standing that eight of them, pledged to Roosevelt, had been elected by some 9,000 majority.

The Taft boomers demanded that these eight delegates be given to President Taft. When the Colonel calmly handed them over, the Taft men were stunned into silence for the time being. However, they feel they are rightly entitled to these delegates because if it had not been for a ballot blunder which invalidated thousands of Taft votes the eight delegates-at-large pledged to him would have been elected.

James P. Magenis, one of the eight delegates instructed for Roosevelt, declared to-day that he could see no way of evading his instructions, notwithstanding the Presidential preference vote showed a majority for Taft.

"It is clear direction," said Mr. Magenis, "and I see no way of evading it. We are delegates for Roosevelt and that is why we received the votes."

From the figures turned in it would appear that President Taft lost just about 9,000 votes because of the invalidation of ballots cast for his delegates-at-large. His popular preferential vote was approximately 75,000, while the vote for his delegates-at-large was only approximately 66,000.

In the Presidential election of 1908 President Taft garnered 265,965 votes in Massachusetts. Only about 140,000 votes were cast in yesterday's Republican primary, or 55 per cent. of the total Republican vote of the State.

Returns from 1,077 out of 1,080 election precincts give:

Republican (Presidential preference)—La Follette, 1,756; Roosevelt, 71,698; Taft, 74,808.

Delegates-at-Large—Baxter (heading Roosevelt group), 74,121; Crane (heading Taft group), 65,976.

Democratic (Presidential preference)—Clark, 29,905; Wilson, 5,588.

TAFT LED COLONEL IN THE POPULAR VOTE.

The Roosevelt managers declare that the result spells defeat for Taft. The uttermost limit of the Roosevelt hopes was twelve delegates. That Roosevelt has annexed the eight delegates at large is a matter of Roosevelt luck, for Taft would have had them but for the mix-up in the ballot which invalidated so many of the votes of his supporters.

Senator La Follette's poor showing is considered to have entirely eliminated his chances for the nomination. In many districts he did not receive a single vote. His supporters are dismayed over his showing and admit that it probably puts him out of the race.

CHAMP CLARK OVERWHELMED WOODROW WILSON.

Champ Clark, in the Democratic primaries, simply trampled on Woodrow Wilson, beating him by better than 2 to 1. The Massachusetts delegates-at-large to the Democratic Convention, although instructed for Gov. Foss, are really Clark assets because of the overwhelming preferential vote cast for Clark.

Senator Murray Crane and Senator Lodge are hard hit by the Roosevelt victory. Senator Crane was the active leader of the Taft campaign. Already the Roosevelt managers are planning to take the State machine away from Crane and Lodge.

President Taft carried Boston by more than 600 votes, but the eastern towns, including many in the Cape Cod and Plymouth districts lined up strong for Roosevelt. The central part of the state was an even break. The residential portions of the cities were for Taft and many of the manufacturing cities were for Roosevelt. It is estimated that the total vote for the two candidates was about 50 per cent. of that polled by the Republican candidate for Governor at the November election.

TAFT LEADS IN POPULAR VOTE BY 5,000.

Geb. Champlin, head of the Taft forces in the State, estimated that Taft has carried the State on the matter of Presidential preference by 10,000, but the figures indicate half that. There does not appear to be any doubt that Taft is the popular choice of the Republicans of the Bay State.

Eighty-nine towns and six cities, including Boston, gave Roosevelt a lead of 587 over President Taft, but later returns from other cities and towns put Mr. Taft in the lead.

Boston went to Taft by 667. Woburn was for Taft by 10, North Adams for the President by 13, Newburyport for Taft by 87. Haverhill went to the Colonel by 242, and in Lynn the latter led Mr. Taft by 205.

The complete returns from the city of Boston give:

Republican preferences: Taft, 11,382; Roosevelt, 10,651; La Follette, 249. For Delegates-at-Large: Baxter (leading Roosevelt group), 10,812; Crane (leading Taft group), 10,672.

Democratic preferences: Clark, 14,809; Wilson, 5,579. For Delegates-at-Large: Coughlin (pledged to Foss), 12,101; Williams (pledged to Wilson), 5,423.

The early returns showed some interesting details. The returns were slow in coming in because of the difference in the hours during which the polls were open. In Boston the polls opened at 6 o'clock in the morning and closed at 4. In the outside sections the hours varied from 11 to 5 for the beginning of the voting and from 5 to 9 P. M. for the closing.

FIGHT FOR THE STATE MOST BITTER.

The fight for Massachusetts between President Taft and Col. Roosevelt was the most bitter that ever characterized the State. Surprising changes developed from day to day. Before the passage of the Presidential primary election law six weeks ago it was believed that there would be little or no opposition to President Taft. The Crane machine was committed to his support and the friends of Col. Roosevelt made no effort to force a lineup.

