The American Musical Convention.

Correspondence of The Tribune.

BOSTON, Aug. 28, 1844.

The Address of Mr. Kirk, to which I referred at the close of my last letter, was an admirable production, complete with the eloquence of thought and delivery, for which that gentleman is so justly celebrated. But it uttered sentiments somewhat rare, and which, in certain quarters, may elicit some opposition. Mr. K. proposed to indicate some of the existing defects in Church Music, as the first step to the removal of its difficulties. "Let us begin," said he, "with the COMPOSER." He then referred to the simple provision which is made for the writer of music, in the great scale of nature. A superficial observer, he remarked, might imagine all sible combinations of the twelve sounds composing the musical scale, to be at length quite exhausted. A simple calculation, however, would correct this impression. Those twelve sounds admit, of course, by mere combination of 144 different successions. Each of these combinations can be varied again by accent or rhythm or measure, by length, rapidity, force, legato and staccato, so as to admit of constructing many millions of tunes. Then there lie slumbering and unwrought in the musical quarry, many forms of exquisite melody, to say nothing of harmony. This being the case, he thought there was no excuse for the defects which appear in much of the music now used in our Churches. Much of our present music, said he, has a wearisome monotony, a clumsy, plodding heaviness, in comparison with what we conceive of, and are longing to hail realized. But that portion of the lecture, most liable to be called in question, expressed the view that "probably no unconverted man can compose genuine Church Music." It would trip somewhere, like Moore's Sacred songs.

Having spoken sufficiently of the common defects of the composer, Mr. K. next proceeded to speak of the ORGANIST. He should be a composer, even if he never writes music. Whatever the composer needs, is useful, most of it indispensable, for him. If some organists knew how keen many of their hearers are to perceive when they have ceased to feel the sentiment, and begin to exercise their vanity; if they knew how their motives run out at their fingers' ends, enter into the pipes, and stream all over the house, they would guard their motives in playing. A skillful player makes the keys tell just what he is thinking and how he is feeling. Let this important servant of the Church, continued Mr. K., never forget, that while he is out of sight, and his face averted from the audience, the Organ is a mirror to reflect his inward figure to them; and when he plays that familiar air called Vanity, or any of its variations, it is recognized at once, and immediately associated with its own short but cherished words,—'Ain not I an admirable performer? Admire me, although you forget God. Leave the mercy seat, and praise the Organ.' This common defect of Organists Mr. K. highly deprecated.

His criticisms were next extended to THE CHOIR. The Choir, in his view, was not to monopolize the singing, nor to turn the sanctuary into an exhibition room, nor to make children of the world, who sing well, despise the children of God for their defective singing. Its legitimate spheres is the guidance of the exercise of singing. In this connection Mr. K. spoke of the defectiveness of our Saxon tongue, on account of its barbarous combination of consonants. He regarded this as an insuperable obstacle to producing the full power of music through the medium of our language. On this account he highly recommended chanting, as one of the remedies for this difficulty.

In enumerating the causes of our present relative defectiveness, Mr. K. mentioned the want of proper cultivation; the making music an end, and not the means to an end; the want of religious sentiment in singers; the want of a true conception of the sentiment; the love of admiration.

Mr. Kirk's lecture was listened to with profound attention. The Convention passed a vote of thanks to the Reverend gentleman, requesting a copy for publication.

After Mr. K. had finished his address, an hour was spent by the Convention in business, Hon. C. P. Smith in the Chair. The standing committee proposed the following question for discussion: "Has the introduction of Music into the Common Schools, thus far, proved beneficial?"

This question elicited many interesting facts and statements, which I shall give you in my next letter. The Convention is attended by a large concourse of people, most of whom are teachers of music from abroad. New-York and Brooklyn have sent a fair representation. We see on the platform Prof. Hastings, Lucius Hart, Esq. the somewhat noted leader of the Aiken street Choir, who has been elected Vice President to fill the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of Mr. Lucas, Charles L. Barnes, the well known teacher of the "Juvenile Orchestra," that played so charmingly in the Tabernacle, not long since, Geo. Andrews, Esq. leader of the Tabernacle Choir; D. E. Jones, of the Brainerd Church Choir, and our Honorable Chairman.

Yours, in haste, CAFFERELLI.

