the big sum of money when you were arrested, do you?"

"I had the money all right."

"Will you tell where you got it?"

"Now, really, I would like to oblige you, but I cannot."

"How long were you in Cleveland before your arrest?"

"Quite a little. I was very sick there for several weeks."

Boisterous Trip to Jail.

At this point the woman suddenly stopped and refused to answer another question. She entered a carriage with the Sheriff and detectives and was driven to the jail.

Mrs. Boyle's trip from Pittsburg to Mercer was a boisterous one. At every station between Pittsburg and Mercer large crowds of persons congregated and cheered her, and struggled with the police in their endeavors to see and talk to her. Unlike a trip to prison on a serious charge, her journey to Mercer was more like the triumphal journey of some person of renown.

This afternoon both Boyle and his wife are locked up in the jail at Mercer, where they will remain until brought to trial for the kidnapping, which probably will be during the early part of May.

Woman and Man Guarded.

MERCER, Pa., March 27.—The party with Mrs. Boyle in custody arrived here at 11.03 A. M. Mrs. Boyle, on the arrival of the train, was taken to the Mercer County Jail, where she was placed in a cell temporarily, pending the completion of the cell she will occupy until her trial. As soon as the bolt had been shot a special guard was placed over her, and this, too, will be maintained until her trial.

A special guard has also been placed over the husband of the woman and it has been arranged that from now until the end of the trial, the two noted prisoners will not be given the slightest opportunity to get away.

In Court Next Monday.

SHARON, Pa., March 27.—Attorney Cochran, representing James P. Whitla, father of the kidnapped boy, has made information before Justice McClain at Mercer, charging Boyle and his wife with abduction. They will be given a hearing Monday.

LASHED TO BOAT AND HOPE GONE, TWO ARE SAVED

Life-Savers Put Out to Bring In Drifting Craft and Find Two Men Near Death.

(Special to The Evening World.)

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., March 27.—Government coast guards who pulled a lifeboat through the surf at Shark River to bring in what they believed to be a drifting fishing skiff found Carl Anderson and Otto Peterson, fishermen, lashed to the overturned boat and nearly dead from exposure and the exhaustion of trying to right their little craft. The two men were brought to shore and revived.

They said they had started for the fishing banks in the rough sea this morning and a big wave overturned their boat. After more than an hour of struggling to right the frail craft the men lashed themselves fast to the gunwales and had given up hope when a coast lookout, sweeping the sea with his glasses, sighted the boat.

600 CHILDREN ABOARD DISABLED SOUND STEAMER

Providence Breaks Paddle Wheel Off Point Judith and Is Towed to Newport.

NEWPORT, R. I., March 27.—With the greater part of her 1,000 passenger: unaware that an accident had happened, the steamer Providence, of the Fall River line, was towed into Newport early this morning from the vicinity of Point Judith, where during the night the steamer had become disabled through the breaking of her port paddle-wheel.

Of the passenger list on board the Providence about six hundred were school children who were bound for Washington from various sections of New England, and great was their astonishment when they awoke to find themselves at Newport instead of at New York.

The breaking of the paddle-wheel is believed to have been caused by striking a floating log or some other heavy piece of driftwood, which broke off many of the "buckets." When the Providence became disabled, wireless telegraphy again demonstrated its usefulness. By means of the mysterious waves, the steamer Commonwealth, of the same line, which was in the vicinity, was summoned, and she stood by the Providence until the tug Teaser put in an appearance and took the Providence in tow for Newport.

All of the Providence's passengers were transferred to a special train, which took them to New York. While repairs are being made on the Providence her place will be taken by the steamer Puritan.

An examination of the broken paddle wheel of the Providence showed that the radius rod was broken.

The Puritan left for New York this forenoon carrying the perishable freight from the Providence. The remainder of the freight will go over late to-day on the steamer Fall River.

CULKIN IS SUSPENDED.

The Board of Justices of the Court of Special Sessions at a special meeting this afternoon suspended Chief Clerk Charles W. Culkin, pending the outcome of the charge of grand larceny brought against him by the District-Attorney. All six justices were present. Justice Wyatt presided and made the announcement at the close of the meeting.

EVEN SOUL KISS DOESN'T CHANGE A TALKING ACT

More Than a "Buss" Required to Make Innocent Stage Stunt a Law-Breaker.

