$4,000,000 CLOCK TICKS MERRILY AT $2,384,135 MARK

Y.M.—Y.W.C.A. Now Means to Many Givers "You Must—You Will Come Across."

WILL NOT LAG SUNDAY

Mrs. Straight's $300,000 Gift Second in Size Only to Rockefeller's.

The work of raising the $4,000,000 for the Y. W. and Y. M. C. A. will not lag over Sunday. Preparations are being made to raise a large total of subscriptions among those who assemble for church services. Monday will be "women's day" in the campaign.

Yesterday was a record day, subscriptions amounting to $108,601 being reported. The next largest return for any day since the campaign opened was the $103,186 reported for Tuesday.

Monday, the first day of the campaign, cannot be considered in this comparison because the total report for that day, $1,986,340, did not represent the efforts of one day or two days. That sum was largely the result of eighteen months of preparation for the present campaign. Pledges had been secured in that period for sums ranging from $10,000 to $350,000, and these pledges were announced at the formal launching of the campaign. But what has been gathered since that time is the result of ten, fifteen, and eighteen hours' labor on the part of the men and women associated with the different teams. With yesterday's gleaning the total raised was $2,384,135.

MRS. STRAIGHT WITH $300,000 IS SECOND LARGEST CONTRIBUTOR.

There was an unusually large attendance at the luncheon at campaign headquarters, No. 25 Broad street, and cheers greeted each committee's report promising a big change in the aspect of the electric clock on top of the Metropolitan tower. Among those at the luncheon was Mrs. Willard D. Straight, who is the second largest contributor to date. Mrs. Straight pledged $300,000. Her rival in the zealous enterprise is John D. Rockefeller, who gave $350,000. Mrs. Straight modestly declined to speak of her gift, and was an unwilling subject for a score of photographers.

Again many generous givers preferred to hide their identity, and the total of such gifts reported yesterday was $88,000, one unknown giving $50,000 to the Executive Committee. The total of such contributions for the five days is $346,500. As usual, the women workers showed good results, the total of their committees being $32,371. The team captained by Miss Elizabeth W. Dodge carried the honors with a total of $16,246, $15,000 of which came from one person who is listed with the anonymous givers.

Mrs. E. R. L. Gould's team gathered $2,875; Mrs. Francis Louis Slade, $2,140; Miss Emily B. Wilson, $681; Miss Dorothy Perkins, $3,622; Mrs. Christine Terhune Herrick, $301; Mrs. Florence Stowell, $5,464; Mrs. Elijah W. Bliss, $550; Mrs. Nathaniel B. Potter, $1,255; Miss Anna Maxwell, $337. John Wanamaker is on the day's totals for $5,000; Felix M. Warburg, $1,000; T. F. Manville, $1,000; J. A. Scrymser, $1,000; G. A. Morrison, $2,000; J. F. Comey, $1,000; J. E. Nicols, $1,000; Miss Lois Scoville, $1,000; C. P. Stillman, $1,000; F. L. Stetson, $1,000; James Douglas, $1,000; E. H. Tower, $35; Lord & Taylor, $500; O'Neill & Adams, $500 and James McCreery, $500.

Y. M. C. A. HAS NEW MEANING TO MANY NOW.

The day's harvest inspired the announcer to humorous observations, of which the following are samples:

"Y. M. C. A. might easily stand for "YOU MUST COME ACROSS.

"Never lose your sense of humor. The idea of sending you in pairs is that the SECOND man can dust off the FIRST who may be thrown out of an office.

"I'm afraid all of you didn't hear the last item. The lady said a chiropodist gave her one dollar. Please make a FOOT NOTE of that."

The chief speaker at the luncheon was Francis Lynde Stetson. He briefly reviewed the history of the movement and urged the workers to victory.

FEARS "RUSSIAN PLOT."

Mrs. Boesch Denies Being Actress or "Indicter" by Profession.

Mrs. Emil G. Boesch of No. 896 South Sixteenth street, Newark, has lately attracted attention to herself and to her domestic affairs by having her husband indicted on account of a "Russian plot" of which for five years, she says, she has been the helpless victim. "I am threatened over the telephone not to protest or I will be declared insane and removed to an asylum," she said to-day.