FRUITS OF POLITICAL ABOLITION.—The Liberty party in the Chicago district recently polled 1 408 votes. Had all these been given for the Whig anti-Slavery and Texas candidate, he would have been elected. As it is, these pretended friends of liberty have been the direct means of reëlecting Wentworth, well known as a most violent Locofoco, and advocate of the annexation of Texas; and by voting for Henderson, the Abolitionists, of course, indirectly supported a Texas man for Congress. Such are the legitimate fruits of Liberty partyism. [Boston Atlas.

A QUESTION.—The Locos are complaining of the low price of wheat, which they charge to the Tariff. Qu.—How much higher would wheat now be, if all who during the past eighteen months have engaged in manufacture, had turned in to farming, and were now pressing their produce to market?

Another.—The Locos complain that produce is low, which they lay to the Tariff. Why don't they complain that wool is high and charge that to free trade? [Geneva Courier.

THE LONG ARM OF MASSACHUSETTS LAW REACHED HIM.—Constable Gustavus Andrews arrived in this city from New York last evening, with Captain James Simpson, charged with stealing the cargo of the schooner Saul, when under his command, in 1842, in Boston harbor. The ex association of Chubb, and the mate of the Saul, on the same charge, was published last June. Smith was arrested at Aiken, 100 miles from Charleston, S. C., and was conveyed to Charleston by some South Carolina officers, who delivered him up to Mr. Andrews, who had delegated to them his authority under an executive warrant from Governor Briggs. Mr. Andrews came with his prisoner in the ship H. Allen, from Charleston to New-York, and thence via the Long Island Rail-road to Boston. It may be recollected, that after the Saul had been stripped of her cargo by the harbor pirates, she was burnt by lightning or design, and the insurance was paid. [Boston Post.

BAYOU PLAQUEMINE.—The Planters' Banner of Saturday says—"We understand that the stakes at the mouth of Plaquemine, and in fact, the entire point, opposite the village, have been carried away by the flood, and a very large volume of water rushes down the bayou, from the Mississippi. The bayou was staked in 1838, and again we believe last fall." [N. O. Tropic.

☞ A bill is now before the British Parliament, and which will become a law this season, entirely abolishing imprisonment for debt upon all debts under twenty pounds. All persons at present in custody for such sums are to be released.

ACCIDENT.—A man employed about the new building of Messrs. Bowen and Tower, erected on the site of the late fire in Main street, fell from the third story into the cellar, on Monday last, fracturing his skull and causing other serious injuries. We learn that he is living, and may possibly recover. [Worcester (Mass.) Ægis.

Letter from Th: Jefferson Sutherland.

TO HORACE GREELEY, Esq. Editor of the Tribune:

SIR:—A friend has called my attention to the fact that, in an article purporting to be a letter from a correspondent at Quebec, Canada, who signs his name Fantome, published in the Tribune on the 6th of September, 1843, (vol. iii. No. 128) I am charged directly with having betrayed Edward A. Theller in his effort to escape from the Citadel at Quebec in 1838. This charge may be found in the 7th paragraph of the article; where it will be seen coupled with expressions of malignancy, which could come forth, as I should hope, from lips at no other place than Quebec—or from under the frowning bastions of some other fortress of the monarch "upon whose territories the sun never sets." The charge is unqualifiedly false—as it was well known to each of the political prisoners who were confined in the Citadel at Quebec at the time of Theller's escape—and as it has been established by legal proofs and evidences, without my agency or request, before a Court Martial composed of 23 officers of the 2nd battalion Grenadier Guards and the 2nd battalion Coldstream Guards of Her Majesty's Household Troops. I had not before supposed that there was so much malice towards me remaining in all Canada at this day—nor can I account for being thus libeled with so much malignancy; and under ordinary circumstances I should take no other steps for redress in the case than that of going directly before a grand jury with a complaint—which shall be my course for all future time. But I happen to know that you were in the Western part of the State at the time the libelous article referred to was published, and therefore could not have superintended its insertion in the columns of the Tribune—and as from a known entire want of provocation, I cannot suppose you to have been the author of the article, I therefore give you the opportunity of making me amends for the wrong done, by publishing, with this, the following copy of a statement which was put into my hands while yet a prisoner in Canada. To enable Theller to escape from the Citadel of Quebec, by which means he avoided transportation to Van Diemen's Land, I allowed myself to be deprived of many privileges and advantages, (which I might have enjoyed,) for several months, and then to be incarcerated in a Black Hole for five weeks, for having been an abettor and adviser of Theller's escape. But for this, I claim no credit to myself. The course was my own—it was due to myself—and I should have pursued the same towards even a more miserable man than Edward A. Theller.

