LAW PUSHED ASIDE TO LET DAN CUPID HAVE DAY IN COURT

Justice Shearn Reduces Bail of Detained Witness and Permits Wedding to Go On.

Stern old Law stood aside to-day to let Dan Cupid prove that a young man's love for his bride-to-be is greater than his love of liberty. It's up to Guiseppi Lagumina, aged twenty-two, to show that whatever disillusionments may come after marriage, the glamor of the honeymoon has a greater lure than the fresh, free air which Lagumina has been longing for during confinement in the Second District Prison.

Guiseppi was to have been married on June 4 to Bessie Cimino, eighteen. The day before they had furnished a little flat at No. 160 East One Hundred and Sixteenth Street. Guiseppe had just laid the last rug when three sturdy gentlemen from Headquarters rushed him out of the house. Bessie's heart was almost broken.

The charge against the prospective bridegroom was complicity in the murder of Barnet Baff, the poultryman. That charge fell, but District Attorney Swann, insisting that Lagumina was a material witness for the State, had him held in the Second District Prison under $10,000 bail.

Before Supreme Court Justice Shearn, who heard the original proceedings when bail was fixed, Lagumina's application for a reduction in bail comes up to-day for hearing. Guiseppi was not there, but Bessie, in a summery frock and pink and white hat, and her mother were on hand with Francis X. McCaffry, attorney for Guiseppi.

Assistant District Attorney O'Malley told the Court that Guiseppi was regarded as one of the State's most important witnesses and if released on low bail would do as many other Italian witnesses had done, decamp, wedding or no wedding. Justice Shearn heard Bessie's story; also that of her mother.

"No," she said to Justice Shearn tearfully, "my Guiseppi will not go away. If you let him out of jail, Judge, I will see that Guiseppi will be around when he is wanted. I know better Guiseppi than those people who put him in jail."

"Gentlemen," said the Court," there is no bond stronger than a young man's love for his bride-to-be. I'll fix the bail at $1,000 to satisfy the law."

The rudely interrupted wedding will take place to-morrow, as Giuseppi is certain of getting the $1,000 bail. A dozen invited wedding guests have offered to get him the money.

BURGLARS FOILED IN FIGHT AT AGAR HOME

Watchmen Drive Off Pair After Pistol Battle at New Rochelle.

Two burglars who were attempting to force an entrance into the summer residence of John G. Agar at Premium Point, New Rochelle, were surprised early to-day by two watchmen and a pistol battle ensued. None of the shots took effect and the robbers escaped in the darkness. Mr. Agar is a wealthy New York lawyer and prominent in art circles.

While making their rounds at 3 o'clock William Gilles, the watchman, and his assistant noticed two men trying to force an entrance to the front door. Gilles fired into the air, and as an answer the burglars opened fire. The men backed off the porch and ran towards Echo Bay, on which the property is situated.

BEACH HOTEL TURNED INTO PARADISE FOR STRIKING WAITERS

While Fight for Management Is On, "Help" Stops Work and Runs Storerooms.

These are great days down at Brighton Beach Hotel—great for the cooks and waiters and bus boys and chambermaids because they're sitting out on the veranda or in the parlor with nothing to do but rock and amuse themselves, and when they feel like it they go into the ballroom and dance to the music of the big orchestra.

Furthermore, they have taken possession of the keys of the storerooms and are living right royally. And they say they're going to live like this until they receive the money they claim is owed them.

It isn't such a good time for the ten families and fifty other guests in the hotel because they haven't been able to get a meal in the hotel since last Sunday, when the service department went on a "quiet strike."

The hotel affairs had an airing in the Coney Island Police Court to-day when William H. Ormes of No. 128 Lexington Avenue, Manhattan, was charged by John F. Reynolds, who gave his address as the hotel, with assault. Both men claim the position of manager of the hostelry, and Reynolds stated that when he attempted on Friday to serve Ormes with a temporary injunction to restrain him from interfering with his (Reynolds's) conduct of the hotel, Ormes struck him several times.

Nathan B. Chadsey, Reynolds's attorney, asked for an adjournment of the hearing till June 19, as he had to be in court to argue the injunction. This was granted, whereupon Ormes asked Magistrate Geismar for a warrant for Chadsey's arrest, charging him, too, with assault on the same day. Ormes didn't get a warrant, but he did get a summons, which was promptly served.

This case temporarily disposed of, Robert Dean, superintendent of the service department of the hotel, was charged with assault by Richard Bernhoff, a waiter. The latter said that the superintendent and a house detective had beaten him and thrown him out of the hotel on June 4 because he demanded $1.50 for half a day he had worked. This case was postponed until June 21.

Grand Jurors Suggest Better Quarters.

The additional February Grand Jury, which has been seeking for months to find better Grand Jury quarters in the Criminal Court Building, to-day handed in a presentment to Judge Wadhams. The Jury reported that the trouble could be solved by converting the Part VI court room into a Grand Jury room and putting the court into the present Magistrate's Court in the northeast corner of the building. Part VI, the presentment stated, could be converted at a cost of less than $1,600.

People who have itched and scratched for years usually get sleep and comfort soon after Cadum Ointment is applied to skin troubles, such as eczema, pimples, itch, sores, cuts, burns, rash, blotches, scaly skin, chafing, scabs, ringworm, eruptions, etc.
