Closing Days of Chautauqua.

The third assembly of the North Platte Chautauqua closed Sunday night with a lecture by Father Nugent of Des Moines, and it proved one of the best of several delivered during the Chautauqua. The subject was "The Philosophy of Civilization," and the speaker followed the trend of events from the days of ancient Rome to the present day.

Friday evening Taban, the white Indian, delivered his address, in which he depicted much of the Indian life as he found it among the Kiowas, and insisted that prior to becoming associated with white men the Indian was not a bad man morally.

The Apollo quartette, of Chicago, bell ringers and artists on the cornet, trombone and French horns, made their appearance and remained until the closing session. They are excellent musicians and pleased their audience at each appearance. The Saturday evening session was wholly occupied by them.

The rain Saturday afternoon interfered to some extent with Miss Wahl's program of the work she had been doing with the children along the Seaton Indian line.

Sunday afternoon Mrs. Lewis, a speaker on socialism, delivered a lecture, which was not as satisfactory as was expected, the speaker failing to outline the principles of socialism and other information relating thereto.

The lecture by Father Nugent Sunday evening was a fitting conclusion to a successful Chautauqua so far as talent and interest was concerned.

Parsons Arrested for Stabbing.

From a Douglas, Ariz., paper it is learned that A. F. Parsons, a former attorney of North Platte, has been arrested in the former place on the charge of seriously stabbing a man. A bartender of that city had abused his daughter and Parsons caused his arrest. A trial followed, Parsons conducting the case, and in his pleading severely scored the bartender. Following the case the latter followed Parsons and struck him, whereupon Parsons drew a knife and slashed the bartender in the stomach and hip. Parsons was arrested, but released on his own recognizance until the day of hearing.

Streitz Captures Pigeon Thief.

About 4 o'clock Saturday morning members of the family were awakened by a noise in the vicinity of the chicken yard. Seeing a figure moving about in his son's pigeon-fly Mr. Streitz's first thought was to take a shot at the same with his rifle from the second story window. But thinking it might be some boy whose desire to possess a pair of high bred birds had overcome his sense of right and wrong, he quickly descended to the back yard and fell upon the culprit to find him to be a husky man of 25 of more years old with a bran sack full of his son's white fan-tail pigeons.

On the way to jail it developed that the man's parents were old and respected residents of North Platte. He was therefore liberated and told to reform for his parent's sake if for no other reason. Mr. Streitz would not divulge his name but assures us that the next time he will use the rifle and investigate afterward. In the melee 2 or 3 pigeons escaped.
