SIDE-DOOR CARS PERIL TO PUBLIC, SAYS MR. HEDLEY

Manager of Subway Insists Their Use Would Mean 200 Accidents a Day.

RAPS EXPERT ARNOLD.

Hearing on Order to Equip Two Full Trains Is Put Over to April 1.

"The public of New York will be safer with those side-door cars in the shop than out on the road."

With this frank declaration, General Manager Hedley of the Interborough to-day concluded his testimony before the Public Service Commission on the subject of the experimental train of side-door cars operated for twelve days in February.

Two sets of figures are now before the commission relative to the test. One set was compiled by Mr. Hedley, and prove the proposed side-doors a menace to public safety, while the other set was got together by the Commissioners' engineer, Bion J. Arnold, to show that the operation of the cars was a great success.

Slaps at Mr. Arnold.

The introduction of a voluminous report compiled by Mr. Hedley opened the proceedings.

"Before the train had been in operation long," testified Mr. Hedley, "I became convinced that Mr. Arnold's elementary knowledge of operating conditions had illustrated itself, as I predicted it would."

Mr. Hedley said that twenty-one accidents due to the operation of the side doors had occurred in the twelve days of the test. To equip the entire subway with the same cars, he said, would mean two hundred accidents a day and the employment of 200 per cent. more men.

Hearing Is Adjourned.

The hearing, which is on an order for the equipment of sixteen more cars with Arnold side doors, was then adjourned until April 1.

Meanwhile Alfred Gardner, counsel for the Interborough, will have opportunity to look over the set of figures on observations put in by Arnold.

SWITCH ENGINE HITS DETECTIVE, SAVES THIEVES

Officer Run Down in the New York Central Yard When Pursuing Robbers.

A switch engine came to the rescue of milk thieves in the railroad yards of the New York Central & Hudson River Railroad at Seventy-ninth street early to-day and the thieves escaped. Their pursuer, Detective Sidney Tompkins, twenty-eight years old, of Fifty-ninth street and Twelfth avenue, who was just catching up with the robbers, now lies in Flower Hospital so seriously injured that he may die. He encountered the switch engine.

Tompkins had been detailed to guard milk shipped into town in the early morning. He had kept a close watch for bands of men who had in the past managed to steal cans of milk. To-day he saw four men sneaking around the milk cars and he quietly approached. When he got near he saw them about to lug off a can of milk, and with his pistol drawn he called on them to halt.

They ran, and a lively chase over cars followed. He was about to seize one of the men when he ran between the bumpers of two cars. In reaching for his man he slipped and fell out on the other side. At that instant a switch engine was passing, and Tompkins was struck in the head by the tender. He screamed and lost consciousness.

The engineman heard his cry, stopped and went back for him. Anthony Hartley, a yard employee, called an ambulance, and when Dr. Brownell, of Flower Hospital, arrived, he found that Tompkins's head was broken. The thieves got away, but without the milk.

TAXICAB ROBBER GIVEN 20 YEARS AT HARD LABOR

Judge Mulqueen Says Jury Was Misled in Recommendation for Mercy.

HAD A BAD RECORD.

Sandbagged Chauffeur in Park and Left Victim Unconscious in His Own Cab.

When James G. Jamieson, known as the "Taxicab Highwayman," was arraigned for sentence in General Sessions to-day he was characterized by Judge Mulqueen as one o fthe most daring criminals who had ever appeared before him. After reviewing the robbery of which Jamieson was convicted two weeks ago, Judge Mulqueen sentenced him to twenty years in Sing Sing at hard labor.

Jamieson was arrested on the morning of Jan. 23 in a restaurant on upper Third avenue and was later identified by Harold D. Thompson, a chauffeur employed by the New York Taxicab Company as being one of the men who had sandbagged and robbed him in Central Park the night before.

Thompson testified at the trial that Jamieson an dantoehr man had engaged his cab at the Savoy Hotel and told the chauffeur to drive them to One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street. While proceeding along the East Drive the men signalled him to stop, and after doing so he left his seat to see what was wanted by his two fares inside.

As he opened the cab door he was struck on the head with a sandbag and knocked unconscious. His pockets were rifled of $25 in cash and several little trinkets of value, and then he was tied hand and foot and placed in the cab, where he was left by his assailants.