After the passage of the Presidential primary law, which provided for an ante-convention expression of opinion by the voters of both parties regarding the Presidency, Col. Roosevelt decided to make a fight. It was in Boston that he announced his decision to be a candidate for a third term.

From Boston he gave out his reply to the seven Governors who urged him to announce his candidacy. From that time he and his friends concentrated on the Old Bay State.

The Colonel made three speaking tours, the last winding up on Monday night. It was not until last week that President Taft awoke to the necessity of making a fight for the election of the delegates at large.

Goaded by the personal attacks of Col. Roosevelt, the President finally decided to retaliate, and made an eleventh hour attempt to save the State.

VOTE IN GEORGIA FAVORS WILSON.

ATLANTA, Ga., May 1.—Georgia is to-day casting a light vote in the Democratic Presidential primaries. Up to late this afternoon the indications were that Wilson was leading Underwood by a slight majority.

ROOSEVELT MEN BOSS CONVENTION IN PENNSYLVANIA

HARRISBURG, Pa., May 1.—The Republican State Convention to-day was dominated by delegates favoring Col. Roosevelt and it adopted a "progressive" platform which lauded Roosevelt and omitted mention of President Taft or the work of his Administration.

The following ticket was named: State Treasurer—Robert K. Young, Wellboro. Auditor—A. W. Powell, Pittsburgh. Congressmen-at-large—Fred E. Lewis, Allentown; Arthur R. Ruppley, Carlisle; John M. Morin, Pittsburgh; Anderson H. Walters, Johnstown.

The twelve delegates-at-large to the Chicago convention were instructed for Roosevelt.

RECALCITRANT WITNESS FREE

Senate Committee Lets Dunn Return to New York.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—E. J. Dunn of New York, a recalcitrant witness in the Titanic inquiry, has been released.

Dunn had testified that the White Star line officials received positive information of the Titanic disaster twelve hours before they made it public, but he declined to divulge to the committee the identity of his information.

Dunn has returned to New York. Senator Smith will seek light on this and other matters in New York.

SOMETHING DOING IF BROKER COMBS FINDS ELOPING SON

Talk of Strap Oil and Annulment of Marriage of 17-Year-Old Schoolboy.

AUNT HUNTS FOR BRIDE.

But She Doesn't Blame the 21-Year-Old Chorus Girl So Much as the Youth.

If Albert Henry Combs, seventeen-year-old son of H. B. Combs, a wealthy broker of No. 47 West Forty-ninth street, will get in touch with his father he will learn things to interest him. While Papa Combs frantically searches for his young son the youth, a bridegroom of a few days, is in hiding with his bride, who was Miss Mildred Helen Berger. There is no fatted calf awaiting Albert at the home of the father. It is more likely that Albert will be treated to numerous applications of strap oil when again he is under the parental roof-tree.

Young Mrs. Albert Henry Combs is wanted by her aunt, Mrs. E. J. Wagner of No. 48 West Fifty-ninth street. Mrs. Wagner will welcome her niece, but as for "that snip of a boy"—as she calls Albert, the bridegroom—there is "nothing doing." Mrs. Wagner expects to hear from her niece, but declines to say whether she knows of her whereabouts.

FATHER OF THE BRIDE A MILWAUKEE PHYSICIAN.

The bride comes of a wealthy family in Milwaukee. Her father, Dr. Henry Berger, is well known in professional and club circles. Miss Berger was seized with a desire to go on the stage last fall and came to New York. She found a place in the chorus of "The Kiss Waltz" company, then playing at the Casino. She was well regarded in the company because of her culture and education.

After playing with the company in New York she went on the road. About a month ago she quit the chorus. She had been ambitious to continue her stage career, but when Albert Henry Combs, the seventeen-year-old son of the broker, stepped into the spotlight she was not so anxious.

Albert was tatending a preparatory school at Fairfield, Conn. He became acquainted with twenty-one-year Miss Berger while she was playing in "The Kiss Waltz." Albert's schoolboy heart began to beat like a $1 watch from the first moment he cast his eyes on the Milwaukee beauty. When he told Papa Combs he wanted to get married he was ordered back to school, but Friday Albert eloped to Summit, N. J., with Mildred, and since then he has been sought by his father.

AUNT SAYS SHE ORDERED YOUNG COMBS AWAY.

Mrs. Wagner said to-day she had objected to young Combs and that she tried her best to prevent her niece and the boy from meeting. Last week when Albert called at the Wagner home he was ordered out.

"I disapproved of the marriage," said Mrs. Wagner, "and I am sorry that my niece, who comes of an excellent family—a family that young Combs should consider it an honor to be a member of—should be made to bear the brunt of this affair. It is true that she is somewhat older than Combs, but she is a girl of the finest qualities, and I think if the Combs family had been as careful of their jewel of a son as I have been of my niece that this would not have happened."

