ABOUT THE STATE

HAPPENINGS OF INTEREST FROM DIFFERENT SECTIONS

At the St. Albans rest room 540 out-of-town women registered during the month of May, making a total of 9,480 since the room was opened Feb. 26, 1914.

Charles Lontin, a B. & M. section man, whose home is in Derby, was struck by a train in Orleans Monday, receiving a broken arm and many cuts about the head, neck and shoulders. He is in a critical condition.

Only one veteran of the Civil war is left in Sherburne, although that town sent 70 young men to the front. Not all are dead, but all the others have left the place, excepting one. In Swanton, the numbers of veterans has been reduced from nearly 100 to ten.

Henry Town, overseer of the poor in Danby, was seriously injured between that place and Granville, N. Y., recently, when his horse stumbled and fell, throwing him out of the wagon, the animal kicking him. He had three broken ribs, one of which punctured a lung, and his condition at first was critical. He was found by the roadside and was unconscious for 48 hours.

Frank Wic, employed in the dyeing department of the Winooski woolen mills, slipped, Wednesday, as he was moving the wool in one of the vats, and one leg as far as the knee was plunged into the boiling liquid. He was badly scalded.

RESOURCES OF SOUTHERN RIVERS.

United States Geological Survey Publishes Stream-Flow Records of Lower Mississippi River Basin.

Measurements of stream flow have been made by the United States Geological Survey at about 3,000 points in the United States, and also at many points in small areas in Seward peninsula and the Yukon-Tanana region, Alaska, and in the Hawaiian islands. In July, 1913, 1,388 gauging stations were being maintained by the survey and the co-operating organizations, and many miscellaneous discharge measurements were made at other points. In connection with this work data were also collected in regard to precipitation, evaporation, storage reservoirs, river profiles and water power in many sections of the country and are available in the regular water-supply papers issued by the geological survey.

One of these reports, entitled "Surface Water Supply of the Lower Mississippi River Basin, 1913" (water-supply paper 357), by Robert Follansbee and G. A. Gray, contains records of the flow of rivers in the Arkansas, Yazoo and Red river basins, tributary to the lower Mississippi, during 1913. Forty-one stations were maintained in the basins of these rivers during the year. The Arkansas river records cover the principal upland tributaries in Colorado, together with Canadian river in New Mexico and White river in Arkansas and Missouri. The records in the Yazoo river drainage basin were procured in co-operation with the Tallahatchie drainage commission and are of fundamental importance in connection with drainage work in this fertile delta region. The work in New Mexico was done in co-operation with the state engineer.

A Lusitania Mystery.

What were the instructions sent by wireless by the admiralty in London to the captain of the Lusitania and received by him as he neared the Irish coast? Writing from London under date of May 11, George W. Smalley, veteran correspondent, whose letters Andrew D. White places among the best produced during his lifetime by any journalist, says: "I cabled yesterday that the admiralty issued instructions which, if obeyed, would have saved the Lusitania." The despatch probably did not get by the censor. On the day the cablegram was filed the first lord of the admiralty in the House of Commons said: "We sent warnings to the Lusitania and directions as to her course." More than that he would not say, except that "In no circumstances will it be possible to make public the naval dispositions for patrolling the approaches to our coast." At the inquest the Lusitania's captain was asked if he carried out the special instructions he received from the admiralty. He replied, "Yes, to the best of my ability." He referred the inquisitors to the admiralty for the instructions themselves. Now Mr. Smalley writes that he has come into possession of the admiralty's instructions and that, although he cannot make them public, still in his judgment, "they completely relieve the admiralty from all blame in connection with the Lusitania." What were those instructions?—Boston Herald.

IMPROVING THE LAWN.

Repair, Improvement and General Management Considered By Experts.

The improvement of an old lawn is a very much more difficult problem than establishing a new one. In many cases it is impracticable to attempt the improvement of an old lawn that is in bad condition, say the specialists of the U. S. department of agriculture. However, if a reasonably good turf obtains, it is possible to better it materially by reseeding, fertilizing and watering. In the majority of cases improvement is desired in the spring, since at this season many bare spots are in evidence as the result of the preceding winter. If the areas to be improved are small, they can be hand-worked and reseeded with little difficulty. If they are large, it is usually advisable to spade them up, work thoroughly and seed, as in the case of starting a new lawn. In any event, reseeding should be done early in the spring with a liberal quantity of the mixture before described.

When the stand of grass is thin over the entire lawn or a greater portion of it, a special seeder equipped with small disks has been found very satisfactory for cutting the seed into the sod and thereby producing favorable conditions for germination and subsequent growth. In the early spring, however, the soil is usually loose as a result of the freezing and thawing and is in sufficiently open condition to permit the seed to be covered with little difficulty. After seeding, if the ground has become quite dry, rolling is usually beneficial. Care should be taken when mowing or watering the newly seeded areas to avoid disturbing the young grass. This caution always applies in a measure to fall seeding, although there is not so much danger of damage in the case of the latter.