"The reason for the indictment which I recently brought against my husband was not a 'slap in the face,' as was stated in the papers, but an assault by my husband, occasioned by my taking exception to his conduct with a Mrs. Carroll.

"I should also like to correct statements that I have been a professional actress. I have never been on the professional stage except in benefits. Of course it may be true that I have been in court a number of times, but bringing indictments is not my regular business. When I was Mrs. Carhart I had a physician indicted for causing the death of my baby and he lost his diploma.

Inez Milholland Solves Servant Problem by Giving Girls Only 8 Hours' Work

"Brain Is More Needed Than Brawn in 19th Century Housekeeping," Says Mrs. Boissevain, Lawyer, Bride and Suffragist.

"Women of Trained Minds Achieve the Best Results," She Says, and She Washes Dishes Exactly as She Would Draw Up a Legal Brief.

By Sophie Irene Loeb.

"The woman of trained mind has the advantage of system in approaching the problem of housekeeping.

"She uses the same force in home-building as in her profession.

"I believe every woman should do the work for which she is best fitted, out of the earnings of which she may in turn pay for that for which she is less suited.

"The great trouble with the servant question is that women keep too close tab on servants and nag at them.

"Servants enjoy responsibility if it is respected.

"Except in emergencies, they should work only eight hours a day.

"Eliminate the middle man by buying wholesale.

"Never order produce over the telephone unless you know the brand and its exact cost.

"I make out my menus daily, according to the nourishment I will need for that particular day.

"I outline every day's work in the house and leave it to be done without everlasting nagging."

These are the views of Mrs. Inez Milholland Boissevain, termed "the most beautiful suffragist," lawyer, wife and housekeeper. We talked it all over at her law office.

That Inez Milholland Boissevain has gone into the business of housekeeping much in the same spirit as she entered the activities of Vassar College, and later the practice of the legal profession, is evident from her summing up of the principles of home-making, as follows:

"Although I have not been housekeeping very long, I am not making a problem of it, but rather a pleasure. And although my husband has not yet had the opportunity to pass judgment upon my efforts, his brothers, to whom I am hostess, seem thoroughly to enjoy my management. However, Mr. Boissevain sails for New York to-day, and you may imagine how eagerly I'm looking forward to his approval of my new industry—housekeeping.

"It may seem a broad statement to make, but I believe that the women of trained minds really produce the best results in housekeeping. For example, were I to sweep a floor or wash dishes, or perform any other similar duties, as I have done at times, I am confident that I approach these things with the same sense of system as I would in making out a brief.

"In like manner, were I actually to take up the work of cooking, I would use the same judgment of the properties used as ingredients as I would in analyzing or solving any question that is before me in my law office.

HOUSEWORK WOULD BE AN ECONOMIC MISTAKE FOR HER.

"But why should I do the cooking and the baking and the sweeping when the work I am doing is more pleasing and for which I was particularly more fitted than that of housework? Therefore I think it is logical, to say the least, for any woman to do that which makes best use of her energies and characteristics and leave to others the performance of work which is better suited to them.

"This is an age where housekeeping, with all the modern sanitary methods and implements, is daily simplifying the daily routine of work, so that the brain is much more in demand than brawn in the general scheme. Therefore it is almost a simple matter for me to 'plan my work and then work my plan.' I think every professional woman can readily formulate a programme of housekeeping and carry it out successfully."

"Just how do you go about it?" I asked.

"First of all, I have a cook and a maid. I arrange my own menus and buy the food a few days ahead. I am very careful to have only that kind of food that will be nourishing for that particular day. For example, if I am going out to speak that night I do not want a heavy dinner. If I am to be at home and have plenty of leisure there are other kinds of food I prefer.

"In this way, before starting to my office in the morning, and knowing my plans for the day, I settle this matter of cooking accordingly. The general housework is also pre-arranged in the same way, so that when I return at night I find that it has been done.

