THREE HOLDUP MEN ATTACK TWO BOYS, FATALLY STAB ONE

Tony Jantokas, nineteen years old, of No. 313 East One Hundred and Third street, employed as a pinboy at a bowling alley at One Hundred and Fifteenth street and Eighth avenue, received his week's pay of $6 early to-day, placed it in his shoe, and was walking home with his friend, Gustav Magades, another pinboy, living at No. 317 East One Hundred and Third street, when three men pounced on them on One Hundred and Fifteenth street between Seventh and Eighth avenues. The men demanded money from the boys, who declared they had none.

"The hell you haven't," one of the men said, and then they knocked the boys down. They screamed, but the men stuffed caps into their mouths and gagged them. Two of the men held them down, while the third went through their pockets. They had not finished when Tony freed himself of the gag and yelled. The man who was going through his pockets then stabbed him in the back.

Patrolman Hagen heard the cry and appeared and the men ran.

Hagen took up the chase, which led to Seventh avenue. The men then ran south and got as far as One Hundred and Fourteenth street when the policeman pulled out his revolver and fired three shots. The men stopped short.

The prisoners at the West One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street station said they were Frank H. Boyle, nineteen years old, a plumber, of No. 274 West One Hundred and Nineteenth street; Joseph Scott, nineteen, No. 315 West One Hundred and Twenty-first street, and Benjamin Baker, twenty-one, laborer, of No. 64 Lawrence street. Jantokas declared that Boyle was the man who stabbed him. The men were all locked up charged with assault and robbery. No money was taken from either of the two pinboys.

Dr. Harrington was summoned from the J. Hood Wright Hospital. He found that Jankotas had been stabbed between the ribs, and he feared that the knife had penetrated the lung.
