Some Coalition Warriors Leading in the Battle For Curran and the Whole Ticket on Staten Island

COALITION FORCES SEE VICTORY ON STATEN ISLAND

Democrats Split on Local Fight and Are Openly Aiding Curran.

By Joseph S. Jordan.

If "Matt" Cahill, boss of the Democratic end of Staten Island, believes himself when he says that there is a united Democracy for Hylan, Craig, Hulbert and Cahill, he'd better send his scouts over to Coalition Headquarters. "Matt" is the first leader in Richmond to pick an elective job for himself, and that the best in the county—Borough President. That sort of thing isn't looked upon with favor in the councils of Tammany. Mayor Hylan is said to have looked upon the proposition rather coldly. Mr. Cahill won out from the former boss, Joseph O'Grady, and it is alleged, proceeded to throw out all the O'Gradyites, and to ignore the present Borough President, Calvin Van Name.

Mr. O'Grady is Tax Commissioner under Mayor Hylan, and he is behind George Cromwell, Mr. Cahill's opponent for Borough President. In one of the Staten Island newspapers yesterday Mr. Van Name indorsed the nomination of Mr. Cromwell, and is quoted as saying that it would be a calamity to Staten Island if he wasn't elected.

On the Coalition ticket are two old stalwarts of Staten Island's Democracy, Stire Pitou for Sheriff and William J. Rowan for Alderman from the 64th District. That doesn't look much like the solidarity of the Democratic organization of which Mr. Cahill boasted.

Mr. Cahill won the leadership from Mr. O'Grady by a vote and a half in the Democratic County Committee. One doesn't have to be a political expert to figure the Cahill strength is no towering Gibraltar and with the strength of O'Grady and the friends of Van Name thrown to Cromwell, how Mr. Cahill figures that he is going to win by 10,000 out of the 34,000 registered votes is a mystery.

George Cromwell, Coalition candidate for Borough President against Cahill, was the first Borough President for Richmond. He was elected under consolidation by three votes. When the Court of Appeals got through with the contest, he went into office with six votes, and stayed in for sixteen years.

"There is no doubt of the election of Mr. Cromwell as Borough President," said Joseph P. Thompson, Republican leader of Staten Island and head of the Coalition Campaign Committee. "The Coalition ticket from Curran down to the last candidate will sweep Staten Island."

Mr. Cromwell has been in the Assembly and twice in the Senate, and has held important positions in civic and political life besides. In later years he embarked in real estate.

"I feel very hopeful of my own election," said Mr. Cromwell to-day, "and confident the people will see that if I am elected my position will be made effective by the election of the rest of our group. The Alderman is as important as the Mayor in his way."

"Since Matthew Cahill became leader of his party, the enrollment of Republicans has increased 100 per cent., while the Democratic enrollment has fallen 33 per cent.

William J. Rowan, Coalition candidate for Alderman, is a superintendent of construction and a carpenter by trade. He is opposed to Alderman O'Rourke, who has been in the board for ten years. He has the indorsement of labor. He is a war veteran.

Spire Pitou, the independent Democrat, who is Coalition's choice for Sheriff, held the office for three years and is burnishing up the old badge for another term. Mr. Pitou is now a ship broker, with his home in West New Brighton, where he has lived since he was two years old. He was cashier of the borough for twelve years, Deputy Commissioner of Public Works, and acting Borough President during the illness and death of the late Charles J. McCormack.

Guy O. Walser, a young lawyer, born in West New Brighton, is the Coalition candidate for the Assembly. Dr. William C. Walser, his father, was a most popular physician on the Island, as was his grandfather. The latter was Health Officer, and when the small-pox became epidemic, a mob demanded the removal of the quarantine office. He got out his old flintlock, and the mob went the other way.

Assemblyman Ernest V. Frerichs is the Coalition candidate for re-election. Last year he won his district by 1,000, though the district is normally 1,000 Democratic. With Senator C. E. Smith he put through the Subway Bill, making it mandatory for the Mayor to begin operations on the Staten Island subway within two years. He also passed the bill extending the Southfield Boulevard all the way to Tottenville, for which the city had to pay one-half, the county one-quarter and the people along the Boulevard the other quarter. Mayor Hylan vetoed the measure and Frerichs had it passed over his head.

Harry Hooker, who is out for Alderman from the 65th, has been active in political fights for twenty-four years, but this is the first he has ever been in of his own.

Thomas H. Braniff is Secretary of the County Committee and carries on his shoulders the burden of the whole committee. Once he was Chairman. He likes all the work and they let him do it.