SO EXPERT TESTIFIES.

Referee Gets Light on Subject at Hearing of American Music Hall Case.

If there is kissing in a talking act on the stage, is it still a talking act?

B. A. Myers, a well-known booking agent, answered in the affirmative today at the hearing in the case of the city against the American Music Hall, held before Referee Emanuel Blumenstiel, at No. 27 Pine street.

"You know what a kiss is?" asked Seymour P. Danzig, Assistant Corporation Counsel.

"Yes, of course, I do," replied Myers, testifying as an expert.

"You've seen them and you've kissed, haven't you?"

"Should say I have."

"Well," continued Mr. Danzig, "you've seen different kinds of kissing, haven't you?"

"Sure."

"And isn't it a fact that some kisses on the stage last two or three minutes?"

"I should say between ten and fifteen seconds."

Myers explained that kissing, hugging, love-making and hand-shaking were often included in a talking act.

Kissing Doesn't Matter.

"But when the principals, 'say a man and a woman, kiss, they don't talk, do they?'" insisted Mr. Danzig.

"They don't talk when they're kissing," returned Myers. "You see, a talking act is something like a street conversation. There is no plot to carry out; it's just a sort of mixed-up affair."

"And if a man or woman kissed, or shook hands, or hugged on the street, they wouldn't be arrested, would they?" broke in George M. Leventritt, counsel for the American Music Hall.

"Hardly," said Myers. "If persons were arrested for that the jails would be overcrowded," he added, in a smothered tone.

Mr. Leventritt wanted to ask the witness about a certain act complained of as a violation of the Sunday "blue law," for which William Morris (Inc.), owner of he American Music Hall, is being prosecuted. Referee Blumenstiel said he might describe an act, without mentioning any names or place, and have the witness answer.

Just a Talking Act.

"Well," began Mr. Leventritt, "we'll suppose an act represents a wife who is jealous of her husband, and the husband is speculating in stocks against the wife's wishes. There is a misunderstanding between them, which is later adjusted and the kiss and make up. What would you term the act?"

"A talking act," replied Myers.

"And not a comedy, tragedy or farce?"

"No."

Mr. Danzig, whose brother is on the stage under the name of Jesse Dandy, asked Myers if he were responsible for changing the actor's name.

"I claim that distinction," said Myers.

"Well, I don't thank you a bit," snapped Danzig. "It's about the worst name I ever heard."

Referee Blumenstiel ordered all reference to Danzig's brother's change of name stricken from the record, because it had no connection with the case at issue.

Wouldn't Sing It.

"Suppose three persons were in an act," asked Mr. Danzig, "and one of them left the stage for a few minutes, to return presently in a different costume, what would you say the act was?"

"Talking act, unless there was some music," said Myers.

"And suppose a telegram was brought in to one of the persons; what then?"

"Talking act."

"With a telegram?"

"Yes; they wouldn't sing it, would they?"

Harry Gilman, stage manager at the American Music Hall, was also a witness. He told of having given instructions to all actors and actresses on the bill at the theatre to comply with the "blue law" on Sundays.

The hearing was adjourned until next Thursday.

BROADWAY RUNAWAY DRAGS POLICEMAN

Sergt. Hefferman Stops Horse After Clinging to Bridle for a Block.

Frightened by a passing automobile, a horse, driven by William Soffer, twenty-five years old, of No. 272 South street, bolted this afternoon at Broadway and Bleecker street and dashed to Houston street, where he was stopped by Sergt. Hefferman, of the Traffic Squad, who was dragged a block.

Soffer was driving south in Broadway when a motor car passed him. The smoke from the car frightened the animal, which bolted. Although the driver pulled and sawed on the reins, he was unable to stop the horse.

Cries of those on the sidewalk warned drivers, and Sergt. Hefferman succeeded in grabbing the reins.

Woman Who Will Be Executed on Monday, Her Family, Home, and Where She Will Die

TARIFF REVISION WILL HELP ALONG VOTES FOR WOMEN

Congressman Harrison Says Tax on Feminine Wear and Tea Must Have Its Effect.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—In order to expedite discussion of the Tariff bill in the House, unanimous consent to-day was given that the sessions hereafter shall begin at 10 instead of 11 o'clock A. M.; that a recess should be taken at 6, and that, resuming at 8 o'clock, the sessions should continue until 10.30 P. M. each day.

