DURABLE HITCHING POST.

Article Made of Concrete Combines Attractiveness With Convenience.

Attractiveness as well as convenience is embodied in the concrete hitching post shown in the illustration.

The mold shown at left of drawing is made of boards by cutting six uprights to conform to the outside of the post, of which a good size is to have the base or square bottom six inches high and eighteen inches square. The sloping sides are twenty-four inches high and slant, so that the top is but six inches or eight inches square. This is done by cutting boards of the correct shape and size for base and slanting sides and then nailing them to the uprights so as to make the mold in two sections, each section alike. Just one-half of mold or one section is shown in the illustration. The opposite section is placed beside this, and the two are held together with hooks and eyelets while molding the work.

The ring is easily made by any blacksmith and has a rod to extend into the body of post about eight inches and with the end bent so it will not pull out easily. This is placed in the mold before filling in the concrete and thus is firmly imbedded in same. The mold is removed by turning the work upright or upon its base, as it is to stand, and then simply unhooking the hooks, when the two sections can be easily removed. The top is molded by placing the mold on a plank into which a hole has been cut, so that the ring and rod to project from top of post will set into same, thus molding the top neatly and bringing the trowel finish upon the bottom of post.—Farm and Ranch.

USEFUL CONTRIVANCE.

Easily Constructed Space Saving Feed Box For the Horses.

As the space on the first floor of the horse barn is often limited, any device that will enlarge it without expense is worth having. A farmer in Woodbury, Conn., has put in a handy, inexpensive fixture that is useful the year through. It is described thus in the Orange Judd Farmer:

He built his big oat bin in the loft, tinned it carefully to keep out mice and connected a galvanized iron leader pipe to the bottom of it, bringing this down to a place near the stable door, where a box was nailed up with a cover. This cover can be opened, but will not stay open. The oats flow down, partly fill this box and stop because the bottom of the chute is covered. It is easy for the busy teamster to dip out what he desires to feed. This chute will conduct oats, wheat, barley or any whole grain, but clogs with ground feed.

To put up the leader is a quick and easy job, for a three inch leader comes in two foot lengths that are just right, and the elbows are made with tight but movable joints that may be turned in any direction, permitting the worker to follow around a post if necessary. As the joints fit tightly into one another, no soldering is needed.

One Shrewd Farmer's Work.

It is a common rule pretty generally observed that the farmers in this country lose more money than their taxes each year by not cutting the alfalfa along their ditch banks, says the Denver Field and Farm. We know a man who last fall secured permission to cut the alfalfa on the ditch banks of a neighboring ranch. He cut it with a scythe and put in three days and a half cutting and stacking it. He then had the little stack thrashed and sold the seed for $108. This is pretty good for the time put on the job.

About the State

Mrs. E. I. Johnson of Briggs, while screwing the cap on a glass jar recently, broke the jar and cut her right arm to the bone.

Edward R. Clapp, who had been for over 30 years the station agent of the Woodstock Railway company, at that place, died last week, aged 62 years.

William J. Wood of Middlebury nearly severed his index and middle fingers recently, when, in attempting to strike a piece of wood, the axe glanced and the sharp edge struck his left hand.

The postoffice at Briggs is to be discontinued July 30, as its patronage is too small to warrant retaining it. Residents of that locality will be obliged to go from three to eight miles for their mail.

Mrs. Glenn E. Blanchard of White River Junction has, at her home near the fair ground, a lusty, two-months-old chicken with three legs. The third leg is just forward of the one on the right side.

Two electrical storms met in Jeffersonville, sonville, Thursday, lightning striking the barn of Ira Powers and burning it to the ground, with almost the entire hay crop of the season. The horse barn nearby was saved.

While J. H. Wiley was backing his team a few days ago, at his home in Readsboro, the horse stepped on the handle of a pitchfork in such a way that the fork was thrown at Mr. Wiley and the tines penetrated his arm about two inches.

Probably two-thirds the records of the town of Brattleboro have been made by two venerable men. William S. Newton, present incumbent, made them from 1863 until a year ago and Stephen Greenleaf, town clerk from 1799 to 1844, served nearly as long as Mr. Newton.

Joseph LaPlante of Readsboro hanged himself in North Adams, Mass., Thursday night in a lodging house, being found by an employee the next morning. No reason is assigned for the deed, but it is known that other members of his family ended their lives in a similar manner.

Buildings to cost $50,000 are to be erected on the Newcomb property at Shelburne Point by Clarence Morgan of Burlington, 20 men beginning work upon them at once. He recently acquired the property from Dr. W. Seward Webb and will build a fine summer residence there. It is estimated that it will take at least a year to build the house.

C. Henry Ingalls, aged 85 years, a resident of Windsor, is still actively engaged in the work of furniture decoration. For 70 years he has been painting trays, chairs, and other kinds of furniture, and does the work in free hand style. His home has been in Windsor for 75 years, and he remembers the first railroad train that came into the place, in 1848.

Walter Hughes, alias Walter Dalton, aged 14 years, who ran away a few days ago with a Colt revolver, belonging to C. C. Jones of Bennington, was found near North Pownal by Mr. Jones and an officer Friday and was committed to Vergennes for the remainder of his minority. He seems to be a professional orphan, as he has run away from four or five excellent homes.

President M. H. Buckham of the university of Vermont has accepted a place on the committee from the Lake Mohonk conference on international arbitration, of which Senator Burton of Ohio is chairman. Discussion is being had concerning the celebration of the approaching centenary of peace between the United States and Canada, and President Taft has been asked to head a national committee.

The Fraternal Order of Eagles of the state is contemplating holding its state convention in Burlington, at a date not yet decided upon, but which will probably be in the early autumn. At the convention the drill teams from the different series will hold a convention drill for prizes aggregating $300, which are donated by the grand lodge. Delegates from all of the series will also be present at the convention.

During a recent thunder shower, Cecil Spencer of Wilmington had a narrow escape from death when lightning struck a tree near which he was standing, rendering him unconscious. When he regained consciousness, he found that he was unable to walk. He called for help and it was found that the lower extremities of his body had been badly burned by the electric bolt. That he was not instantly killed is thought to be due to the fact that he wore rubbers, instead of leather shoes.

One night recently robbers entered the home of L. A. Emery in Hartland, stole a watch valued at $20, a rifle and a new pair of shoes. Evidently the same thief visited G. E. Graham's the same night, stealing Lee Graham's bicycle, a new pair of shoes, leaving the shoes stolen at Emery's. The wheel was tracked to C. B. Heminway's on the Woodstock road. As the road divides just above that residence, one leading to Taftsville, and the other over the hill, it was impossible to trace the thief any further.
