Judge, One of Few New Yorkers To Reach Big League Company

Griffith May Have Second Ty Cobb in Youngster From Yorkville.

Of the thousand or more ball-players in the big leagues in the past few years but a very small percentage learned the game on the streets of New York. From the little tank towns where good big teams furnish the opportunity the best players have come and New Yorkers have been content to do the cheering while the other fellows played. This year, however, one of the youngsters touted as a real find is a native son. Joe Judge, the youthful first baseman of the Washington Senators, learned the game on the cobblestones of Yorkville and Clarke Griffith is quite certain he learned a whole lot about it.

Judge is but twenty-one years old and in his two years of professional ball with the New England and the International Leagues he has hung up a record which makes his work worth watching this season. Griffith has great faith in him as is shown by the fact that he let out Chick Gandil to make room for his new man. "The greatest first baseman since Hal Chase broke in," is the modest announcement of Griffith concerning Judge.

As a boy Judge played with the team of St. Vincent Ferrer's parochial school. A few years later he played with the team of the New York Edison Company and Pat Donovan of the Buffalo team of the International League heard of him. Donovan sent him to the Lewiston, Me., team of the New England League and last season took him into the Buffalo organization.

Judge was the sensation of the International League in swinging the lickory and in fielding. He played in 135 games and at the season's close was sixth in batting, with a mark of .321. He scored sixty-eight runs, stole twenty-eight bases and hit out nineteen doubles and fifteen three-bagers. He took 297 bases with 158 hits. He held the highest batting average of the first basemen of the league, his nearest rival being Clarence Kraft, with .307.

JOE JUDGE

In fielding Judge was at the top of the list, with an average of .994. He had 1,348 put-outs, fifty-four assists and but eight errors were recorded against him. He joined the Washington team at the end of last season, taking part in eleven games. He went to bat thirty-six times in those games and scored a rating of .380, ten ahead of Ty Cobb, who was credited with leading the league. Players taking part in ten or more games are usually given a rating, but the statistician of the American League did not place Judge, and so Tyrus kept his position at the head of the list.

The Yorkville youth will get into the list this season, however, and Griffith has hinted that Cobb had better look to his laurels. Judge left to-day for the Senators' training camp and his friends are awaiting the first reports of his work.

Briefs of the Sport World

Miss Corona Winn performed so cleverly and with such skill with the lawn tennis racquet yesterday as to temporarily eclipse the other stars of the women's indoor tournament on the courts of the Heights Casino, Brooklyn. Of course, Miss Molla Bjurstedt, the keeper of many titles, and her rival, Mrs. Frederick Schmitz, outwhile national indoor champion, were successful.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., March 8.—Reginald G. Coombs of New York City, called by Guy Nickalls, head coach of the Yale University crews, the most perfect oarsman of his age, has withdrawn from the Yale rowing squad and from the varsity crew, and has begun work as assistant to Charles Wilman as coach of the freshman eight.

Edward W. Gardner moved a peg nearer to regaining the Class A 18.2 balk line billiard national championship title yesterday. Likewise he survived an ordeal of safety tactics, emerging from the fray with a score of 400 points to 286 for Charles Hedgen of Dowagiac, Mich. The contest occupied part of the afternoon and evening at the Arion Society, where the tournament is nearing its end, with Gardner undefeatedly in the lead.

CHICAGO, March 8.—In a fast finish James Maturo of Denver beat John Layton of Sedalia, Mo., in the pocket billiard tournament yesterday, 100 to 73. Maturo started his spurt when Layton was leading him, 60 to 23, and it took him only seventeen innings to make his century, a high run of 34 helping.

NEW ORLEANS, La., March 8.—The Business Men's Racing Association's meeting of 37 days ended yesterday before a record breaking crowd at the Fair Grounds. It was Mardi Gras Day, and as it is observed as a holiday in this city, the crowd was up to the record, 12,000. The meeting was very profitable financially, only one rainy day cutting down the attendance. It is estimated that the association will net $80,000, but will donate $20,000 to charity.

The national gymnastic championships of the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States will take place at the Newark Y. M. C. A. in Newark, N. J., on Saturday night, May 13, in conjunction with the two hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the city.

PALM BEACH, Fla., March 8.—The first round of the Florida Championship Golf Tournament was played yesterday, and the best work of the day was done by E. H. Bankard Jr., Midlothian, who defeated Alexander Julian, Cincinnati, 7 and 6, and incidentally romped home with a card of 68, the best score made in any tournament during the present year, and but 4 strokes under the amateur record for the course, made by Walter J. Travis.

HANOVER, N. H., March 8.—Ralph Gannet Tyler, '17, of Exeter, N. H., has been elected Captain of the Dartmouth hockey team for next year. He has played a strong game at centre for the last two seasons.

CHAPTER XI.

Seagrue was almost ready for visitors. After an hour's hard work with his men, who had been distributing the sacks and rolling the rich ore in among the worthless rock, he directed them to get ready for a blasting. The foreman took a single charge and put Bill and Lug to work on it.

Seagrue left the tunnel, the foreman remaining under his orders to hurry the shot. The moment Bill was ready, Lug got the dynamite, set the fuse and completed the preparations. Outside, Seagrue, to his delight, saw Rhinelander and his party driving up. Greetings were exchanged, somewhat stiffly, after the recent encounter of the parties, but without dissension in the presence of the expert, and all started together for the tunnel.

