Don't forget the old man with the fish on his back.

For nearly thirty years he has been traveling around the world, and is still traveling, bringing health and comfort wherever he goes.

To the consumptive he brings the strength and flesh he so much needs.

To all weak and sickly children he gives rich and strengthening food.

To thin and pale persons he gives new firm flesh and rich red blood.

Children who first saw the old man with the fish are now grown up and have children of their own.

He stands for Scott's Emulsion of pure cod liver oil—a delightful food and a natural tonic for children, for old folks and for all who need flesh and strength.

A LAST WILL—A BEAUTIFUL SKETCH.

The following beautiful sketch is from Harper's Weekly:

He was stronger and cleverer, no doubt, than other men, and in many broad lines of business he had grown rich until his wealth exceeded exaggeration. One morning in his office, he directed a request to his confidential lawyer to come to him in the afternoon. He intended to have his will drawn. A will is a solemn matter even with men whose life is given up to business, and who are by habit mindful of the future. After giving this direction he took up no other matter, but sat at his desk alone and in silence.

It was a day when summer was fire new. The pale leaves upon the trees were starting forth upon the still unbending branches. The grass in the parks had a freshness in its green like the freshness of the blue in the sky and of the yellow of the sun—a freshness to make one wish that life might renew its youth. The clear breeze from the south wantoned about, and then were still, as if loath to go finally away. Half idly, half thoughtfully, the rich man wrote upon the white paper before him, beginning what he wrote with capital letters, such as he had not made since as a boy in school, he had taken pride in his skill with the pen:

"IN THE NAME OF GOD, AMEN. I, Charles Lounsbury, being of sound and disposing mind and memory (he lingered on the word memory) do now make and publish my LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT, in order, as justly as I may, to distribute my interests in the world among succeeding men.

"First, that part of my interest that is known in the law and recognized as the sheep-bound volumes of property, being inconsiderable in value, on account, I make no account in this my will.

"Right to live, it being but a loan and is not at my disposal, but all things excepted all else in the world I now proceed to devise and bequeath.

"And first I give to good fathers and mothers, but in trust for their children, nevertheless, all good words of praise and all quaint pet names, and I charge said parents to use them justly but generously as needs of their children may require.

"Item—I leave to children exclusively, but only for the life of their childhood, all and every, the dandelions of the fields and the daisies thereof, with the right to play among them freely, according to the custom of children, warning them at the same time against thistles. And I devise to children yellow shores of creeks and the golden sands beneath the waters thereof, with the dragon flies that skim the surface of said waters, and the odors of the willows that dip into said waters, and the clouds that float over the giant trees.

"And I leave to children the long, long days to be merry in, in a thousand ways, and the night and the moon and the train of the milky way to wonder at, but subject nevertheless to the rights hereinafter given to lovers; and I give to each child the right to choose a star that shall be his, and I direct that the child's father shall tell him the name of it, in order that the child shall always remember the name of that star after he has learned and forgotten astronomy.

"Item—I devise to boys jointly all the useful idle fields and commons where ball may be played, and all snowclad hills where one may coast, and all streams and ponds where one may skate, to have and to hold the same for the period of their boyhood. And all meadows with the clover blooms and the butterflies thereof, and the woods with their appurtenances of squirrels and whirring birds, and echoes and strange noises; and all distant places which may be visited, together with the adventures there found, I do give to said boys to be theirs. And I give to said boys each his own place at the fireside at night, with all pictures that may be seen in the burning wood or coal, to enjoy without let or hindrance and without any incumbrance of cares.

"Item—To lovers I devise their imaginary world, with whatever they may need, as the stars of the sky, the red, red roses by the wall, the snow of the hawthorn, the sweet strains of music, or aught else they may desire to figure to each other the lastingness of their love.

"Item—To young men jointly, being joined in a brave, mad crowd, I devise and bequeath all boisterous, inspiring sports of rivalry. I give to them the disdain of weakness and undaunted confidence in their own strength. Though they are rude and rough, I leave to them alone the power of making lasting friendships and of possessing companions; and to them exclusively I give all merry songs and brave choruses to sing with smooth voices to troll them forth.

"Item—And to those who are no longer children or youths or lovers I leave memory, and I leave to them the volumes of the poems of Burns and Shakespeare, and of other poets, if there are others to the end that they may live the old days over again freely and fully, without tithes or diminution; and to those who are no longer children or youths or lovers, I leave, too, the knowledge of what a rare, rare world it is.

Five Convicts Prefer Freedom.

Five convicts escaped Thursday night from the Buttgenbach camps in Citrus county. There is a reward of $500 offered for their capture. All are colored except one, a ten year man. They overpowered the guards and secured three suits of clothes, so two of the escapes evidently are still parading in their stripes. About a dozen blood hounds are in the chase all over Citrus and Levy counties.

FLORENCE, S. C., Nov. 26, 1900.—I was first advised by our family physician in Charleston to use TEETHINA with our baby when he was but a very young infant, as a preventive of colic and to warm and sweeten the stomach. Later I was useful in teething troubles, and its effect has been found to be so very beneficial and so free from dangers that as consequent upon the use of drugs and soothing syrups, that we have come to regard it, after use with three children, as one of the necessities when there is a new baby in the house and until the teething troubles are over, and we take pleasure in recommending it to our friends instead of the horrid stuff that so many people use to keep their baby quiet.