Fertilizing.

The management of the lawn after it is once established is an extremely important matter, and there are a few general practices that should be followed carefully. Beginning in the early spring, the first thing to do is to remove with a rake the top dressing that has been applied the fall before. After removing this it is usually advisable to apply some fertilizer, even though the soil is already reasonably fertile. One of the very best fertilizers for the lawn in the spring is nitrate of soda, but on account of its quick action and its caustic effect, extreme caution should be used in its application. Five pounds of nitrate of soda are sufficient for 1,000 square feet of lawn, and if applied in solution with the watering pot and the grass then thoroughly watered with a hose, there is little danger of scalding. Bone meal is probably the best commercial fertilizer to use on a lawn, considering the danger from the misuse of nitrate of soda. Bone meal can be used without taking any special caution in its application, as it is in no way injurious to the grass. Eight pounds to 1,000 square feet is a liberal application. Any commercial fertilizer that is used should be applied early in the spring when the grass begins to grow. In fact, bone meal can be used to advantage every month during the growing season, except perhaps July and August. Fertilizing through the season is especially beneficial in keeping the grass stimulated at times when it would otherwise be more or less inactive. Pulverized limestone as a top dressing is very helpful, and an application of this substance can be made either in the fall, winter or spring. Lime corrects the acidity of the surface soil and is useful in checking the growth of moss and various other plants that are detrimental to the grass.

FRIENDLY SLAP FATAL.

Frederick Thompson Exonerated of Causing Chum's Death.

San Francisco, June 5.—A dejected man stepped upon a train for New York yesterday. He was going away to try to forget that his slap on the back in greeting had killed one of his best friends.

Frederick Thompson, once famous amusement promoter, was about to gain new success in his newest idea, "Toyland," at the San Francisco fair. Thompson had the habit of playfully and vigorously slapping his acquaintances upon the back when he greeted them.

He thus accosted Thomas E. Hughes, former secretary of the late "Big Tim" Sullivan of New York. Hughes dropped dead. Thompson was exonerated Thursday night of any intention of harming his friend.

BEAUTY MORE THAN SKIN DEEP.

A Good Complexion Must Come from Within.

The natural desire of every ambitious woman is to have a clear skin and a beautiful complexion.

Not every woman can be a Diana or Juno, but the beauty of freshness and the bloom of a clear skin are within the reach of every woman who will make the effort.

It is all a matter of intelligent trying. If the bowels are inactive, if the liver is not working properly, if the poisonous waste and refuse are not expelled promptly from the system, complexion is sure to show the effect.

The only right way to remove pimples, moth spots and blotches and clear up a cloudy complexion, is to go right to the root of the trouble with the proper remedy.

The one remedy that will cure constipation, improve the complexion, tone up the liver and insure a clear, velvety skin is SEAVER'S LAXATIVE TONIC TABLETS.

You should have confidence, for the druggist will pay you back your money if the tablets do not benefit you as claimed.

McCullough an Affable, Accessible Man.

Though not a native Vermonter, ex-Gov. John G. McCullough, whose death occurred in New York last Saturday, was nevertheless a man who became closely identified with the interests of the state from the time when as a young man of 38 years of age he came to North Bennington. The famous gubernatorial campaign of 1902 ending in Mr. McCullough's election by the legislature is still fresh in the memories of Vermonters. Previously he had been chosen delegate from Vermont to the Republican national convention in 1880, 1888 and 1900, and as senator from Bennington county in 1898, when he served as president pro tem of the Senate. Ex-Gov. McCullough visited Waterbury at different times and is recalled here as an affable accessible man interested in all matters affecting the community.—Waterbury Record.

VILLAGE PROPERTY

As I am leaving town within a short time, I have decided to sell at public auction to the highest bidder on Tuesday, June 8th,

at 4 o'clock in the afternoon on the premises, in Waterbury, Vt., my property situated at No. 74 Main street. Property consists of a two-tenement house divided in the center; contains 12 rooms; six in each tenement; entirely separate; large lot five rods on the street and nine rods deep, affording good garden for each tenement. The house is well painted inside and papered; has flush closets; electric lights; roofs are good, one side having recently been shingle; nice shade trees and good lawn; cellars have bulkhead entrance; village water, etc., etc.

This is especially desirable for investment, as the income is $300.00 and the location is one where the property is always rented. A good place for man who wishes to own his home, renting one tenement to pay for the property and occupy the other. Terms easy. Sale positive, without reserve or limit, as I have no further use for the property for the reason above stated.

Remember the date, June 8, at 4 o'clock in the afternoon.