Without any intimation having been given as to when the general debate on the measure shall cease, the measure was laid before the House. Congressman Harrison, of New York, the new Democratic member of the Committee on Ways and Means, at once took the floor.

"Many schedules of the Payne bill offer ground for rejoicing among our partisans," he said. "In many cases they have not listened to the greedy clamor of selfish and unpatriotic men who have appeared before this committee demanding prohibitive rates upon their own articles."

Under Republican management, said Mr. Harrison, the nation was fast approaching bankruptcy.

"This bill contains heavy taxes upon the women of America," he continued. "In many respects they seem to have been singled out for attack. The new taxes upon tea and coffee, upon women's gloves and cotton stockings are a direct provocation to woman's suffrage. If this tariff bill does not bring about the franchise of women their cause is hopeless.

"But the most serious aspect of the situation is that these duties are chiefly specific, and fall more heavily upon the poor than upon the rich. The increased tax upon cotton stockings are even more serious than those upon women's gloves. In hose and half-hose the enormous increases in taxation are entirely upon the cheaper grades."

Congressman Longworth followed Mr. Harrison. He reviewed the campaign promises of the Democratic party and said that the minority members of the Ways and Means Committee had just as much opportunity to prepare a bill as the majority.

TWO LOST THEIR TROUSERS WITH MONEY IN SLEEPER.

Pullman Passengers in Sad Plight on Awakening After Thief Had Made a Double Haul.

COLUMBUS, O., March 27.—J. J. Tierney, a coal operator of Elkins, W. Va., who left Cleveland last night over the Big Four Railroad, found himself in the embarrassing position of not being able to leave the train at Columbus to-day for want of proper clothing and without money enough left to purchase a meal. As he slept some one stole his trousers, $65 in money, a gold watch, chain and secret society locket, two railroad mileage books and everything else in the pockets. The robbery was discovered by the sleeping car porter soon after the train left Galion.

Pullman Agent Morrison, of Columbus, received a long distance telephone message that a Mr. Rehatnal, who left Columbus on Big Four train No. 28 at 2 A. M., found himself in a similarly unfortunate condition at Cleveland. He lost, besides his trousers, $100 in money and a gold watch and chain valued at $160.

FIRE COST FOUR LIVES.

SCRANTON, Pa., March 27.—At Greenwood, near here, late last night the home of Mrs. Veronica Wochelski was destroyed by fire and the woman and her two children were burned to death and another child was so badly injured that death resulted early to-day. The children were all girls.

Two boys were badly injured before they were rescued by neighbors.

Mrs. Farmer Will Confess To Save Husband's Life.

nected with her act. The baby, Peter, was not in the house when the murder occurred. He had been sent to a neighbors for the day. And after the discovery and arrest, when Mrs. Farmer was being led to the county jail, she looked at the baby in her arms and sighed:

"How sorry I am that you cannot grow up in our new home."

For it was the removal of the Farmers to the Brennan house that first aroused suspicion.

Neighbors could not remember having seen Mrs. Brennan for over a week. Whispers started, gathered strength until they became a demand and culminated in action. Then the body in the trunk was found.

Now Mr. and Mrs. Farmer face their fate in Auburn prison. The man's case has not been passed upon by the Court of Appeals.

The woman's appeal has been answered. Gov. Hughes has refused to interfere. Attorney Edmund R. Wilcox, Mrs. Farmer's counsel, has tried every avenue of escape without avail. Mrs. Farmer will die on Monday.

"In this case, as in other cases," said the Governor in his decision, "there are those who ask for Executive interference because they are opposed to capital punishment. But the law of the State is that 'murder in the first degree is punishable by death.' However important to the interests of justice may be the exercise of the pardoning power, in exceptional cases, the Executive has no right to use this power for the purpose of effecting a practical repeal of the law. It is his duty to see, within the sphere of his Executive action, that the law of the State as to murder, as well as other laws, is faithfully executed.

No Distinction in Law.

"As the prisoner is a woman, there are those who urge that capital punishment in such a case is revolting, and that the sentence should be commuted upon the ground of sex. The law of the State regarding murder makes no distinction between the sexes, and a woman who is found guilty of this crime is subject to the same penalty as a man. The law should be impartially enforced."

