Murphy and McFarland Will Be the Big Noises To-Night All the Way From Harlem to Old Philadelphia.

TO-NIGHT the fireworks!

But they come off over in Philadelphia.

This won't stop Harlem, which goes over at 6 o'clock on a special train to see Harlem Tommy Murphy fight Packey McFarland.

It's the common tip that this will be the hottest fight of the year. And it will. Tommy Murphy never takes a back step. Neither does Packey McFarland. Neither ever stops punching for a second. It will be the irresistible force meeting the immovable body—the ancient scientific puzzle—and it will take a savant of prize ring affairs to pick the winner before the fight is over.

They say McFarland is a cinch. But I can't see it just that way. Tommy Murphy up to date has always arisen to the occasion. The harder they were, the harder he fought. His only setback occurred just as he was about to finish Terry McGovern. He had Terry toppling when the Terror winged over one of the old-time wallops and dropped Tommy instead. At that Murphy got up again and again, although practically knocked stiff by the first punch, and was on his feet when the sponge ended the slaughter.

Murphy Is Game.

Murphy is game as they make 'em. Johnny Summers nearly had him with a fierce swing in the first round, yet Tommy got strong again after a couple of terrible knockdowns, and finally tore the lining out of Summers before the bout was over.

Bert Keyes dropped Tommy twice, but Tommy never hesitated. Murphy has knocked out a lot of good ones himself. It was Murphy that gave Battling Hurley the beating that put him out of the game for months, and probably for good. They never get over the sort handed out by Murphy.

Tommy didn't make Leach Cross run quite as hard as Packey did, but he came near it. He gave Leach fully as hard a trimming.

Murphy is in splendid shape to-day. And when in shape he's a dangerous man for any of them to tackle, not even excepting Packey McFarland, of Chicago.

As for McFarland, he's a wonder, of course. He is the personification of aggressive fury in the ring, and is fast and clever, and can punch. There's a chance that he may put Murphy away in less than six rounds. But it isn't any cinch.

Whoever wins, this will be a rattling fight.

The "Fight Bug" announced his intention of visiting McFarland at his quarters yesterday. As he has a good line on fighting men, I asked him to wire The Evening World some real dope, hot off the griddle, as soon as he had seen Packey work.

What "Fight Bug" Thinks.

Here's the "Fight Bug's" opinion:

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 18.—Philadelphia is indeed a lucky city, for good old New York is not going to see the Packey McFarland-Tommy Murphy bout, which comes off here to-night. That is to say, the rank and file of New Yorkers will have to be satisfied with newspaper accounts of what will unquestionably be the fastest, roughest and most fiercely contested bout between evenly matched men that has taken place in the East for many years.

Tommy Murphy is conceded by the best judges of boxing to be easily the class of all Eastern lightweights. It is the writer's opinion he has never been given his full credit, as one of the really great fighters before the public to-day, which is simply because Tommy has never been sent over the "California" route, but, good as he is, it is my firm opinion that Packey McFarland will give Tommy the hardest bout he has ever indulged in, and for the first time since Tommy is before the public I am forced to give my opinion against his chances. He will find Packey McFarland just a shade too good for him.

McFarland is in magnificent condition, and what betting is done to-day around the hotels and sporting resorts is based on the odds of 10 to 7 on McFarland. Most men are having their bets made with the provision of Robert Edgren's decision. Harry Gilmore and Packey are willing to bet $1,000 at the prevailing odds that Packey gains the award, leaving the decision to any three newspapers.

Packey arose Tuesday morning at 6 o'clock, took a long walk and breakfasted at 7.30; he took an auto ride from 10 to 12, then had his lunch. He left his training quarters at Merchantville at 2 P. M., and is putting up at the Bingham Hotel, in Philadelphia. Packey weighed yesterday 132 pounds in the presence of Harry Edwards, of the National Athletic Club, where the bout takes place. This accounts for his day of rest, as the weight the boys are to make is 133 pounds at 3 P. M., hence it will be necessary for Packey to dry out—something that he has been compelled to do on several occasions in the past.

McFarland in Fine Shape.