"Now, many housewives might say that this is because I have efficient help. I do not think that this is the sole reason, because, as a matter of fact, I pay my help less than the general average.

"But I believe that the secret of success in this direction is this—I am not there nagging at them all the time. I make them responsible for that which is to be done, and I do not fret if they have a leisure hour during the day. Servants like the idea of being responsible for things if you are not at their apron strings seeing that they are doing their work, but will leave it to them.

Miss INEZ MILHOLLAND

"Also, whenever it is possible, I have them go out some part of each day, perhaps on an errand, shopping, etc. Servants like to get out through the day even as you and I. They are all the better for it.

"I try to arrange my affairs that neither of my servants actually works more than eight hours a day. I believe that such consideration really encourages interest in the work, and special efforts to please. So that when an occasion does arrive when it is neccecary for them to work unusually long, it is done in a cheerful spirit. Servants do not take exception to duty, but to drudgery."

"Do they do all your buying?" I inquired.

BUYS MOST OF HER PRODUCE IN WHOLESALE MARKETS.

"No, they do not do it all. I buy most of my produce wholesale, but as these markets do not deliver, my maid often goes direct there and brings home these articles of purchase. You have no idea what a saving it is to buy wholesale, and wherever possible to eliminate the middleman. I think that every housekeeper can do it. Economy is the first principle in the science of efficient housekeeping. And I certainly mean to continue in this direction by buying direct from the producer as far as possible, and thus saving the profits of the go-betweens.

"For instance, chicken that would ordinarily cost me 95 cents, I pay 70 cents for. Butter and eggs I buy in a similar manner. You haven't any idea how this counts up. My canned food I buy in quantities, and there is a great saving in that, also.

"I believe that every woman, no matter what her resources, should study all these little items of saving. My husband and I will share the business of money-making toward the joint expenditure of our home. In this manner I think every professional woman should participate in the production as well as in the consumption of the common income.

"I believe that the decision just rendered as to the rights of mother-teachers to continue work in the schools after marriage was another step in the direction of women continuing in the joint work of livelihood for their families.

"The question should never be raised as to whether a woman should cease a money-earning occupation just because she has married. To continue any useful endeavor, married or single, should cause no controversy, much less condemnation."

FINANCIAL NEWS ITEMS.

Federal Mining and Smelting Company declared regular quarterly dividend of 1½ per cent. on preferred stock payable Dec. 15 to stock of record Nov. 21.

It is expected that the $11,000,000 New York Connecting Railroad 40-year 4½ per cent. bonds will be offered to investors by leading New York banking houses within a few days.

The Bethlehem Steel Company, from standpoint of income on capitalization, will establish a new high record this year and surpass all other steel companies. If deductions for depreciation were as small as they were in 1912 the surplus would be equivalent to 35 per cent. on the common stock—but it is believed that depreciation charges this year will exceed those for 1912 by at least $500,000, leaving about 30 per cent. available for the common stock.

Falling off in steel output over past week was more severe than reported at any time since downward movement began. A still further decline from the present rate of 65 per cent. is expected. November and December earnings promise to establish new low monthly records.

Standard Oil of Kentucky stock sold up to 620, a rise of 20 points.

Stockholders of People's Gas Company of record of Nov. 29 may subscribe at the ratio of one share for each ten that they own for $3,500,000 new stock at par. Payments may be made quarterly in December, February, May and Aug. 22.

Continental Oil Company declared the regular quarterly dividend of $3 per share, payable Dec. 15 to stock of record Nov. 26.

CONSOLIDATED STOCK EXCHANGE.

New Haven in the early dealings on the Consolidated Stock Exchange to-day sold at 74⅝, which was a new low record price. It was a fraction under the low touched on the New York Stock Exchange. Missouri Pacific also developed special weakness. In fact, the railroad list as a whole was inclined to heaviness. Reading again went under 160 and Erie sold off sharply. Many recent poor returns as to net earnings by the railroads were the subject of bearish talk on the floor. At the lower levels, however, the market steadied, with rallying tendencies then developing.

THE EVENING WORLD'S AND WELFARE ASSOCIATION'S BETTER BABIES' CONTESTS.