In passing sentence Judge Mulqueen said:

"You don't deserve sympathy or the mercy that was recommended by the jury which convicted you. This I understand was based on the understanding that you had never been convicted before. I have since learned that you served a term in the penitentiary for carrying concealed weapons, a course that was habitual with you.

"Yours was one of the most daring crimes ever committed in this city, and the class of criminals to which you belong calls for no mercy from any court.

Jamieson accepted his sentence with stolid indifference. He is a rather remarkable looking man and speaks seven languages fluently. He has travelled all over the world and shows traces of refinement and education.

HELD UP IN PULLMAN, STALLED AT DENVER

Robbers Clean Out Men Passengers But Do Not Molest Woman in Car.

DENVER, Col., March 25.—Two highwaymen entered a sleeping car in the Denver and Rio Grande yards at West Denver early to-day, held up six of the seven passengrs, the conductor and porter and got away with about $400 in cash. The only woman passenger, Mrs. N. R. Hussey, of Booth Bay Harbor, Me., was not molested.

The car was part of Denver and Rio Grande train No. 4, which was held up at Military Junction a few weeks ago. The train was several hours late in reaching Denver to-day, and the sleeping car was cut off in the yards at West Denver to await morning. About five minutes later the colored porter was dragged out of his berth by two masked men, who at the point of revolvers marched him to the rear end of the car.

The smallest of the two men guarded the porter, while the other man awoke the other occupants of the car. One by one their clothing was searched.

E. N. R. Hussey, of Booth Bay Harbor, Me., was robbed of $89. Mrs. Hussey was sleeping in an adjoining berth. The robbers, in response to Mr. Hussey's pleading, did not disturb her. A. W. Forest, of Columbus, O., gave up about $100, and the other passengers contributed the remainder. The robbers then marched the passengers, conductor and porter into a compartment at one end of the car, closed the door and made their escape.

WAGON WRECKED, DRIVER INJURED ON BRIDGE DRIVE

Maddened Horse Caught in Time to Prevent Damage in Runaway.

John Cassall, a driver for the Monahan Express Company, of No. 75 Greenwich street, was kicked from the seat of his wagon on the north driveway of the Brooklyn Bridge this afternoon, and suffered a broken hip. The horse kicked him.

Cassall had taken a load to Brooklyn and on the return trip, the wagon being light, his horse became unmanageable. Cassall applied a whip to the animal's legs, and a moment later was sent flying through the air to the roadway. The horse's hoofs had shattered the dashboard.

Sergt. Sabane seized the horse's bridle and prevented a runaway. Cassall was lifted into his wrecked wagon and the horse was led to the Manhattan end of the bridge. There Patrolman Smith called an ambulance.

The horse is still in the possession of the police. Cassall lives at No. 221 Elizabeth street.

Umbrellas Fly Like Aeroplanes In Brisk Gale

It's Either Skirts or Rain Shield at Flatirons, So There's Little Choice.

Calculating the value of the average umbrella at about two dollars per, and estimating the number broken, twisted, slit, slashed and exploded rain-shields at about ten to the block during the height of the storm to-day, the amount represented in umbrella loss would about pay the national debt of a not too extravagant South American republic—or equip another expedition of faunal naturalists.

During the noon hour, when the rain had let up, the street-cleaners were busy garnering the battered umbrella harvest and stowing it in the big garbage receptacles along Broadway. The cans took on the appearance of metal porcupines, with steel ribs sticking out of them like the fretful animal's quills.

In open spaces, such as City Hall Park, Union and Madison Squares, and in the wind maelstroms off Cape Flatiron and the Times Building, the umbrella casualty was frightful. Every once in a while one would be twisted out of the hands of its struggling holder and soar aloft like one of the Wright brothers' machines.

In the struggle to make their skirts behave dozens of women lost their grips on their umbrellas, which went to join the great majority.

ELIZABETH, N. J., March 25.—John Cassidy, forty years old, of Chrome, died in the Alexian Brothers' Hospital here to-day from internal injuries sustained while at work at the Port Reading coal docks.

Kidnappers Are Indicted on Blackmail Charge

tion has yet been made," said Mr. Whitla. "But," he continued, "we want justice administered, and since the crime was committed in Pennsylvania we believe that is the proper tribunal in which to bring the criminals to trial."

