PEOPLE TO VOTE ON CONSTITUTION NEXT NOVEMBER

Sulzer in Special Message Urges It, and Bills Are Advanced in Both Houses.

ATTACKED BY WAGNER.

Senator Says Former Bill Was Vetoed to Carry Out Deal With Progressives.

ALBANY, N. Y., June 18.—Gov. Sulzer recommended in a special message to the Legislature to-day the passage of a bill to submit to the voters of the State at the November election the question: "Shall there be a convention to revise the constitution and amend the same?"

The Legislature at its regular session passed a bill providing for the submission of the question at a special election to have been held June 3, but the Governor vetoed it, declaring it would cost the State $1,000,000 for the special election and that insufficient time was allowed to prepare for such an election.

The Governor in his message to-day quotes from his veto memorandum to show why he disapproved the bill and adds:

"The pledged faith of the Democratic party to call this constitutional convention before the time provided in Article 14, Section 2 of the State constitution, will, in my opinion, be strictly fulfilled by the submission of this question at the November election of this year; and, if favorable, this will permit the election of delegates pursuant to the constitutional provisions in November, 1914, and the assembling of the delegates in April, 1915.

"The holding of a constitutional convention in April, 1915, will be three years in advance of the time fixed in the constitution.

"The plan of submitting the question of whether a convention shall be called at the fall election of this year and the election of delegates thereto in the November election of next year, will avoid the necessity of the large and unnecessary expense of a special election for such purpose.

"The fulfilment of a party pledge, with the least possible expense to the taxpayers of the State, is an object which I am sure every member of the Legislature, as well as myself, favors most heartily.

"The bill concerning this important matter, which I believe at this time should receive your favorable consideration, should be a measure presenting to the voters, solely the question prescribed by the constitution, shall there be a convention to revise the constitution and amend the same?"

Bills designed to carry out the Governor's recommendation were introduced to-day by Senator Simpson and Assemblyman Levy. The Senate bill was advanced to third reading at once and referred to the judiciary committee. The assembly bill was referred without comment.

Majority Leader Wagner of the Senate criticised the Governor for his action in vetoing the constitutional convention bill which passed at the regular session.

The Senate had its fling at the Governor. Majority Leader Wagner criticised him for vetoing the Tammany bill for a vote during the summer on a convention. He charged the executive with failure to keep the party pledge and intimated that the Tammany bill was vetoed by the Governor in return for the support of the Progressive party for his primary bill.

IT MAKES A DIFFERENCE, DECLARES WAGNER.

"It seems to make a difference who violates a party pledge," Senator Wagner shouted. "We are accused of violating a party pledge in relation to the direct primary, but when the Governor plainly violates a party pledge it is taken in some quarters as the proper course.

"The Democratic party promised the people a constitutional convention 'at the earliest possible moment.' Such a convention could have been held 'at the earliest possible moment' if a special election had been provided for between the regular session and November of this year. Delegates could be elected this fall and the convention could be held next spring.

"The Democratic leaders, including Senator O'Gorman, decided in conference to provide for an election this month to pass upon the question of a constitutional convention.

"No taxpayer complained of our bill. There was nothing but partisan opposition. Before the Governor the only opposition was expressed by the leader of the Progressive party. There is a report that the Governor vetoed the bill for support for his direct primary bill and that the Progressives threatened to desert him if he signed the Democratic organization bill. So you see how easy it is for some to break party pledges."

WALL STREET.

Stocks were in brisk demand in the early trading, a strong tone being in evidence, and a number of the important issues were established at the highest range on this movement. Reading and Union Pacific were the features, the former gaining 1⅝ and the latter advancing 1⅞. United States Steel rose ⅝, Amalgamated Copper 1⅛ and Inter.-Met. preferred advanced 2 points, with most of the stocks participating in the advance.

Money, crop prospects and politics are mentioned as easily the three most important factors in the financial situation at the present time. In fact, the opinion prevails that they will continue to play an equally prominent part for some time to come.

The supply of funds the world over will continue to be comparatively limited, while the demand will be correspondingly active, unless steps are taken to reduce the demand for money on the part of European governments.

