His colts are of fine style, beautiful in formation, and, where they have had any advantages, they have shown and promise superior speed, and all of them make fine roadsters, both in elegance in appearance and disposition.

If necessary I can furnish a pedigree of any length, but I rely upon his individuality and well-earned reputation, to entitle him to public patronage.

The American Sportsman, which stands high in horse authority, justly says:

"A pedigree will no longer sell a horse, unless attached to a good individual."

Upon the same principle the pedigree, alone, does not entitle him to public favor.

CURRENCY is of a family which stands A. 1, their reputation having been earned both upon the track and in the Stud, by individual merits, and having no Million heirs to push them to the front, they had nothing else to rely upon.

They are hereby vested with the authority to sell all property, real or personal, receive proceeds, pay all debts and distribute the balance among the stockholders.

No stockholder shall ever be held liable or responsible for the contracts or faults of said corporation in any further sum than the unpaid balance due to the corporation on shares of stock owned by him. Nor shall any mere informality in organization have the effect of rendering this charter null nor of exposing a stock-holder to any liability beyond the unpaid balance due on his stock as aforesaid.
