ONE OF UNCLE SAM'S GOOD SUBMARINES

This photograph, taken during the submarine maneuvers at Newport, shows the United States submarine G-4 as the sailors were clearing her deck preparatory to submerging.

Explaining Dandruff.

Anybody who wants to know what dandruff is can memorize this little statement: "It is a disease of the sebaceous glands which open into the hair follicles and secrete an oily substance, and dandruff results when the glands become infected and commence to exude an inflammatory substance into the follicles to such an extent that it dries into flakes." Makes baldness seem unimportant.

Mushroom Hunting Dangers.

The advantage of rattlesnake hunting over mushroom hunting seems to be that you know the snake is poisonous. As near as can be made out there seems to be one sure way of telling the character of your find, and that was described by a foreigner who asked if gathering mushrooms was not risky. "All right, most every day. Bimeby somebody die, then we not eat for a week."

Philadelphia Solomon.

A Philadelphia police magistrate was called on to decide the ownership of a dollar bill which was found in the street by a negro and claimed to have been lost by a white man. After hearing the story of each claimant the court said: "I believe the dollar belonged to the white man, but since the negro found it he is entitled to a reward. I therefore decree that each take fifty cents and call it a day's work."

Right Way to Drop a Hook.

One of the most common faults of amateurs in the realm of seamanship is to let go the anchor while the vessel is still going ahead, says Outing. This is not only sloppy and unseamanlike, but it is very likely to involve one in difficulties later on, because when the vessel settles back over her "hook" she is apt to catch a turn of the anchor rope around a fluke or arm and then the anchor will drag under at the least provocation. The proper method of coming to anchor is to round up to the wind or tide (according to which is the controlling force), bring the vessel to a stop and even have slight sternway on her before singing out "Let go!" Then the anchor will go down fair and its chain or rope will fall out straight as the vessel swings off before the wind or tide.

French Traces in Hungary.

The banat is a province of southern Hungary that forms part of "Unredeemed Roumania." But there are bits of it that are not in the least Roumanian in character—particularly certain bits with neat little farms and poplar-lined roads and trim villages nestling round pretty Gothic churches. Both villages and villagers have French names, often distorted almost out of recognition, and a few old folks still have a dim memory of the French language, which was the current speech in these villages sixty years ago, but has since been damped out of existence by the Magyars.

Value of Trained Mind.

The thinking athlete gets more sport out of the games he happens to indulge in than he who is merely an exceptionally good natural athlete or one who is able to absorb the ideas of a trainer and carry them out in purely mechanical fashion. A trained mind to supplement a well-nurtured and trained body creates true zest and spirit for sport, a thing of which the mentally dull but physically superb athletes can know nothing.

Watch Your Manner.

As a rule courtesy receives courtesy. Many times a rudeness which we resent was called out by something out of the way in our own conduct. A child will very often speak impertinently to one who addresses him roughly, while courtesy be instinctively answers in kind. The girl who is continually encountering rudeness had better make a study of her own manner.

When Delia Scored.

Former Mistress—I would like to give you a good recommendation, Delia, but my conscience compels me to state that you never got the meals on time. I wonder how I can put it in a nice sort of way. Delia—"Yes, mought jist say thot Oi got the meals the same as Oi got me pay."—Puck.