Around 11 o'clock the demand for stocks had slacked up and part of the first hour's advance was lost in recessions that took place in the leaders. Since the recent low level was reached in the stock market a great many small lots of stocks have been bought by investors, who generally come into the market with ready cash, buying dividend paying stocks, and get a higher rate of interest than from any other source. These small lots in the aggregate amount to many thousands of shares.

The afternoon session was very dull, although prices were maintained around the high level established early in the day. Illinois Central sold off 2⅝ points, but later on recovered part of its loss while the active stocks closed less than a point off from the top prices of the day. Total sales 848,300.

RAPID NOVEL WRITING.

(From the London Chronicle.)

"Michael Fairless," according to her biographer, wrote her masterpiece, "The Road Mender," in nine days. A remarkable feat, but by no means a record, for did not Johnson write "Rasselas"—a book of about similar length to "The Road Mender"—in the evenings of a single week, and Dumas undertook, for a bet, to write the first volume of the "Chevalier de la Maison Rouge," to consist of 80,000 words, in seventy-six hours, and won with six hours to spare! Among modern writers Sir Arthur Wing Pinero turned out his play, "Two Hundred a Year" in a single afternoon. On the other hand, it took Gray years and years to write his Elegy. So you cannot set the record of time and achievement.

3,000 JERSEY CITY BABIES PARADE AS 100,000 LOOK ON

Infant Five Days Old Christened in a Hurry to Be Ready for a Prize.

PICTURESQUE FLOAT

Salvation Army Girls Toss Flowers Along Line of March.

Three thousand youngsters, ranging in ages from five days to fourteen years, this afternoon passed in full review before about a hundred thousand critical fathers, mothers and relatives in the annual Jersey City baby parade. The procession formed at Warren street and Newark avenue at 2 o'clock and moved along the latter thoroughfare through a lane of humanity about two miles in length.

Newark avenue buildings were draped with flags and bunting. The public and parochial schools closed at noon and about seventy-five thousand children from far and near were among the spectators.

Stanislaw Polesie of No. 55 Essie street, who was born Saturday, was the youngest baby in the parade. He was christened yesterday so that the judges might know what to call him if they gave him a prize.

Frank Hague, new Commissioner of Public Safety, and his deputy, James Norton, had the big crowd of spectators well in hand as the gay pageant started on its way. Three hundred uniformed police and about fifty plainclothes men were on duty.

Col. Henry Brinkerhoff, late of the Fourth Regiment National Guard, was grand marshal of the baby parade. The nine divisions behind him were divided into baby carriages, pushcarts, floats, Sunday-schools and cadet corps.

The most unique float was that of the Salvation Army, which was designed by Major Wallace Winschell. It represented a block of tenements, showing how the people are crowded in those big structures. Miss May Winschell, six years old, daughter of the Major, and two Salvation Army lassies tossed roses, carnations and ivy leaves among the spectators as the float moved along. The flowers were all plucked from the hundreds or more floral pieces sent to the five new Commissioners who took over the affairs of Jersey City yesterday.

The parade had not been in progress half an hour before the "Lost and Found" asylum in the Hanley Building at Newark avenue and Cooper place became conjested with lost youngsters. At 2.30 there were forty-eight children in the big detention room patiently waiting for their mammas.

In the grandstand at Newark and Jersey avenues were the following judges: Gov. Fielder, Mayor Fagan, former Mayor Wittpenn and the members of the new commission government board. There were also on the stand State Senator Colgate, Prosecutor Hudspeth, County Supervisor O'Mealia, Mgr. John A. Sheppard of St. Michael's Roman Catholic Church and James G. Haskins.

The baby parade was under the direction of the Jersey City Business Mens' Association. Ten thousand miniature airships were distributed among the children. Every boy and girl along the line of march was armed with a whistle cane. Not less than 15,000 were given away.

BANKER BYERS WON'T CONTEST DIVORCE SUIT

Sleuth Tells How Evidence Was Gained After Following Trail for Several Weeks.