It will not be necessary in this case, as he has been in constant training since coming East. He is a genuie lightweight, with several pounds to spare. Packey never looked better on the eve of a battle. His brown eyes are bright, his skin is glowing with perfect health. He is absolutely confident, and at ease, and seems to be no more agitated over the coming battle than a man playing a game of solitaire. Several of Packey's close friends have tipped him off that he is going against the real thing in Tommy Murphy, that he is a far different opponent than the timid Leach Cross. He is aware of the fact that to-night he is going to face the most dangerous opponent he has yet met in the ring, but notwithstanding this, and after giving Tommy all credit for his best ability, he states without a show of egotism that he will beat Tommy just as decisively as he did Leach Cross, but the fight will be a far better one from the spectators' standpoint.

He is not willing to say that he will knock Tommy out in six rounds, but does not hesitate in stating that he could do so in the time of the bout were of ten rounds duration.

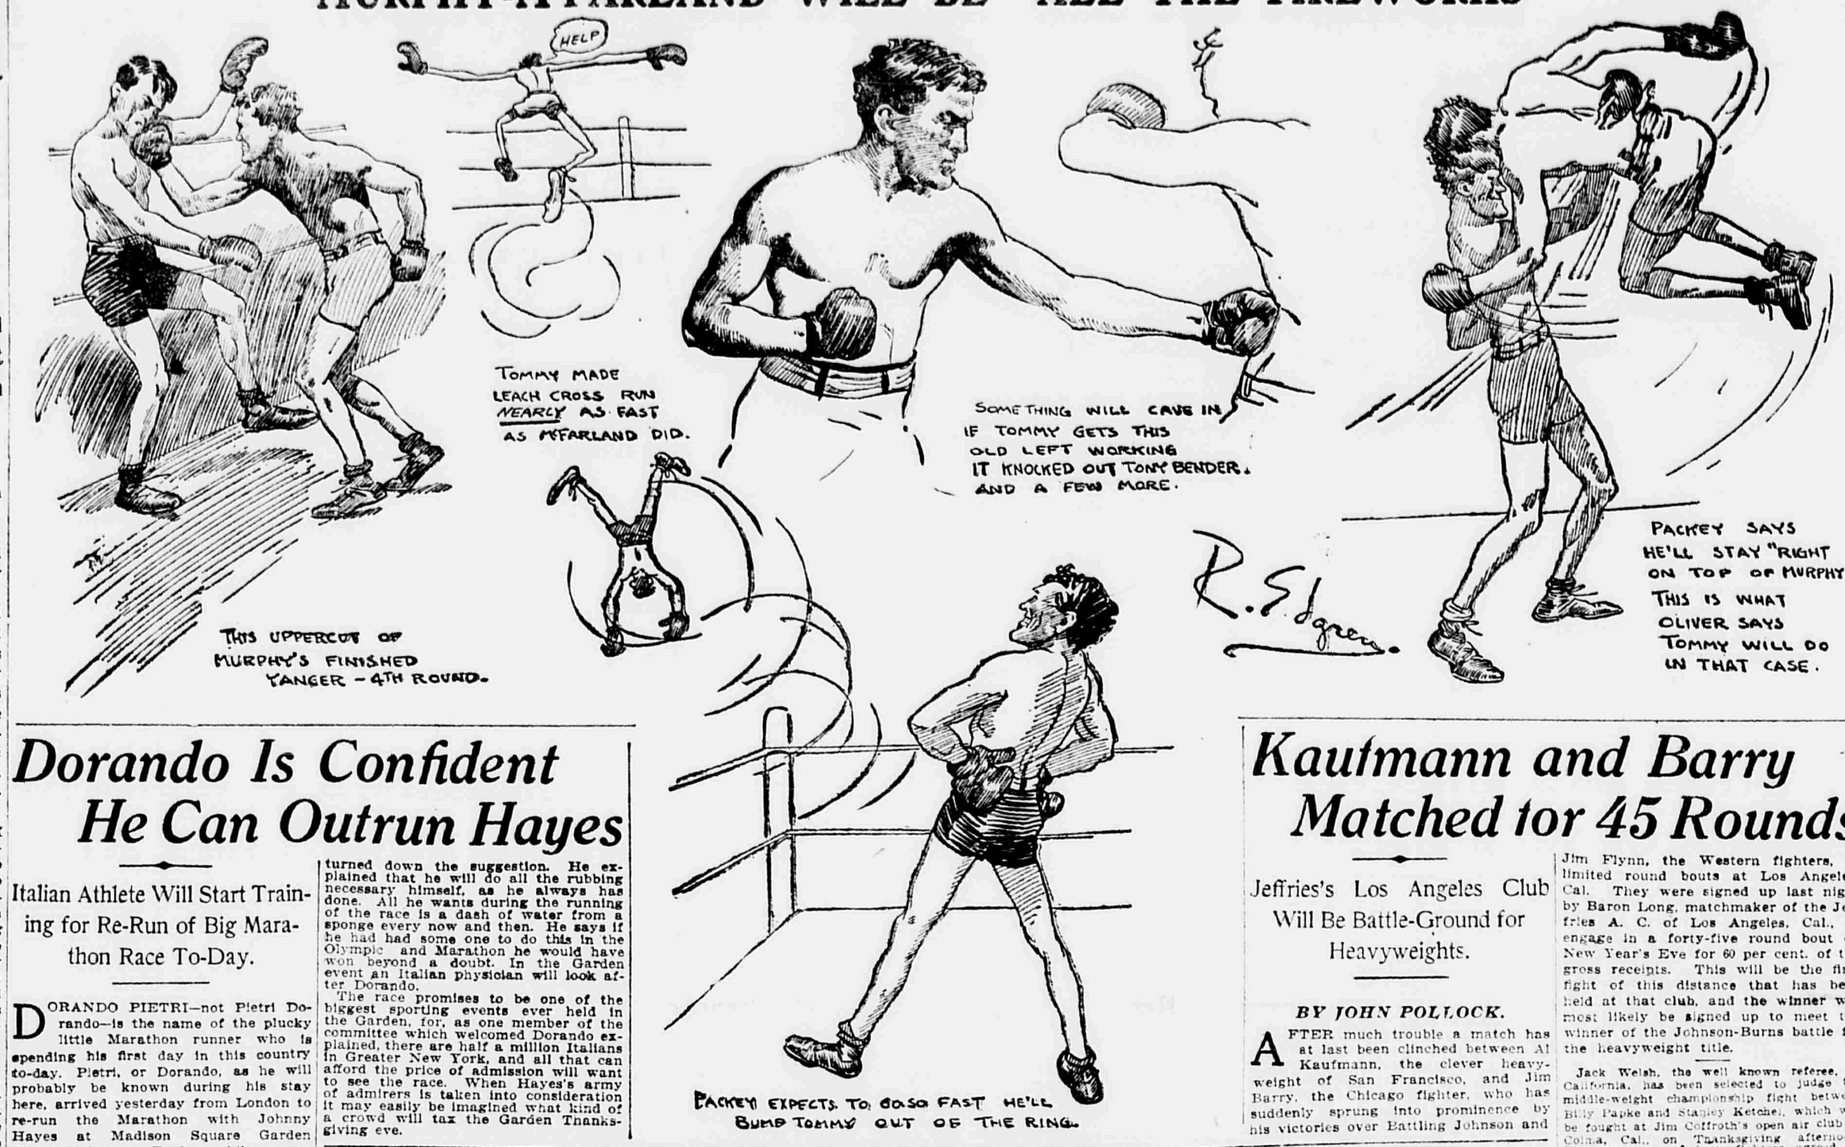
The improvement in Packey McFarland from the day I first saw him in Chicago, about two years ago, up to the present time, is undoubtedly the most marvellous of any fighter before the public in a decade. Two years ago this boy was practically unknown to the sporting public, and when I saw him box then it was my opinion he would become lightweight champion of the world eventually. I was hardly prepared for this quick development, for now he is next in line for Battling Nelson's lightweight crown, providing he defeats Tommy Murphy, and I think he will.

McFarland is a composite of Abe Attell in cleverness and Battling Nelson in aggressiveness and ruggedness.

McFarland's grand condition can be credited to the watchful guidance and persevering attention of his good natured trainer, Pat Romulo.

THE FIGHT BUG.

MURPHY-M'FARLAND WILL BE "ALL THE FIREWORKS"



Dorando Is Confident He Can Outrun Hayes

Italian Athlete Will Start Training for Re-Run of Big Marathon Race To-Day.