There are many people who claim that Mrs. Farmer is insane, and was insane at the time of the murder. Ex-Matron Squyer gave up her position after Mrs. Farmer's conviction because she believed the woman was insane, and stated that "she simply could not stand it—could not bear to see Mrs. Farmer day after day."

Yet there is little that is instinctively dramatic about Mrs. Farmer. Wide-eyed and calm she heard the death sentence read to her by Warden Brenham.

A special cell was built for the woman in the end wing of the men's corridor. It is nearer to the death chamber—much nearer—than most of the cells. To-day or maybe to-morrow, if Mrs. Farmer listens intently, she may hear them trying the currents in the electric chair.

BULLET THROUGH BODY FIRED IN GAME OF HOLD-UP.

Just Missed the Heart, but Pierced Lung of Victim—On Operating Table Identities Assailant.

BUFFALO, March 27.—Clement Evans jr., twelve years old, was shot through the left lung last night while playing hold-up men with loaded revolvers. A .38-calibre bullet went clear through his body, barely missing the heart. He has a slight chance for life.

Martin Shannon jr., thirteen years old, admits that he shot Evans and the wounded boy identified him later while lying on the operating table at the Emergency Hospital.

PRESIDENT ELIOT THEIR GUEST

WASHINGTON, March 27.—President Taft and many other prominent men in public life will attend a dinner to be given Tuesday evening by the Washington Harvard Club. The occasion will be notable because of the presence of Charles W. Eliot, President of Harvard University, and his appearance will be somewhat in the nature of a farewell by the Harvard Alumni in this city in view of Dr. Eliot's resignation next day.

PUBLIC SERVICE BOARD LAW CONSTITUTIONAL.

Court Makes Ruling in Deciding Company in Buffalo Must Report to Commision.

ALBANY, March 27.—Supreme Court Justice Fitts to-day handed down a decision in which he holds that the Public Service Commissions law is constitutional and that the Economic Power and Construction Company, of Buffalo, is under the jurisdiction of the Second District Commission and must make reports to it.

Action was brought against the company by the Public Service Commission, through its counsel, former Judge J. B. Hale, for the payment of penalties for failure to file reports with the Commission.

The company demurred to the complaint and contended that the Public Service Commission law was unconstitutional; that the company was organized under a special legislative act which gave it sweeping powers, and it consequently was not under the jurisdiction of the Commission. The company is liable to fines at the rate of $100 a day, or a total maximum fine of $25,500. It is understood the company will appeal.

FIREMAN WEDGED BETWEEN "L" CAR AND PLATFORM

Legs Crushed, He Is Held in Vise Twenty Minutes—Freed With Axes.

For twenty minutes to-day William Bannon, a fireman, was pinned between a B. R. T. train and the edge of the platform of the "L" station at Atlantic and Snediker avenues, while men chopped away the planking to free him. He may lose a leg.

Bannon, who lives at No. 288 Smith street, was on his way to his post, with Hose Company No. 6, in Jamaica. He ran up on the station just as a Canarsie local was pulling out. He made a dash for a car, but the guard, not seeing him coming, had already slammed the gates and Bannon was flung back, dropping down between the car and the floor level.

The guard instantly gave the emergency signal, but the train moved along nearly half its length before the motorman got it halted. Bannon, suffering terribly, was wedged fast from his knees down. Members of the train crew, aided by a policeman, had to cut out the ends of four planks before they could release the victim.

Dr. Narstedt, who took him to the Bradford Street Hospital, in East New York, said the fireman's right leg was so badly crushed that it would probably have to be amputated. Bannon was also in a serious condition from loss of blood.

PAINTED ANGEL CAUGHT.

Policeman Curtin quit the Atlantic avenue station about 2 o'clock this morning and was wending his way through Eastern Parkway, Brooklyn, when at Kingston avenue he saw a vision which stood before him in a raiment of fire.

On a flaming keg stood a flaming man with flaming hands pointed to heaven.

Curtin advanced closer and saw the figure was not blazing at all, but in the darkness he shone with a dazzling brightness.

"I am an angel," insisted the man when taken to the station house, where it was discovered that he had smeared himself with phosphorus.

"No, you ain't," spoke up the lieutenant. "You are just Mike Kelly, and you have gone wrong because the moon is changing." Then Kelly was sent to the Kings County Hospital.