Very respectfully, &c.

August 22, 1844 TH: JEFFERSON SUTHERLAND.

THELLER Contradicted by his Fellow-Prisoners, and "FANTOME'S" Charge Refutted.

CORNWALL, U. C. May 10, 1840.

"The undersigned, citizens of the United States, now detained as prisoners by the British Government, and being about to be released by the said Government, and to return to their country and friends, having seen in the newspapers several false and malicious statements, said to have been made by Edward A. Theller, in relation to the circumstances of the imprisonment of the said Theller with Gen Sutherland, W. W. Dodge and ourselves, in the Citadel of Quebec, and of the escape of the said Theller and Dodge therefrom, deem it a matter of justice to ourselves, as well as to others, before separating, to make and subscribe the following statement of facts:

"On the 10th day of June, 1838, the undersigned prisoners of State to the British Government, with others to the number of ten individuals in all, as follows: Th: Jefferson Sutherland, Wm. Wallace Dodge, Abraham W. Patridge, Chauncey Parker, Benjamin F. Pew, Nathan Smith, Squire Thayer, Theron R. Culver, Henry Hull and Edward A. Theller, arrived at Quebec, and were placed in confinement in Casemated Room No. 3, of the Citadel. Soon after our arrival at Quebec Theller commenced a correspondence with certain individuals residing in the city; his letters being transmitted by a Sergeant who had the immediate charge of the room in which we were confined. Some time during the latter part of July Gen. Sutherland accused Theller of having written letters to persons in the city traducing him, and made complaint to Captain Chisholm, Adjutant of the Coldstream Guards, of the fact, and requested that Theller should be debarred from sending out letters containing matter derogatory to him, Sutherland; and Capt. Chisholm engaged that no such derogatory correspondence should be carried on. Nevertheless Theller continued writing and sending out letters through the agency of the Sergeant, as usual—and with even more impunity than before the complaint was made.

"Up to the time above mentioned no attempt to escape had been proposed, or talked of by Theller, or any others of the prisoners. But afterwards when it was perceived that Theller had the Sergeant completely under his control, so far as the transmission of letters was concerned, it was proposed by some of the prisoners that an attempt should be made to effect their liberation by escape; and about the 10th of August a plan was agreed upon by all of the prisoners, (Theller being appointed to carry on the correspondence which was necessary to have the proper arrangements made for our escape out of the country after an egress from the Citadel had been effected,) and a programme of the proposed attempt to escape was drawn up in writing by Gen. Sutherland, and approved of by all of the other prisoners. After the arrangements for an escape according to this programme had been proceeded with, and while still in progress of completion, Gen. Sutherland was notified by the Chief Secretary of Her Majesty's Government in Canada, of the reception of an order from the Home Government for Gen. Sutherland's liberation from prison; but that the Lieutenant Governor of Upper Canada would not consent to his release till he had given security in the sum of $10,000, not again to enter any of her Majesty's Dominions.

"On the 20th of August, immediately after the communication of the above-mentioned facts, Gen. Sutherland was removed from room No 3—where we, with the others of the prisoners, remained—to another part of the Citadel. At the same time, Theller was notified that an order had been sent out from the Government in England, directing his (Theller's) transportation to Van Diemen's Land. Previous to this, Theller had been among the most backward of the prisoners in forwarding the measures for an escape; but as soon as he received the information that he was to be sent to Van Diemen's Land, he became one of the most anxious that the measures for escape should be proceeded with. In pursuance of the plan agreed upon, and in accordance with the programme drawn up by Gen. Sutherland, a bar in the grate at one of our windows was cut off. This was completed on or about the 2d of September; but on account of the unfavorable state of the weather, no attempt was made to escape by any of the prisoners till the night of the 14th of September, when Theller, Dodge, Hull, Parker and Culver escaped out of the Citadel, and Theller and Dodge succeeded in getting safe to the United States; and Hull, Parker and Culver were recaptured and brought back.