DORANDO PIETRI—not Pietri Dorando—is the name of the plucky little Marathon runner who is spending his first day in this country to-day. Pietri, or Dorando, as he will probably be known during his stay here, arrived yesterday from London to re-run the Marathon with Johnny Hayes at Madison Square Garden Thanksgiving eve. To-day, while scarcely off his sea legs, he is up at Columbia College finishing up his training for the long race.

Dorando is a little chap, like Hayes and Sherring, another Marathon winner, not more than five feet four inches tall and weighs 130 pounds. He is handsome, too, his face showing the deep olive coloring of his race. His eyes are large, gray and full of expression, and there is a rosy tinge on his cheeks that any girl might envy. A small curl of a moustache seems to add to his good looks. He dresses quietly, but evidently falls for fashion's decrees, for he affects the great rakish alpine and carries a monogramed stick from which he won't be separated for an instant.

Italians Greet Dorando.

The Italian colony is all wrought up over the little athlete, and there is no danger of his lacking attention or encouragement here, as was the case at Shepherd's Bush last July, when, without attendants of any kind, he struggled into the stadium in the lead of his held only to collapse a quarter of a mile from the finish.

Dorando is no novice at the distance running game. Before the Olympic games he had run in thirty races, and his brother proudly boasts that he won all but two, and in these two he finished second. He does his training according to his own ideas. He diets himself, believing this to be the most important part of the preparation for a long race. He has no stride to speak of, depending on short steps and a low front action to carry him over the ground. Unlike Hayes, he has a rather high action behind, swinging his legs almost at right angles to his body.

It was suggested that he have a good massage artist or rubber during his training here, but Dorando quickly turned down the suggestion. He explained that he will do all the rubbing necessary himself, as he always has done. All he wants during the running of the race is a dash of water from a sponge every now and then. He says if he had had some one to do this in the Olympic and Marathon he would have won beyond a doubt. In the Garden event an Italian physician will look after Dorando.

The race promises to be one of the biggest sporting events ever held in the Garden, for, as one member of the committee which welcomed Dorando explained, there are half a million Italians in Greater New York, and all that can afford the price of admission will want to see the race. When Hayes's army of admirers is taken into consideration it may easily be imagined what kind of a crowd will tax the Garden Thanksgiving eve.

Kaufmann and Barry Matched for 45 Rounds

Jeffries's Los Angeles Club Will Be Battle-Ground for Heavyweights.

BY JOHN POLLOCK.

AFTER much trouble a match has at last been clinched between Al Kaufmann, the clever heavyweight of San Francisco, and Jim Barry, the Chicago fighter, who has suddenly sprung into prominence by his victories over Battling Johnson and Jim Flynn, the Western fighters, in limited round bouts at Los Angeles, Cal. They were signed up last night by Baron Long, matchmaker of the Jeffries A. C. of Los Angeles, Cal., to engage in a forty-five round bout on New Year's Eve for 60 per cent. of the gross receipts. This will be the first fight of this distance that has been held at that club, and the winner will most likely be signed up to meet the winner of the Johnson-Burns battle for the heavyweight title.

Jack Welsh, the well known referee, of California, has been selected to judge the middle-weight championship fight between Billy Papke and Stanley Ketchel, which will be fought at Jim Coffroth's open air club at Colma, Cal., on Thanksgiving afternoon. The managers of both fighters agreed on Welsh as referee as soon as Fight Promoter Coffroth suggested him for the job. Welsh is to receive $500 for his trouble.

When it comes to taking off weight for a battle, Stanley Ketchel has it on all the fighters in the business. In less than four weeks Ketchel has reduced twenty-six pounds, and claims that he feels no ill effects of his hard work. When he began training for the mill he tipped the scales at 187 pounds. After he had finished his training yesterday he tipped the scales at 161 pounds, which is just three pounds over the weight at which he is to fight Papke, which is 158 pounds three hours before the fight.

Considerable interest is being taken in the six round bout between Joe Thomas and Sailor Burke, which will be fought at the star of the Fairmont A. C. on Friday night. Thomas received a telegram last night from Jim Coffroth offering him a bout with either Papke or Ketchel if he is successful in beating Burke. As Thomas is anxious to get on a return battle with Ketchel, he says he will fight his hardest in order to stop Burke as quickly as possible.