There have been many rumors that the Pennsylvania authorities would not prosecute the couple held here for the kidnapping, and that there was some family skeleton which would be bared should the woman be taken back to Sharon. Mr. Whitla, however, wants the woman returned to Sharon, where the kidnapping took place. The Pennsylvania laws provide life imprisonment for kidnapping.

Brother Identifies Him.

The last doubt in the minds of the local police as to the exact identity of the man held for the kidnapping of Willie Whitla, of Sharon, Pa., was removed to-day when Thomas F. Boyle, of Sharon, visited the prisoner and identified him as his brother James. Arrangements were made between the brothers to obtain an attorney for the prisoner and prepare his defense.

Up to that time Boyle, the suspect, had not taken any steps toward looking after his own interests. Thomas Doyle also saw the woman suspect, but could say nothing regarding her other than that she is the wife of James Boyle. He said he knew nothing of her and that she is unknown in Sharon.

The police have been able to clear up much of the mystery concerning the history of Helene Faulkner, and find that she is no stranger to them. Mary Deimer, the young woman who killed herself, was with Boyle and the Faulkner woman on the day of their capture.

The Deimer woman came here from Toledo recently. Although she was well dressed and bore traces of refinement, she took up quarters in cheap lodgings. When the detective learned that she had been with Boyle and the woman who posed as his wife, it was decided to apprehend her.

Swallowed the Morphine.

"We want you in connection with the Whitla kidnapping," the woman was told as two detectives burst into her room.

"All right," replied Miss Deimer. "I'll go with you."

As she passed out of the door between the two detectives she suddenly swallowed the morphine. A few minutes later she said:

"I am very ill. I feel that I am going to collapse."

One of the detectives supported her while the other called an ambulance. The doctor found the woman semi-conscious. She was placed in an ambulance and started to the hospital, but expired on the way.

The police are very certain that Boyle and the Faulkner woman were not alone in the kidnapping. In digging into the Faulkner woman's past the police here got much information from the police of East St. Louis.

The woman and Boyle arrived in East St. Louis about two years ago and lived there until recently. She and Boyle had formerly lived in Springfield, Ill., where, it is said, they made a big haul by forgery. The pair were arrested but escaped by a ruse and skipped to East St. Louis. There the Faulkner woman would often say:

Her Home Was in Brooklyn.

"I'm a singer, an artist and a money-getter."

She represented that she had formerly been with a theatrical company, but that her original home was in Brooklyn, N. Y.

There is also a report that the woman and Boyle successfully worked the badger game in either East St. Louis or Springfield.

Notwithstanding the woman's oft-repeated statements that there would be a sensation when she was identified by the people of Sharon, James Whitla looked at her without recognizing her, when he and his son appeared yesterday afternoon. Billie Whitla promptly identified her as the woman he had known as "nurse" while a prisoner. The child also positively identified Boyle as the man who had called for him at his [illegible] and had taken him away from Sharon.

When Boyle was brought in for identification he was nervous. There was a faint smile upon his lips. He was seated, the party forming a semi-circle in front of him. Chief Kohler asked Billie if he had ever seen the man before.

"Sure I Know Him," Says Billie.

"Sure," said Billie, brightly; "why that is the man I left Sharon with. He took me to Cleveland, then to Ashtabula last saw him in Cleveland."

"He had a mustache when I first saw him at the school house," Billie supplemented, "but he must have cut it off later. This is the way he looked when I last saw him in Cleveland."

Boyle smiled sarcastically throughout the recital, but said not a word. He eyed his accusers defiantly. He was taken back to his cell and the woman was brought in.

She was defiant and haughty, and stared blankly at Mr. Whitla and the others. Her only relapse from an indignant attitude was when she first saw Billie. She smiled, and Billie walked up to her, and extending his hand, said: "How do you do?"

"Hello, Willie," the woman replied as she placed her hand upon his head and caressed him for an instant.

Identified the Woman.

The boy then stepped back to his father and was questioned by Chief Kohler. "Yes, I know her," he said. "She was the nurse who took care of me in Cleveland. She told me I was sick and in a hospital. I saw her a whole lot, as she was with me most all of the time."

HARRIMAN COMING HOME NEXT WEEK

Taking Hot Baths Now—Health Better Than for Years.

