nash.

Washed-Out Hair.

The white asset of pallid, chalky complexion which the novelist call a "washed-out complexion." It is ghastly enough, and no mistake. Washed-out, faded, discolored, or pale-colored hair is almost as repulsive and melancholy. Parker's Hair Balsam will restore your hair to its original color, whatever it was, brown, auburn or black. Why wear moss on your head, when you may easily have lively, shining hair.

To Dyspeptics.

Requires acids more potent than the solvent juices of the human stomach. And yet, in the form of medicine intended to reform the very evil they aggravate, to-wit, dyspepsia, acids and fluids, irreconcilable in their constituents that take no chemical affinity one with the other, are introduced into it. Are these so-called remedies more digestible than rubber nitc? Positively—no! Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, on the other hand, a simple medicine, harmonious in its composition and readily assimilable, is active, and produces marked as well as speedily appreciable effects, because it is a rational remedy suited to the stomach. It is a tonic in the true sense, because it harmonizes and insures regularity of the operations of digestion. Not the least of the benefits which it confers, is a thorough repair of the damage inflicted on the stomach by ill-chosen remedies. For biliousness, constipation, malarial complaints, rheumatism and kidney troubles, it is alike invaluable.

To the Cuticura Remedies I owe My Health, My Happiness and My Life.

A day never passes that I do not think and speak kindly of the Cuticura Remedies. Seven years ago all of a dozen lumps formed on my neck, ranging in size from a cherry stone to an orange. The three ones were painful to the touch, and pained to bear pressure. My neck looked as if I had goitre. People turned aside when they saw me, in disgust, and I was ashamed to be on the street or in society. Physicians and their treatment, and all medicines failed to do any good. In a moment of despair I tried the Cuticura Remedies—Cuticura, the great Skin Cure, and Cuticura Soap, an exquisite Skin Beautifier, externally, and Cuticura Resolvent, the new Blood Purifier, internally; the small lumps (as I call them) gradually disappeared, and the large ones broke, in about two weeks, discharging large quantities of matter, leaving two slight scars in my neck to-day to tell the story of my suffering. My weight then was one hundred and fifteen sickly pounds; my weight now is one hundred and sixty-one solid, healthy pounds, and my height is only five feet five inches. In my travels I always carry the Cuticura Remedies, North, South, East, and West. To Cuticura Remedies I owe my health, my happiness, and my life. A prominent New York druggist asked me the other day, "Can you tell me the Cuticura Remedies you look to be in perfect health?" My reply was, "I do, and shall always. I have never known what sickness is since I commenced using the Cuticura Remedies." Sometimes I am laughed at for praising them to people not acquainted with their merits, but sooner or later they will come to their senses and believe the same as the others that use them, as do some have whom I have told. May the time come when there shall be a large Cuticura Supply House in every city in the world, for the benefit of humanity, where the Cuticura Remedies shall be sold only, as there will be rarely a need of ever going to a drug store.

SNEEZING CATARRH

The distressing sneeze, sneeze, sneeze, the acrid, watery discharges from the eyes and nose, the painful inflammation extending to the throat, the swelling of the mucous lining, causing choking sensations, coughing, raising mucus in the head and spitting irritations.—Some familiar to everyone are the results of Catarrh. Others suffer periodically from head colds or influenza, and so live in ignorance of the fact that a single application of Sanford's Radical cure for Catarrh will afford instantaneous relief.

But the treatment in cases of simple Catarrh should be a labor of weeks, or even months, in the chronic forms, where the breathing is obstructed by clinging purulent mucous accumulations, the hearing affected, smell and taste gone, throat ulcerated and hacking cough gradually undermining health, is the established origin. Then it is that the marvelous curative power of Sanford's Radical cure manifests itself in instantaneous and grateful relief. Cure begins from the first application. It is rapid, radical, permanent, economical, safe.

Sanford's Radical Cure consists of one bottle of the Radical Cure, one box of Catarrhal Solvent, and one Improved Inhaler, price $1.

They're nice things to summer, for they have been tried.

We have bridles for stallions, the gelding and mare,

Bits plated with silver and snaps made of wire,

Bitting bridles for colts, to teach them to know

The way of the world, and the slope they should go.

Thing in want of such articles, give us a call,

If we can't show you good work we'll show none at all.

We wish not a large profit on work that we sell,

A good, honest living will do us quite well;

Put try us and see that we ask for no more;

We have all you need in this line in our store,

You will see our sign on the road as you go

So give us a call and don't it feel some again.

A Question

Often asked, but seldom answered satisfactorily: "Is there a remedy known to the medical profession that will allay the sufferings peculiar to women who are subject to Dysmenorrhea and its attendant discomforts?"

Ladies If you have not tried it, do so AT ONCE. There is relief for you; it has been found in Fongaline

Read what an eminent physician has to say upon the subject:

"I have derived particularly gratifying results from the use of Fongaline in cases of Dysmenorrhea. In the case of a lady of rheumatic condition, and a chronic sufferer from this disease, who had been driven almost to the verge of insanity by her monthly sufferings, its action has been most satisfactory. It relieved me promptly, and she now passes the since dreaded periods with but little discomfort. I could mention other instances of a similar character, but this is a remarkable case." T. F.