Kelly is thirty-eight and lives at No. 951 Pacific street. Six years ago he had his skull fractured and has been queer at intervals since.

LESS MEAT
Advice of Family Physician.

Formerly people thought meat necessary for strength and muscular vigor.

The man who worked hard was supposed to require meat two or three times a day. Science has found out differently.

It is now a common thing for the family physician to order less meat as in the following letter from a New York man.

"I had suffered for years with dyspepsia and nervousness. My physician advised me to eat less meat and greasy foods generally. I tried several things to take the place of my usual breakfast of chops, fried potatoes, etc., but got no relief until I tried Grape-Nuts food.

"After using Grape-Nuts for the cereal part of my meals for two years, I am now a well man. Grape-Nuts benefited my health far more than the $500.00 worth of medicine I had taken before.

"My wife and children are healthier than they had been for years, and we are a very happy family, largely due to Grape-Nuts.

"We have been so much benefited by Grape-Nuts that it would be ungrateful not to acknowledge it."

CHASE HARRIED INTO SUICIDE, SAYS VETERAN'S WIDOW

Health Wrecked and Heart-broken by Efforts to Oust Him From Navy Yard.

HIS PLACE "WANTED."

Finally Given Indefinite Leave of Absence He Lost Hope and Ended Life.

Although prostrated with grief, Mrs. Aquilla Chase told a harrowing story to-day of the circumstances which prompted her aged husband to commit suicide by shooting himself through the heart at Broadway and Thirty-fifth street yesterday afternoon in the presence of hundreds of passersby.

Mrs. Chase is alone at her little home at No. 82 Norman avenue, Brooklyn, to-day. In the prettily furnished little parlor rests the body of her husband and while telling an Evening World reporter of the events which led up to her husband's suicide the widow sat by the coffin, every few moments stroking the face of her dead.

"It was an effort on the part of the officials at the Navy-Yard to force my husband out, to humiliate him so that he would resign—for they couldn't discharge him—that broke his heart. He was a proud man. Proud of the fine old blood that coursed through his veins and proud of his civil war record, for he was the youngest man to enlist in the Federal Army.

Tried to Crowd Him Out.

"For thirteen years he has been employed at the Navy-Yard as a carpenter, at which work he was an expert. Then those in charge, evidently hoping to place some one else in his position, detailed him to do outside work. This he continued to do for a year, although he was keenly humiliated. Then last fall he was assigned to a class of work which any day laborer could perform.

"His salary was not reduced, but to a man of his refinement, education and fine sensibilities this treatment stung him to desperation. During the civil war he contracted a heavy cold and this left him with weak lungs and a weak throat. He was in constant dread of consumption and when he saw my son—I was Mr. Chase's second wife—die of consumption several years ago, he told me if he ever contracted the disease he would kill himself rather than waste away.

"His cold was aggravated last winter by the variable weather to which he was exposed, and he asked to be allowed to lay off for six weeks so that he could seek a change and endeavor to build up his undermined constitution. This leave of absence was granted, but when he returned, ready and willing to take up the arduous duties of a laborer again, he was told that he had been indefinitely laid off.

Crushed by Blow.

"This was the blow that crushed him, and he exerted every effort possible since then to be reinstated. About ten days ago he went to Sagamore Hill and saw former President Roosevelt. He told me Mr. Roosevelt received him most cordially, and told him to "write to Taft" and everything would be all right.

"This he did and yesterday morning he received a reply from the President, but he would neither show me the letter nor tell me of its contents. When I pressed the matter he told me he would show it to me when I returned from a shopping trip I intended making to Manhattan.

"I left the house with my sister and Mr. Chase told me he would be at home to greet me upon my return. That is the last I saw of him, and at half-past five o'clock I learned he had ended his life.

"I am told he left the house about ten minutes after my departure, but where he procured the pistol with which he shot himself I don't know, as I am positive he didn't own one prior to yesterday."

Mrs. Chase denied that she is in want. The little home is that of a family in moderate circumstances, and on every side are evidences of culture and refinement.

She said her husband was very proud of his ancestry and often referred to his cousin, Salmon P. Chase, who was Secretary of the Treasury in the Lincoln Cabinet and later Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court.

"Mr. Chase comes from an old Maine family," Mrs. Chase continued, "and two nieces, one of whom will be here to-day, are very well known on the concert stage, but I will not reveal their names."
