The BLIND MAN'S EYES
WILLIAM MacHARG
EDWIN BALMER

ONE of the strangest and most interesting mysteries ever encountered in fiction—or in real life. The story has an ingenious and thrilling plot, full of extraordinary people in extraordinary situations.

The dominating personality throughout the remarkable story is the blind lawyer, Basil Santoine, who sees the world through the eyes of his daughter and Avery, his secretary. With their help he has developed a most uncanny knowledge of those with whom he comes in contact and their motives.

An amazing tale which you can read as a serial in

A JOLLY SCRAP-BOOK

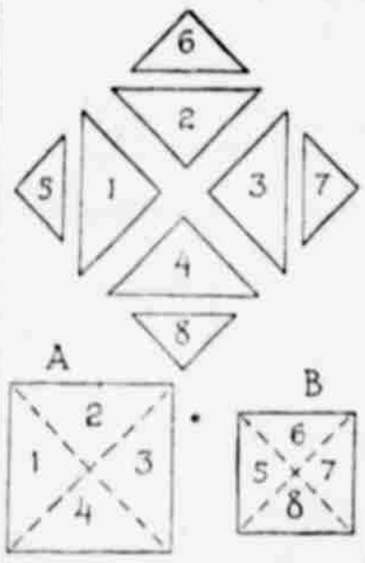
By MARTHA B. THOMAS

(© 1922, Western Newspaper Union.)

JOLLY scrap-books for children who are unfortunate in being ill in hospitals at Christmas time—or in any other place, for that matter—may be made of bright-colored advertisements pasted on cloth. Dark-green cambric makes an excellent background. If it is cut in rectangles of 18 inches by 13 and folded once through the center of the longest side, you have then four large pages for your book. Three of these rectangles make a respectable showing and give enough space for many pictures.

The brighter advertisements the better, and if you can think of a funny name to paste underneath each one, the children will squeal with delight. Sometimes variation may be gained by cutting the pictures in outline. If the figures are large enough. Covers of magazines often afford good material.

A pretty cover for your book may be arranged by cutting small squares into triangles, using the gummed paper



To Decorate Christmas Scrap-Book.

Christmas ribbon of different colors, furnished at all stores in the holiday season. Get as broad a ribbon as possible, cut it to make a square, then cut the square diagonally, i. e., from corner to corner. You will then have four triangles of equal size. Cut another square of smaller size in the same way, giving you four additional triangles. These eight pieces can then be arranged as fancy dictates to make a decoration in the center of your cover. [illegible] Of course these triangles need to be hemmed and stuck on the cover according to the plan of your design."

Raisin Fluff.

Two cupfuls sugar, ½ cupful water, 1 stiffly beaten egg white, ½ cupful chopped raisins, ½ cupful chopped walnut meats, ½ teaspoonful vanilla.

Boil sugar and water until it threads when dropped from the tip of a spoon. Pour on beaten egg white and beat until it holds its shape. Add raisins, nuts, salt and vanilla. Mix well. Drop from teaspoon on paraffine paper and set aside until cold.

Buttermilk for the Face.

Buttermilk is a good substitute for a more costly face preparation. Let it dry on, then massage in to correct the drawing tendency and make the skin soft.

Deviled Spanish Green Olives

Here's a little hors d' oeuvre that may be prepared in a few minutes. It's novel and tasty. The family will enjoy it, and so will the guests. It's one of those "surprise" appetizers that labels your dinner "unique and charming:"

Pit large green olives and fill with the yolk of hard-boiled eggs mixed to a paste with a little butter. Lay an olive on a strip of bacon, sprinkle with paprika and a tiny pinch of mustard, roll up, fasten with toothpick and broil just long enough to crisp the bacon. Serve on toast fingers.