E. H. Harriman, according to despatches from Santa Barbara, Cal., has gone to Paso Robes Hot Springs to take the baths that proved so beneficial to Admiral Evans for the touch of rheumatism which has been bothering him. Dr. Dixon says there are no complications and that Mr. Harriman is in good condition.

Mr. Harriman will start home in a day or two and is expected to reach New York the latter part of next week. Mrs. Harriman, who joined him in his Southern and Western trip, has returned and says Mr. Harriman's health is better than it has been for several years. By leaving all detail work behind him he has obtained beneficial rest and better rest than he has allowed himself in many years.

ARRESTED ON SUSPICION.

James Muldoon and James Mason Locked Up.

Harlem detectives picked up James, alias Mike, Muldoon and James Mason, at One Hundred and Ninth street and Fifth avenue early to-day and locked them up as suspicious characters. Both men said they are drivers and live at One Hundred and Fortieth street and Fifth avenue.

According to the police a long, thin saw, used by burglars in cutting iron bars and grates, was found on Mason. He also had a can of oil which deadens the sound of sawing. The police say the pair know something of many burglaries in the neighborhood in which they were captured.

PEACE PLAN FOR LABOR.

Move in Washington to Prevent All Strikes.

WASHINGTON, March 25.—Speeches were made and resolutions adopted last night at a meeting held in the First Congregational Church, this city, favoring the idea of settling all troubles between labor and capital by peaceful means. The meeting was under the auspices of the National Industrial Peace Association, Patrick H. Scullin, organizer of the association, being one of the speakers. Justice Stafford and Rev. Dr. Woodrow, pastor of the church, also spoke. President Needham, of George Washington University, presided.

The resolutions urged upon Congress and the American people the benefits to be derived from industrial peace.

BIG SNOW STORM TO FOLLOW RAIN, SAYS FORECASTER

Severe Gales and Great Drop in Temperature Are Predicted.

FLOOD CAUSES DAMAGE.

Coney Island Swept by Giant Waves and City Front Inundated.

FURY OF STORM WILL BE INCREASED.

A special storm warning has been received from Washington by the local Weather Bureau ordering storm warnings changed to the northwest at 10.30 o'clock along the Middle Atlantic Coast. Gales will be unusually severe this afternoon and to-night on the Middle Atlantic Coast.

A strong southeast wind, approaching a gale, bringing with it torrents of cold rain, made things very uncomfortable along the water-front to-day. It piled up an enormous tide, filling cellars and washing down unprotected roads. It jeopardized many vessels at anchor along the Staten Island shore, where the brunt of the storm was felt. Extra anchors were let go and every precaution was taken to keep the craft from dragging. In the fleet this morning were a big four-master, another big Norwegian sailing vessel and several tramp steamships. Along the Shore road on Staten Island the water was very threatening, and the foundations of many fine residences were in imminent danger of being undermined.

Trains on the Erie and other incoming New Jersey lines were all slightly delayed this morning, danger of washout causing the engineers to proceed with great caution. No serious damage has been reported.

Says Rain Will Turn to Snow.

Forecaster Emory said this morning that the winds would gradualy shift to the Northwest, which would mean a sudden change in the temperature. The thermometer would, he said, fall many degress and the rain would turn to snow.

To-day's storm is a combination of two, one from Lake Superior and the other from Kansas, that came together last night off the Maryland coast and then moved northward with great velocity. The rain area to-day is very extensive, every State east of the Mississippi River having a heavy rainfall, with the exception of Maine and New Hampshire.

The heavy rain and high tide made Pavonia avenue near the Erie ferry-house, Jersey City, impassable. The lower end of the thoroughfare was completely under water. Trolley cars discharged their passengers a quarter mile back from the ferry. Heavy teams, in many instances, found it impossible to get aboard the ferry-boats, owing to the steep incline of the runways leading to the decks.

Along the Coney Island water front precautions were taken yesterday against the expected high spring tide. Porches were reinforced and steps leading from hotel verandas to the sand were removed. Old water men on the island saw signs of the coming tempest and made a round of the beach hotels, warning their proprietors and care-takers against the incoming high water.

Flood on Coney Island.

To-day the water was higher than at any time this year. It reached porches a hundred feet from the normal water's edge, and many of them were flooded and floors were covered with wash two and three feet deep. It is estimated that the water to-day along the Coney Island front was fourteen feet higher than during the highest tide in summer months.