Mike Murray, manager of the Armory A. A. of Boston, last night completed all arrangements for the twelve round bout between Owen Moran and Frankie Nell, the California featherweight. The lads will come together at the best show of the club on Tuesday night. This bout has been substituted for the Baldwin-Driscoll bout, Baldwin claiming he needed an extra week in which to get into condition for the battle with the clever Englishman.

Jimmy Gardner and Jimmy Clabbe, the Milwaukee welterweight, are going to fight again. They have been secured by the promoter of the New Orleans A. C. for a battle for fifteen rounds on Thanksgiving night. They recently fought before the same club, and as Gardner was awarded the decision by a slim margin, Clabbe claimed he should have been given a draw, and the club officials decided to put the men on again.

With the boxing game to be opened up in cities where it never thrived before, it looks as if the pugilists will be kept busy this winter. The new places where contests will be held are Pittsburg, Kansas City, Denver, Salt Lake City, Savannah, Ga.; New Haven, Conn.; Binghamton, N. Y.; Rochester, N. Y.; Albany, N. Y., and New Orleans. With these and New York, Philadelphia, Boston, Baltimore, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Cal., and Colma, Cal., going, there should be plenty of fights.

THREE TEAMS IN RUNNING FOR THE SCHOOL HONORS

Erasmus, Poly Prep and Morris All Have Chance to Win Football Championship.

THE situation with regard to the high school championship was cleared up by considerably by last Saturday's results. There are now but three possible champions—Erasmus, Poly Prep and Morris. The Commerce ship was sunk by the Boys' High eleven, and whatever dim prospects Clinton had were snowed under by Morris. The present dope is this. There is one more game to be played among the contenders, the Erasmus-Poly Prep game on Thanksgiving Day. If Erasmus wins the buff and blue will be tied with Morris for the championship. If the Poly eleven gets the verdict they will have an undisputed claim to the championship, as they beat Boys' High, the only other possible contender, by a score of 10-0 on Election Day.

The Morris High School team wound up the best season ever known under the maroon and white when the boys trounced Clinton at American League Park last Saturday by a score of 22-0. The complete Morris record is as follows: Morris, 5, Mount Vernon, 0; Morris, 5, Erasmus, 5; Morris, 11, Yonkers, 0; Morris, 0, C. C. N. Y., 6; Morris, 0, Phillips, 6; Morris, 0, Commerce, 0; Morris, 21, Stevens Prep., 6; Morris, 22, Clinton, 0.

For the benefit of those who think there are no comers in the high scools we will pause to mention the work of Yule, Nixon and Traeger, of the Morris team. The last named booted the ball right over the goal posts on one of the his kick-offs last Saturday. Yule has been a tower of strength all season, and Nixon is undoubtedly one of the heaviest quarters that ever played on a high school team.

The Boys' High School squad is hard at work for the game with Central High School, of Philadelphia, next Saturday. The Brooklynites are confident making a better showing than they have yet made before against the Philadelphia eleven.

Boys' High has a capable backfield in Olsen at fullback, Cavert and Holden, halfbacks, and Collins at quarter.

Coach Steinert, of Clinton, will now put all his efforts into rounding the Red and Black eleven into shape for the struggle with Commerce, which is to take place on Thanksgiving Day. Although the P. S. L. championship does not hinge upon this game, it is more important to the contestants than all other games on the schedule. It is known in schoolboy circles that Clinton would sacrifice all their other games in order to beat Commerce, and the same may be said of the latter team.

All the Clinton stars who have been out of the game because of ineligibility, be on the Commerce side of the line. Mellendy, Wilbernoy, Watson and Cummiskey will be in the line-up.

The three B's of the Poly Prep team are about the whole story. Brooks, Barry and Butler, guard, tackle and quarter respectively, remind us of the stars of the scholastic teams of 1905.

Football has never taken very strongly at Manual Training, Brooklyn, but as soccer the yellow and blue is a sure winner. Coach Dunlap is confident that the team will repeat their performance of last year by again running off with first honors. The greatest obstacle in the way of the team's success was overcome last Saturday when Morris was trounced by the Manual team. The rest is easy sailing.

TEMPLE KNOCKS OUT OLD JOE WALCOTT

BOSTON, Nov. 18.—The ten round inter-city bouts at the Armory A. A. last night, in which Willie Riley and Eddie Murphy, of South Boston, made their debut as main bout boxers, did not turn out as the fans would have liked, yet, through a bad error of the referee, they were better pleased than they had any right to have been.