Prizes Awarded Babies In the All-Chelsea Contest

To every baby comes his day, and yesterday, Friday, Nov. 14, will go down in the history of New York babydom as the day of His Highness, the Chelsea Baby. In the big assembly hall of Public School No. 26, at No. 124 West Thirtieth street, there assembled yesterday afternoon three hundred mothers to learn the result of the All-Chelsea contest that was the climax of the three big better babies' contests conducted by The Evening World, in conjunction with the Babies' Welfare Association and the Chelsea Neighborhood Association, in that vast and populous area lying between Fourteenth and Forty-second streets, Fifth avenue and the North River.

These prize winners, by statistics shown to be the most nearly perfect infants of all the 900 babies of Chelsea judged in the contests that have been in progress on the lower west side many weeks, were chosen from the best twelve babies entered in the three district contests. They were examined and re-examined and then examined again, and finally the four babies, to whose bank accounts, started by this newspaper by the winning of prizes in district contests, is added the first additional deposit, $7.50, were selected. They are the following:

BABIES THAT WON ADDITIONAL PRIZES.

Class No. 1—For babies between the ages of three and nine months: Michael J. O'Brien, aged six months, son of Mr. and Mrs. James O'Brien of No. 407 West Twenty-fifth street.

Class No. 2—For babies between the ages of nine and eighteen months: Anna Connolly, aged eleven months, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Connolly of No. 500 West Forty-first street.

Class No. 4—For babies between the ages of three and five years: Marjorie Hansen, aged four years and two months, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Hansen of No. 291 Tenth avenue.

Following the presentation of the special prizes to these babies there were moving pictures of baby life and lectures by Dr. Jacob Sobel, Borough Chief of Manhattan, Division of Child Hygiene of the Board of Health, and Dr. Roger H. Dennett, who has been in charge of the judging of babies in the big Chelsea contest. After that the prize winners in district No. 2, Chelsea, were announced. They were the following:

RASH SPREAD OVER LEGS AND ARMS

Began with Pimples on Cheeks. Face Like Piece of Raw Flesh. Bled When Scratched. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Cure Complete in Three Weeks.

586 Hart St., Brooklyn, N. Y.—"My baby's trouble first began with little pimples over his cheeks. They spread over his legs and his arms. The pimples were something like a rash. His little face was a piece of raw flesh and whenever he scratched it would get worse and the pimples bled. Of course he lost his sleep through this and was very cross during the day. He often cried over it. His clothing irritated this eruption and I then had to put cloths over it to keep the clothing from it. He had this rash for about two months.

"I used ——, face powder, —— and all little home remedies without success. Then I thought of Cuticura Soap and Ointment, as we used to use them on the older children, when they were small. First I washed his face with Cuticura Soap and warm water then I put the Cuticura Ointment on with my fingers, then I washed it off with the Cuticura Soap and water. After using the treatment it showed relief in about three days and the cure was complete at the end of three weeks." (Signed) Mrs. K. Behringer, April 23, 1913.

Cuticura Soap 25c. and Cuticura Ointment 50c. are sold everywhere. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

Men who shave and shampoo with Cuticura Soap will find it best for skin and scalp.

Keeps complexions clear and healthy

WHEN you wash your face do you realize that it is not enough to remove the dirt—that your skin needs a soothing, healing influence to keep your complexion fresh and free from blemish?

¶ Ordinary toilet soaps do not assert this influence. Many of them contain free alkali which tends to dry the skin and destroy its delicate texture. Even the best of such soaps can only clean, they cannot heal and protect the skin. Resinol Soap, besides being an absolutely pure toilet soap, contains the same soothing, healing, antiseptic balsams as Resinol Ointment, the value of which in the treatment of skin affections is known throughout the medical profession.

¶ That is why Resinol Soap does for the skin what cosmetics are supposed to do—it insures not only a clean skin, but a healthy skin, and a fair, clear complexion.

Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment are sold by all druggists. For free trial, write to Dept. 15-S, Resinol, Baltimore, Md.