"We would further certify and state that the proceedings of Theller and Dodge, and of the other prisoners, to effect their escape from the Citadel, were in exact accordance with the programme previously drawn up by Gen. Sutherland; and that he was in our room and saw the bar in the grate when partly cut off—and that he was also one day on the Esplanade which looked down upon the window in which the bar of the grate was cut, and saw Pew in the act of severing the bar with a saw.

"We do further certify and state that Gen. Sutherland, to the knowledge of each of the undersigned, was fully acquainted with all of the measures proceeded in by Theller and Dodge, and the other prisoners, for their escape from the Citadel of Quebec and by means of which Theller and Dodge succeeded in making their final escape; and that the fact that Gen. Sutherland was so acquainted with all of their proceedings was well known to the said Theller and Dodge, and that during the time of the delay from the 3rd of September, when the bar of the window-grate was cut off, to the 14th of November, when their escape was effected, each of us has heard both Theller and Dodge frequently declare and state that Gen. Sutherland was fully acquainted with all of their preparations for escape—and that they had no fears of his betraying them; and the undersigned pronounce any statement contrary to the above facts, malicious by and corruptly false; and the undersigned would further certify and state that General Sutherland was confined five weeks to the Black Hole on account of the escape of Theller and Dodge, and for the same reason was debarred of many privileges which had previously been extended to him; and that he is still detained a prisoner at this place—and that his name is not contained in the order of the Government, which directs the liberation of the undersigned.

"ABRAHAM W. PATRIDGE, NATHAN SMITH.
"HENRY HULL, THERON R. CULVER."
"SQUIRE THAYER,

NOTE.—The above was subscribed to by five of the seven prisoners who remained with me after Theller and Dodge's escape. Chauncey Parker had previously written a letter containing a similar statement of facts, which had been published in the N. Y. Commercial Advertiser, and Pew was the person whom Theller accuses of having attempted to betray them,—and therefore was not asked to sign the above. It is also proper that I should state that I was not liberated from prison in Canada until more time a month had expired after these men had been released and sent home. S.

FROM THE SANDWICH ISLANDS.—We are indebted to a friend for a Sandwich Islands paper of March 2d, called the "Friend of Temperance." A considerable portion of it is occupied with President Tyler's message delivered at the opening of the session of Congress in December last, which the editor says he publishes at the request of several gentlemen for the perusal of numerous American readers, and he hopes some of the readers will cast in their mite to defray the expenses of publication.

There is a communication in the paper, headed "Wonderful Phenomenon," which states that on the morning of the 13th of February a report was in circulation through the town of Honolulu, that an immense body of water had burst through the surface of Fort Hill, and spread itself out upon the summit in the form of a lake. It was stated that the water around the borders of the said lake was cold, but that in the centre it was hot, and that its depth was eight fathoms. The excited natives were seen flocking in crowds to the scene of wonder. It was judged that not less than 1500 made the pilgrimage in the course of the forenoon, many of whom brought away calabashes full of water. Some of the curious procured from them small phials or bottles filled with the precious element.

Many speculations were agitated to ascertain the origin of this unbroked for phenomenon. Some thought the sea had suddenly forced a passage through what was once an active volcano, and that henceforth the old crater was to send forth water instead of fire. Others again believed that water had been gradually accumulating in the fissures and cavities of the mountain during the last twenty years, and had at length united in one vast body; but no one could certainly tell; conjecture was rife.

At length, in the afternoon, several gentlemen, in whose judgment the utmost confidence could be reposed, mounted horse and proceeded to the place, determined to examine with their own senses this new "lion," whose sudden appearance had disturbed in so remarkable a degree the tranquility of the town. They went prepared to take its soundings, and also to ascertain its exact temperature. On arriving at the designated spot, they found a small dark pool, and into it their lead was immediately cast, which found bottom at the surprising depth of six inches! The water was so muddy that it was not thought advisable to make use of the thermometer. It was now recollected that a great deal of rain had recently fallen, and here the marvel ended.

The editor of the "Friend" adds that the deep sensation which pervaded the community arose from the circumstance that a native woman, having been troubled in her sleep for many nights in succession, at length announced that a fountain was about to break forth on Fort, alias Punch Bowl, Hill. To test the truth of her dream, she ascended the hill, when lo! a fountain was to be seen. The report spread like an electric shock among the natives, and some of the foreigners, it seems, had their curiosity much excited.