With Rhinelander asking questions every few steps, the expert explained as they walked down the tunnel the character of the formation and recited something of the history of the mine, with which he admitted he was familiar. It all sounded encouraging. By the time the group had reached the end of the main tunnel Bill and Lug had disappeared from sight. The foreman called in a couple of men and when Seagrue came in with his visitors, the foreman told him the shot was about ready. Seagrue asked Rhinelander if he would like to have it fired, and upon Rhinelander's assent, the party got into safety and the shot was discharged.

Coming out of their retreat, the different members of the group picked up specimens of the shattered ore and examined it.

"Certainly, Helen," said Rhinelander in an undertone, "this looks good."

The expert was at hand with a handful of quartz. "That stuff," he said, showing it to the prospective buyer with an air of certainty, "will average two hundred dollars to the ton."

Helen and Storm consulted together. Seagrue watching. In a moment he asked them and Rhinelander to follow him outside. Leaving the shaft, he took the three to the bag pile.

"These sacks," said he to Rhinelander, "contain high-grade ore, ready for shipment to the smelter. They are to be included in whatever deal I make with a buyer for the mine."

Rhinelander, Storm and Helen continued to discuss the purchase apart. They counted the number of bags. Rhinelander made an effort to roughly reckon the value of them, Seagrue and the expert talking together the while some little distance away. A further conference with Seagrue disclosed that the price he wanted for the mine was $150,000. After the usual bargaining, Rhinelander proposed to take the property, including the ore ready for the wagons, at $110,000. $25,000 to be paid down. Seagrue accepted, Rhinelander made out his check and the transaction was complete, Rhinelander only requesting that the foremen keep the men at work until he should have a chance to get started. This was assented and Storm was placed temporarily in charge of the mine.

While the negotiations had been taking shape, a freight train had pulled in a few miles distant at Valley Station, where the crew set out an empty box car for loading. A teamster from the mine was summoned by the agent, who handed him a note for the mine foreman. When the teamster reached the mine, the new purchasers were taking possession. He handed the message to the foreman. The foreman read:

Have empty box car here for high-grade ore. Send it down right away and local will pick the car up this P. M. LEN.

He turned to Rhinelander, showing him the message and pointing to the sacks ready for shipment.

Rhinelander was willing to ship the ore ready for the wagons at once. "All right," he said, nodding to the foreman. "Send what you have to the smelter right away."

Storm was given authority to put this part of the job through as quickly as possible. While the details were being talked over between Rhinelander and his assistant, neither of them noticed that they were overheard by Seagrue's tools, Bill and Lug, who now decided that there might be a chance to break into the mining business at their own proper risk and for their own private account. When Seagrue called them from the discussion of their ambitious project, he gave orders to Bill to drive back to Las Vegas. Reaching the station he took the train for the city.

With their boss out of the way, his two worthies thought the moment opportune for their own plans and taking the machine they started back for the mine.

Wagons—convoyed by two guards carrying sawed-off shotguns—had been loaded at the mine with the valuable quartz ore. They had reached Valley and while the teamsters were loading the sacks into the box car the two guards found a shady spot under the car door.

The wagon had been under surveillance for some time by the Seagrue crooks, Billy and Lug, who were secreted a mile away in the bed of a wash. The two waited patiently until the wagon had been unloaded and started back to the mine. Then scouting their way cautiously down to the siding, the thieves, creeping under the farther side of the box car, surprised the guards, disarmed and bound them. Having done this without loss of time, they went to work loading the last of the quartz into the car.

WIFE TOO ILL TO WORK

IN BED MOST OF TIME

Her Health Restored by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Indianapolis, Indiana.—"My health was so poor and my constitution so run down that I could not work. I was thin, pale and weak, weighed but 109 pounds and was in bed most of the time. I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and five months later I weighed 138 pounds. I do all the housework and washing for eleven and I can truthfully say Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been a godsend to me for I would have been in my grave today but for it. I would tell all women suffering as I was to try your valuable remedy."—Mrs. Wm. Green, 382 S. Addison Street, Indianapolis, Indiana.

There is hardly a neighborhood in this country wherein some woman has not found health by using this good old-fashioned root and herb remedy.

If there is anything about which you would like special advice, write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.—Advt.

No Dreamland Pier for Coney Island This Summer.

Coney Island is to have no Dreamland Pier this summer after all. Dock Commissioner Smith will recommend to the Sinking Fund Commission today that the proposed structure be not erected. A pier costing $55,000 was to have been erected, and a lease passing for it in ten years had been agreed to. It was found that the cost would be $65,000 and the lessee company could not underwrite itself for that amount.

PIMPLES ON FACE BURNED VERY MUCH

Hard and Large. Began to Itch. Could Not Sleep at Night. Very Disfigured. Completely

HEALED BY CUTICURA SOAP AND OINTMENT

"I did not have any trouble from pimples until hair began to grow on my face. Soon my face began to bite and I scratched it so many times pimples came all over it. They were hard and most of them large and on the top of each there was a little red spot. The pimples began to itch and I scratched them and they bled and I could not sleep at night. My skin was sore and it burned very much. My face looked very disfigured.

"I had the trouble about six weeks until I used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. In two weeks' time I was completely healed." (Signed) Isidore J. Silliman, 22 Essex St., New York City, July 30, 1915.
