NEW PUBLICATIONS.

"IT IS AN ILLUSTRATED CYCLOPEDIA."

NEW PHYSIOGNOMY,
or,
SIGNS OF CHARACTER,

As manifested in Temperament and External Forms, and especially on the human face divine. By S. R. Wells, Editor Phrenological Journal. Large 12mo, 768 pp. with more than 1,000 engravings. Illustrating Physiognomy, Anatomy, Physiology, Ethnology, Phrenology and Natural History.

A comprehensive, thorough and practical Work, in which all that is known on the Subject treated is Systematized, Explained, Illustrated and applied, Physiognomy is here shown to be no mere fanciful speculation, but a consistent and well considered system of Character-Reading, based on the established Truths of Physiology and Phrenology, and Confirmed by Ethnology as well as by the Peculiarities of Individuals. It is no abstraction but something to be made useful; something to be practiced by everybody and in all places, and made an efficient help in that noblest of all studies—the study of man. It is readily understood and as readily applied. The following are some of the leading topics discussed in this great illustrated work.

Previous Systems given, including those of all ancient and modern writers.

General Principles of Physiognomy, or the Physiological laws on which character reading is and must be based.

Temperaments.—The Ancient Doctrines—Sporzhiem's Description—The New Classification now in use here.

Practical Physiognomy.—General Forms of Faces—The Eyes, the Mouth, the Nose, the Chin, the Jaws and Teeth, the Cheeks, the Forehead, the Hair and Beard, the Complexion, the Neck and Ears, the Hands and Feet, the Voice, the Walk, the Laugh, the Mode of Shaking Hands, Dress, etc., with illustrations.

Ethnology.—The Races, including the Caucasian, the North American Indians, the Mongolian, the Malay, and the African, with their numerous subdivisions; also National Types, each Illustrated.

Physiognomy Applied.—To Marriage, to the Training of Children to Personal Improvement, to Business, to Insanity and Idiocy, to Health and Disease, to Classes and Professions, to Personal Improvement, and to Character Reading Generally. Utility of Physiognomy.

Animal Types.—Grades of Intelligence, Instinct and Reason—Animal Heads and Animal Types among Men.

Graphomancy.—Character Revealed in Hand-Writing with Specimens—Palmistry. "Line of Life" in the human hand.

Character Reading.—More than a hundred noted Men and Women Introduced—What Physiognomy says of them.

The Great Secret.—How to be Healthy and How to be Beautiful—Mental Cosmetics—very interesting, very useful.

Aristotle and St. Paul.—A Model Head—Views of Life—Illustrated Anecdotes.—Detecting a rogue by his face.

No one can read this Book without interest, without real profit. "Knowledge is power," and this is emphatically true of a knowledge of men—of human character. He who has it is 'master of the situation,' and anybody may have it who will, and find in it the "secret of success" and the road to the largest personal improvement.

Price, in one large Volume, of nearly 800 pages, and more than 1,000 Engravings, on toned paper, handsomely bound in embossed muslin, $5.00; in heavy calf, marbled edges, $8.00; Turkey morocco, full gilt, $10.00. Agents may do well to canvass for this work. Please address

THE STEWART COOKING STOVE.

The undersigned offers this STOVE to the public, the superior qualities of which have been satisfactorily tested for so many years, with the full assurance that its peculiar merits render it the most complete and perfect cooking apparatus now in use.

Its advantages which are all the requirements of a good Stove, are enumerated below:

ITS DURABILITY.

It is so constructed that the parts liable to be burned out can be replaced, and the Stove thus renovated, is rendered as perfect in its operation as when first used, at but a comparitively trifling cost.

ITS ECONOMY IN FUEL.

The Stove is air-tight, and with other contrivances appertaining to it, a great degree of heat is retained within the Stove; and thereby less fuel is requisite for its various culinary purposes.

THE DRAFT DAMPER

Is a perfect regulator of the heat in the fire-box and oven, so that heat may be increased or moderated, as the occasion may require.

ITS VENTILATING PROPERTIES,

By which different kinds of meat may be cooked in the oven simultaneously, without imparting the peculiar flavor of one to the other; thus securing the full benefits of the old style of cooking by an open fire-place.

The Stove possesses many other advantages—such as the HOT WATER RESERVOIR, furnishing hot water at all times, and the TIN WARMING CLOSET, where articles ready for the table may be kept warm, bread set to rise, etc. etc.

EVERY STOVE FULLY GUARANTEED.

Always on hand, a large assortment of COOKING and HEATING STOVES.