When Mrs. Frances Fisher Byers, wife of William H. Byers, of the banking house of W. H. Byers & Co., of No. 100 Broadway, appeared before Justice Greenbaum in the Supreme Court to-day it became known that her banker-husband has decided to let her suit for divorce go by default. Mrs. Byers on the stand reduced her claim for $600 alimony to $100, provided her husband was willing to support and educate their two children, Gardner and Emily, custody of whom she asked. The justice confirmed the agreement.

Mrs. Byers's principal witness was Lewis C. Devereaux, once investigator for the American Sugar Refining Company, who was assigned to follow Byers by an official of the refining company, a friend of the Byers. Devereaux testified that early this spring he took up the trail of the banker, an dafter following him several weeks trapped him one evening when Byers alighted at the Times Square subway station. After visiting the Knickerbocker and Cadillac Hotels, said Devereaux, Byers went to an apartment on the fourth floor of the Arcadia Apartment. The sleuth sent for his employer and an entrance was forced. Byers was found with a young woman.

BABY MAKES JUDGE RELENT AND PAROLE ITS FATHER.

Money and Promise of Work for Man Who Stole to Keep Loved Ones From Starving.

When Joseph Whitman of No. 305 West Twenty-seventh street pleaded guilty before Judge Foster in General Sessions to having snatched $50 from the hand of a neighbor, Albino Lasso, the Judge, before sentencing the prisoner, asked if there was any one dependent upon him. At that moment a thin little woman holding a four-weeks-old child walked uncertainly down the aisle to the Judge's bench.

"He stole because the baby and I were starving, Judge," she cried, her eyes alight with fear of what impended. "When the baby came we had no money in the house and if neighbors had not been kind we would have died."

The Judge said he would put the prisoner on probation and said an agent of the Prisoners' Aid Society will try to procure employment for him.

Then the Judge pulled $10 from his pocket and handed it to the mother of the babe. "Until your man can help, this will do a little," he said.

The woman sank to the floor, unconscious.

6,000 NEEDLESS BLIND.

Medical Association Told There Are That Many Each Year.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., June 18.—That cancer of the stomach is a curable disease was the declaration of Dr. William D. Mayo of Rochester, Minn., in an address to-day before the American Medical Association.

"A favorable diagnosis can be established by simple methods," he asserted. Dr. Mayo gave a review of statistics of signs and symptoms observed in 1,000 patients operated on for cancer of the stomach.

Six thousand needless cases of blindness occur in the United States each year. This statement was made by Henry Copley Greene, agent for the Conservation of Eyesight of the Massachusetts Commission for the Blind.

This condition, Mr. Greene said, was a challenge to the medical profession and called for the co-operation of oculists, social workers and law makers. Much of the needless blindness, he said, was due to lack of attention to sore eyes among babies.

HE TAUGHT SOCIETY TO DANCE; DIES A RICH MAN.

John H. Trenor Made Millions in Real Estate, Lost Them and Made a New Fortune.

John H. Trenor, a millionaire, who for many years taught New York exclusive set to dance, died yesterday of old age in his home on North avenue, New Rochelle. He was eighty-eight years old.

Mr. Trenor came to New York from Ireland when he was eight years old. When he was twenty he opened a dancing academy. Among his patrons were William H. Vanderbilt, Chauncey M. Depew, James Gordon Bennett, Horace Greeley and it is said ex-President Roosevelt. Later he embarked in real estate business and by 1874 he had accumulated $3,000,000. He lost nearly all in the panic of that year, but aided by the wealthy friends of the dancing academy days he reopened his school and began energetically to recoup his losses.

It is said he planned the first flat-house built in New York. It was erected in 1869. The building stands opposite Bryant Park on Sixth avenue. One of Mr. Trenor's largest real estate deals was the sale of his farm of 275 acres, now Argyle Park, in New Rochelle, for $450,000. He reserved a small section of the farm on which he had lived for the past decade. He is survived by four grandchildren.

His physicians say his recovery may be "guardedly expected," but because of complications it is said there is much anxiety felt.
