The Broussard School.

Mr. C. K. Olivier, a teacher in the Broussard public school, informed The Gazette that the attendance at that school has already reached eighty pupils and that it continues to increase. Mr. Olivier says that with certain improvements the Alliance building, recently donated to the school, will be a very commodious school-house and fully adequate to the needs of the community. The people of Broussard and vicinity are taking a most commendable interest in their public school as was shown by the liberal donation of a two-story school-house and lot which has just been made by the farmers. Miss Trousdale of Monroe, who is principal of the Broussard school, is a graduate of the State Normal and is a competent teacher. She is very ably assisted by Mr. C. K. Olivier, who has done a great deal toward building up the school.

A Big Mortgage.

The largest deed of mortgage ever recorded in this parish is now being placed on file in the clerk's office. It is a mortgage by the Trust Company of the Republic of New York on the property of the International Telephone Company of America to cover a loan of one hundred million dollars. The recording of the deed in this parish is explained by the fact that the Teche and Vermilion Telephone line is owned by the International Telephone of America which is chartered in the State of Delaware.

REPORT ON COTTON.

A New Feature to Secure Quickly Accurate Statistics of the Cotton Crop.

Mr. Jos. R. Domengeaux, of Lafayette, has been appointed a local special agent of the Census Office to collect cotton-ginning statistics for this parish, and we join the Government in urging the ginners to give Mr. Domengeaux their hearty support and cooperation, thus enabling him to make prompt and accurate returns. We would impress upon the ginners the fact that this agent is a sworn officer of the Government, and that their reports, are forwarded as given to him directly to the Census Office, at Washington, without passing through the hands of any middlemen. The information given is held as strictly confidential, and the operations of individual ginners are not divulged. Upon the joint cooperation of the cotton growers, ginners and local agents must depend the success of the Census office in this inquiry, and its ability to render this great service to the Southern people and to all interested in the cotton staple.

The Census Office has demonstrated in three annual reports, the fact that the ginners are the only reliable source of information as to the volume of the annual cotton crop. This is very complimentary to the ginners, who, no doubt, will feel a pride in sustaining a reputation earned.

In recognition of this interest shown by the ginners, and of a general demand for more frequent reports through this source. Congress, in the act creating a permanent census office, provided for the collection and publication of these statistics at intervals during the ginning season. For the crop of 1902 the office will issue three reports: the first two will cover the quantity of cotton ginned up to and including October 18 and December 13, respectively; and the final report will cover the total quantity ginned from the growth of 1902.

Realizing that the collection of the data for these reports is made at the season when the ginners' time is greatly taxed, and appreciating the neccessity for prompt returns, the Census Office has located, in each parish containing ten or more ginneries, an agent, who will visit each ginnery in the parish and secure a report of the quantity of cotton ginned up to certain dates. In undertaking the frequent and hurried reports now sought, it is of vital importance that the returns be made with absolute uniformity, and that all be received at Washington at one time. This result could not be expected from individual requests made by mail of 30,000 ginners, at a time when they are engrossed in their ginning work. Furthermore, the Census Office must be kept advised of all changes in the management and operation of these establishments, and secure returns from all new and revived plants. To accomplish such results, it becomes necessary for the office to have local representatives who shall be charged with the duty of keeping in close touch with the ginning industry in each county, and of promptly reporting the quantity of cotton ginned.

The statistics for the October report will be collected during the week beginning with Monday, October 20, and ginners should keep such records as will enable them to furnish promptly the required information. These returns will be tabulated, and the result published within one week from their receipt at Washington.

Cotton statistics collected through the commercial system, however accurately compiled, fall short of the demand of both producer and manufacturer—first, in that as they cover the quantity of cotton marketed between September 1 of one year and August 31 of the following, they are not statistics of a crop grown in any one year; and second, in the liability to error involved in statistics so compiled. Nothing short of official reports, made sufficiently early to form a basis of prices, will entirely satisfy the cotton grower or manufacturer. It is gratifying to know that the South has the assistance and cooperation of the Government in bringing about the result they desire—an undertaking the success of which now depends upon the cotton growers and ginners themselves.