At Dreamland part of the boardwalk was carried away.

At Ravenhall's, the Majestic Hotel and others between Steeplechase Park and Sea Beach, giant waves smashed over the porch railings and swept into the dinnigs-rooms and kitchens and then forced their way into the bathing pavilions and half way back to Surf avenue. In many places care takers were imprisoned and unable to reach the street. No danger is anticipated, however, as the ocean front hotels are constructed on foundations solid enough to withstand a heavier attack than to-day's rise.

At Bath Beach and Sheepshead Bay dozens of small craft dragged their moorings.

MAGISTRATES CAN'T PASS DRINK CASES TO HIGHER COURTS

Prisoner Fined for Intoxication Gets Supreme Bench Decision.

Brooklynites accustomed to satisfying their thirst with products of corn, malt or the vine and thereby becoming so intoxicated as to warrant their arrest had their legal status as lawbreakers fixed by the Kings County Supreme Court this afternoon. This step was made necessary by a threatened abridgment of the right of a Brooklyn "souse" to appear before a Magistrate and be discharged—if the Magistrate felt inclined that way.

The Board of Magistrates of Brooklyn, at a special meeting last night, decided that a new law, passed March 15, by the Legislature, amending a section of the penal code, made the appearance of all plain drunks before the Court of Special Sessions mandatory, and fixed the punishment for a Brooklyn drunk at a minimum fine of $3, and possible imprisonment for six months.

Under this ruling it would become necessary for a Brooklynite arrested for intoxication to appear before a Magistrate and be held in 10 bail for future trial in the Court of Special Sessions, there to be fined to a certainty. The interpretation of the law arrived at by the Board of Magistrates was put into effect this morning, and Magistrate Naumer, in Adams Street Court, held a man charged with intoxication for trial in the Special Sessions Court.

The citizen released himself by depositing a $10 bill as bail, and hunted up Lawyer Edward J. O'Reilly, who immediately sued out a writ of habeas corpus. Arguments on the writ were heard by Justice Marean, in the Supreme Court, and he decided that the City Charter gives sole jurisdiction over all drunks, plain, fancy or ornate, to the Police Magistrates.

Which the ame serves to straighten out a situation that threatened to become intolerable to all Brooklyn drinkers. Hereafter a man may get drunk across the bridge and be arrested, secure in the conviction that the Magistrate will give him the best of it in the morning.

BOMBS WERE TO BLOW UP ITALIAN PARLIAMENT.

Poilce of Rome Think Anarchists in Plot Hid Missiles Found by Youths.

ROME, March 25.—The finding of two bombs in a suburb of Rome to-day has created a local sensation. Two young man, each about twenty years old, were taken to a hospital to-day suffering from severe wounds on the arms.

Upon being interrogated they said that while wandering in the outskirts of the city they found a package containing two round objects. They threw one to the ground, where it exploded, the flying parts inflicting their injuries.

Suspicions are entertained that the bombs were prepared by Anarchists who intended to commit an outrage at the Parliament yesterday. Having failed in their object, they hid the bombs where they were found by the young men, intending to come and get them at an opportune moment. The police are making every effort to discover who manufactured the bombs. Two other young men who were with the wounded boys have been arrested.

Danger in Using Carbolic Acid.

Carbolic acid is a perfect antiseptic and a very powerful disinfectant, but it is also a terribly dangerous poison and should never be used about the house.

In selecting a disinfectant for household use a non-poisonous one such as CN Disinfectant should be used.

CN Disinfectant is very economical, a ten-cent bottle making two gallons of disinfectant. CN is more powerful than carbolic acid and is a better antiseptic.

FLOOD TIES UP STREET TRAFFIC IN HOBOKEN.

The rainfall was so heavy in Hoboken to-day that many of the streets and cellars in the lower part of the city were flooded. For a time business in that section was at a standstill, as it was next to impossible to cross the streets.

In accordance with an old custom on rainy days, only one session was held in the public schools. For a time two of the schools, No. 7, at North street and Park avenue, and No. 5, at Second and Clinton streets, were threatened by the water that backed up on the sidewalks around these buildings, but the rain ceased and the water receded before the cellars were flooded.

The flood reached its greatest height at School No. 5. Many of the girls and smaller boys were carried by policemen across the flooded streets and into the building. This experience was apparently very pleasing to the youngsters.