Papa Combs has little to say, but there is a glint in his eye that betokens great wrath and wonderful possibilities. It was said by friends of the family that steps will be taken to annul the marriage because of the boy's youth. He has just turned seventeen years and wonder is expressed that a marriage license was granted him in New Jersey.

Boy Drowned at Play.

Twelve-year-old Nicholas Bader of No. 312 East Ninetieth street fell into the East River while playing on the pier at the foot of East Eighty-sixth street this afternoon and was drowned. His body was not recovered.

HURRY MAN'S KIT OF TOOLS CAUSES ARREST 16 TIMES

"Going to Do a Job," Fisher's Reply at Night, Leads Him to Stations.

Ralph Fisher, twenty-six years old, a hard working and honest mechanic, has been arrested sixteen times during the past few weeks by alert policemen and detectives on the charge of having what might be classed as burglars' tools in his possession, but each time, after explanations, he has been allowed to go.

No more will Fisher be compelled to explain to lieutenants that he is an honest man, for Commissioner Waldo to-day issued to him the first passport the Department has ever given, which is expected to give Fisher safe conduct through the streets of the city during the night.

Fisher, who lives at No. 552 West Fifty-fourth stret, is employed by a firm in the St. James Building, No. 1133 Broadway, which repairs utensils in the kitchens of the big hotels and restaurants. He goes on duty at midnight and is subject to hurry calls.

Fisher is required to carry a formidable assortment of tools and it is this bag of implements which caused him much annoyance on his present job. He explained to-day when he called upon Commissioner Waldo that the first time he started on a hurry call he was stopped by a policeman who wanted to know what he had in the bag. This was in early morning and when Fisher replied that he had tools, the policeman wanted to know where he was going with them.

"To do a job,' replied Fisher, to which the policeman replied:

"Not if I see you first," and took him to a station house and laid before the desk lieutenant his complete set of tools.

Fisher said he gave the lieutenant his telephone number of his firm and that of the hotel from which he had received the call. After his story was verified he was allowed to go. Since then the same thing has happened fifteen times and Fisher says he is sick of it. He told Commissioner Waldo this afternoon that it has got so that the desk lieutenant knew him when he was brought in.

UNDERWOOD LEADS WILSON IN FLORIDA.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., May 1.—Oscar Underwood's lead over Gov. Woodrow Wilson in yesterday's Presidential primaries in Florida was maintained by scattering returns from the country districts to-day. Several places reported Wilson gaining slightly, but these gains were offset by the count elsewhere. The complete vote will not be known before late to-night or to-morrow.

Incomplete returns from Key West, centre of the cigar making industry, give Underwood 651 and Wilson 98. Results in other cases show similar majorities. Pensacola and Palm Beach have gone for Mr. Wilson, according to incomplete count.

TAFT SILENT ON THE RETURNS FROM BAY STATE

Gets the News On His Arrival In Savannah But Makes No Comment on Result.

SAVANNAH, Ga., May 1.—President Taft reached Savannah at 10 o'clock to-day from Washington. He will be the guest to-night of the Hibernian Society of Savannah at its centennial celebration and banquet.

The President received his information of the results of the Massachusetts primaries when he reached this city. Although he remained up in his private car until late last night, he got no word from Boston or from Washington. The first indication of the closeness of the fight in the Bay State came to Mr. Taft at breakfast, when he saw a Savannah newspaper.

He eagerly inquired for later developments as soon as he was comfortably settled in the home of Gen. W. W. Gordon, his host on this visit. The information that he was leading in the preferential vote pleased the President greatly, and he was hopeful that later news might be still more encouraging. He made no comment.

Aside from the banquet to-night, the committee on arrangements had mapped out a programme for Mr. Taft's stay here to-day that included luncheon at the Thunderbolt Casino, a short talk to students at the Georgia State Industrial College and a reception to the Savannah Yale Alumni.

Gov. Brown of Georgia welcomed Mr. Taft to Savannah as he left his private car.

Found Dead of Indigestion.

Samuel Marshall of No. 1650 Madison avenue, Paterson, N. J., was found dead, sitting in a chair in his dining-room, by neighbors who had entered to learn why he had not been seen about for several days. His wife is in the General Hospital and he had been doing his own housework and cooking. County Physician Armstrong said that acute indigestion caused death.

WHY WORRY ABOUT YOUR COMPLEXION?
When It's Perfectly Easy to Have Good-Looking Face and Hands
Springtime, with its sudden changes from balmy temperature to chilly, with high winds and clouds of dust plays havoc with delicate complexions. Wind and sun dry out the natural oil from the skin, pores, and face and hands become red and roughened.
Velogen rubbed gently into face and hands night and morning and before going out of doors works wonders in restoring the complexion. For chapped lips, abrasions and superficial burns there is nothing better. It is not greasy or sticky. Will not soil the finest dress fabric and is pleasant to use.