Eddie Murphy was not entitled to a draw with young Brian, of Philadelphia, as the latter outclassed the South Boston boy by a big margin.

There was no question, however, about Willie Riley earning the decision he received over George Decker, of Philadelphia. Marred the victory that Larry Temple scored over Joe Walcott was so decisive that there was no chance for a kick. Walcott was knocked out in the last round.

HARVARD TEAM A REMARKABLE EXAMPLE OF WHAT VIGOROUS COACHING WILL DO

Percy Haughton Has Worked Wonders With Team That Did Not Appear to Have a Chance

(Special to The Evening World.)

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 17.

THE Harvard squad, which leaves here to-morrow for Farmington, Conn., which will be headquarters until the Yale game, is a remarkable example of what a single season of rigorous, yet judicious, coaching can do toward the development of a football team. No season at Cambridge has opened with less favorable prospects than the present, nor has drawn to a close with such an encouraging outlook.

The spirit of enthusiasm manufactured in previous years by such slogans as "Are we downhearted?" has been spontaneous. The material which Coach Haughton found in his hands on Sept. 15 was fair. The intelligence with which it has been drilled has been above the ordinary. There were four H. men on the squad- Burr, Fish, Hoar and G. Browne. None of these men, with the exception of Burr, was a star.

Few Stars on Team.

In fact, the team this year is not composed of stars. Their power is due to two things lacking in previous years—team work and aggressiveness. Whether Harvard took a slump at the time of the Navy game, or whether the tie resulted from the fact that they were not trained to as high a point as their opponents, is a question. Since then consistent improvement has been apparent. The Brown game was encouraging, flashes of power were evident in the decisive defeat inflicted upon the Indians, and when the eleven carried the ball eighty-seven yards for a touchdown in the Dartmouth game, they showed that they were capable of consistent gains.

There is also a general impression that Harvard has at no time been pushed so hard that Haughton has been compelled to show his hand by disclosing trick plays held in reserve for the coming game. The Crimson line, from tackle to tackle, is the best of college elevens this year. Nourse, at centre, has no equal outside of Linguff, of the Navy. Nourse is reliable, passes accurately and follows the ball closely.

Fish and McKay have both developed wonderfully at tackle. McKay lacked aggressiveness the first of the year. In the Indian game, however, he seemed to come to his own, and since then his playing has been without fault. Fish's height and ranginess have made him a dreaded man when the forward pass is tried. He has shown great skill both in catching passes from his own quarter and blocking passes and punts of his opponents.

Cutler Shows Improvement.

One would hardly realize to-day that Cutler was a made over back instead of a veteran quarter. His generalship has greatly improved in the last three weeks. Corbett is the most dashing player in the back field, but White, the line plunger, is a more consistent ground-gainer. Harvard's ends continue, in spite of all Campbell has done, to be the weak point of the team.

Burr's injury of a few weeks ago has also robbed the team of one of the season's best punters. Coaches have worked hard to fill his place in the line, and Dunlap has shown up well.

To take out Verwiebe at full and substitute Kennard, in order to have a punter, weakens the back field, the former being much more aggressive. It is probable that Bull will get in Saturday's game, but his injured arm will prevent him from playing his usual game in the line. With that exception the eleven is in excellent physical condition. That the men have not been allowed to play themselves stale has been due to Haughton's judicious use of subs and Trainer "Pooch" Donovan's diligence.

HORSE BREEDERS MAKE GOOD SHOWING.

At the annual meeting of the American Association of Trotting Horse Breeders, held at the Hoffman House last night, there were present Senator J. W. Bailey, of Texas; William Russell Allen, Pittsfield, Mass.; C. C. Watts, Charleston, W. Va.; Arnold Lawson and W. D. Hunt, Boston, Mass.; F. S. Gorton, Chicago; Samuel Walton, Falls Mills, Va.; Frank J. Kilpatrick, San Francisco; H. K. Devereaux, Cleveland, and Sterling R. Holt, Indianapolis.

It was announced that $437 had already been expended in obtaining entries for the first Futurity and Matrons Stakes, to be trotted in 1910 and 1911. It was expected that the stakes would be worth from $12,000 to $15,000. The association has now 700 active members and ninety-one life members.

