YOUNG POLICEMAN SAVES A BABY AT RISK OF HIS LIFE

Unconscious in Hospital After Plunge Into Smoke-Filled House.

For an act of splendid heroism by which he saved a baby from death, Cornelius Platt, a young policeman, may give his own life. He is at Seney Hospital, Brooklyn, in a critical condition from breathing smoke into his lungs.

Early this afternoon fire started in the cellar of the three-story, double decker flat house at No. 534 Sixth avenue, Brooklyn. Before all the tenants had heard the first alarm the whole building was filled with thick clouds of smoke. Those who lived on the lower floor got out by the stairways, but their neighbors above had to climb down the fire escapes.

Before the engines arrived Patrolman Platt of the Fifth avenue station ran up. He has been on the force only a few months. His first question was whether everybody was out of the building. Somebody recalled that Joe Cirket, four months old, had been left on the top floor.

By this time smoke was pouring from all the windows and the hallways were black with it. Platt lingered only long enough to tie a handkerchief over his nose and muffle his face in his collar. Then with his head down and his shoulders hunched he dived into the smoke.

Just as the crowd was beginning to give up hope of seeing him again Platt came staggering out of the hallway through a door that was already afire. He was as black as a negro. His helmet was gone and his hair was singed off. He reeled across the sidewalk and dropped in the gutter. Two men caught him before he fell. As they eased him to the earth a tiny white bundle slid out from under his coat. The bundle was the Cirket child, half smothered, but not really injured.

Platt had climbed to the top floor, groped about in the strange surroundings of the flat until his hands felt the child and then he had come back down again through the smoke and frightful heat.

He was rushed to the hospital, where artificial respiration was used in an effort to bring him around. His condition, so the house physician said, was critical. Platt is twenty-six years old and married. His home is at No. 696 Henry street, Brooklyn.

The fire was extinguished after it had cleaned out the cellar and the lower floor of the house.

Our Leather and Metal Novelties are specially recommended for the Xmas gifts of men who silently "knock" the ordinary present.

Things useful as well as novel.

"Kwik-pak" collar cases to pack collars compactly; a British officer's ingenious device.

Shaving mirrors that stick on a window-pane anywhere.

Desk fittings, ash receivers, shaving sets, dressing cases with and without fittings.

Cigarette cases, both leather and metal, uncommonly nice because uncommon.

Tie holders, lawyers' brief folios, carafes, foot-warmers, auto-compasses.

Ladies!

If you give him a scarf, emember his preference for wearable scarfs from a man's store.

Keiser Barathea scarfs if he fancies plain colors.

Keiser scarfs of fancy patterns if he fancies fancier scarfs.

(Mere man might blue pencil this suggestion and quietly leave it on the living-room table.)

Men's High-Class Shirts

Finest $1.25 to $2 Grades, on Sale, Tomorrow, at . . 79c

Choicest Materials in Colors and Plain White; Plaited and Plain Bosoms. Every Shirt Flawless—Perfect.

Business hasn't been good with a great many of the so-called "exclusive" men's shops, and the manufacturer who supplies them consequently had too many shirts on hand. WE BOUGHT THEM, and they're HERE FOR YOU.

This is the end-of-season clean-up of surplus stocks from one of the biggest and best-known manufacturers of high-class shirts in the United States.

You'll find the abels of at least ten well-known New York men's furnishing stores sewn in the neckbands of these shirts. We don't take the label out—why should we?

Every one of these shirts is guaranteed to fit and every one was made for this season's selling. They are colored and white; coat style; attached cuffs; plaited and plain bosoms. This is a fine opportunity to buy for Christmas gift-giving; also to "stock up" for Winter.