RUTT AND STOL IN SHAPE FOR BIG SIX-DAY RACE.

Walter Rutt and John Stol, the plucky riders who composed the German-Holland team which captured first honors in last year's six-day bicycle race at Madison Square Garden, have sent in their entries for this year's grind, Dec. 6 to 12. Both Rutt and Stol have been riding in great form during the past season on the European cycle tracks.

Rutt kept pretty much in France, but Stol has been making a tour of the different courses throughout Europe. If possible this team is in even better shape for the day and night week-long grind at the Garden than it was last year, and with Stol's plugging abilities and Rutt's famous jump they will certainly be the dangerous factor in the race. This team, in conjunction with the balance of the European riders who will come over for the event, will sail from France in a week or ten days.

Bobby Burch Gets Back Into Line-Up at Yale

Captain of Old Eli in Uniform and Coy Returns to Backfield.

CAPT. BOBBY BURCH, of Yale, was in the lineup at New Haven yesterday for the first time in five weeks, and, despite the fact that his arm and shoulder are still stiff, he expects to be able to last throughout the game with Harvard on Saturday. Ted Coy was placed at fullback in the signal practice, and will probably stay there if Burch is able to get into the fray with the Crimson.

Logan took Haines's place at left end, but it is probable that Kilpatrick will play the position on Saturday. He worked out with the second team today, and seems to be back in good form. Hobbs was in at left tackle in place of Lilley, this change being a permanent one. Corey played quarter-back, but it is still an open question as to whether he or Ford Johnson will start the game on Saturday. Both men are pretty sure to get a chance in the big game.

The work yesterday was light, as many of the coaches were absent attending the wedding of Jack Owsley, but to-day will see an army of them on the field again, and it will be busy times for the squad during the rest of the week.

"What is Cornell going to use against Pennsylvania, old or new football?" That's a question that cannot be answered until the Thanksgiving Day game. The fact that Chicago was able to hold the Ithacans to a tie game has aroused the fighting spirit of the team and the coaches as well, and every effort is being made to whip the eleven into shape to beat the Quakers in the annual clash.

Cornell has followed the old-style game rather more closely this fall than many of the other teams, and it is the general impression that this style of play will be relied on when Pennsylvania is met.

Villa Nova is the team that is keeping the Army team guessing right now. For forty minutes the first week the two teams battled in a scrimmage yesterday that had all the earmarks of the real thing, but one score only was made, and that by the second team when Mountfort dropped a goal from the thirty-yard line. The Varsity played good football at times, but repeatedly lost ball on the inside of the twenty-five yard line after carrying it down the field for from fifty to seventy yards.

No one can get within gunshot distance of the Navy field these days, as the Middies are putting on the final touches for the battle with the Army at Franklin Field Saturday. To-day, Friday, at 3 P. M., the students are around the field during the entire time the Varsity squad is at practice and no one is allowed to get anywhere near the team. Formations that are to be used against the soldiers are used exclusively, and the coaches say they are satisfied with the outlook. Meyer, Slingluff and Reifsnider, who have been on the hospital list, were able to work yesterday, and Trainer McMasters expects to have every one of the squad in good shape for the big game of the year. The Navy plays Virginia Polytechnic Saturday, but the regulars will only be allowed to stay in the game for a few minutes so as to avoid any chance of injuries.

The hard battle with Pennsylvania that resulted so disastrously for Michigan last Saturday has left that team in bad shape, and there has been no scrimmage so far this week. Steve Sims, Michigan captain, who was severely punished Saturday, is out for signal practice, but is hardly able to move. Allerdice, the halfback, who played the greatest part of the game with a broken collarbone, has turned in his suit and is out for the rest of the season. While Yost does not fear the game with Syracuse Saturday, he is much discouraged over the poor showing of his team.

Michigan will probably get back into line with the rest of the Western colleges and again make it the "Big Nine" instead of the "Big Eight," as it has been since Michigan got the idea in that she could trim the Eastern teams. The Western conference, which the Wolverines left owing to an argument over games with the Eastern teams, holds no sore spots for them and will welcome the Yost outfit back. Defeats three times in succession at the hands of Pennsylvania—the one last Saturday being the worst ever given Michigan since Yost took hold of the team—has chastened the Wolverines and will help the game immensely in the Middle West.
