LITERARY NOTES.

The complete novel in the June issue of Lippincott's is entitled "Green Withes," by Jeannette H. Walworth. This is a tale of strong human interest, touching as it does, on one of the vital questions of to day. The snapping of the green withes of convention and the inevitable awakening are told in a forceful and interesting way, which is calculated to arouse the reader's deepest sympathy.

The return of the Jews to Palestine and the long cherished hope of coming to their own again promises to be realized early in the coming century. Edward A. Steiner, who has carefully investigated this Zionistic Movement, as it is termed, gives in the July Woman's Home Companion a very instructive account of how the Jews intend to reclaim the land of their inheritance, showing also the portraits of the prominent leaders in America.

The June Scribner's is very strong in short stories. William Allen White, the Kansas editor, whose "Boyville Stories" are so well known, writes a tale of Western political life with which his editorial duties have brought him in close contact. He calls it "A Victory for the People," and gives the inside history of the appointment of a United States Senator by the Governor, a kind of politics which is just now very much in evidence. It speaks of unblushing corruption in politics as a common every day matter.

For a description of Marconi's wireless telegraph that anybody can understand, and an account of its latest achievements that everybody will be interested in, readers may be referred to the June number of McClure's Magazine. The article is written with the assistance of Mr. Marconi himself, by Mr Cleveland Moffett, who himself sent and received messages by the wireless telegraph across the English Channel; and it is fully illustrated from photographs taken expressly for the purpose.

The June Century is an Out of Doors Number, abounding with full page illustrations, including a frontispiece by Albert Sterner, representing Izaak Walton seated reading under a tree—and of course fishing as he reads. This is apropos of the opening article—a discursive essay on "Fisherman's Luck," by that redoubtable angler, the Rev. Henry van Dyke, printed with decorative page borders. Dr. van Dyke's essay is followed by a descriptive study of Niagara Falls by Mrs. Schuyler van Rensselaer, based on an unusual familiarity with this great natural wonder.

The signs of the times on the industrial and business horizon are outlined in the June number of the American Monthly Review of Reviews. In the department of "The Progress of the World" the editor discusses the tendency toward the consolidation of capital, railroad amalgamation, the relation of modern monopolies to the heaping up of great fortunes, the value of franchises and proposed tax reforms, and other conditions and problems of the day in the business world. Mr. Bryan W. Holt contributes an article on "Trusts—The Rush to Industrial Monopoly," in which he sets forth the facts in connection with the recent startling development of the trust-forming mania, as it is beginning to be called. A feature of Mr. Holt's article is a carefully prepared list of more than one hundred and twenty five industrial combinations now operating in this country, each of which is capitalized at not less than $10,000,000. This list was revised to May 20, and includes the concerns formed during the past few months.

A leading farm journal pays this deserved tribute to the Atlantic Monthly, of which Walter H. Page is editor: "Which is the representative American magazine? The average answer to this question will cover only one special line of literary activity according to the taste of the reader. But an emphasis on the word American brings up many qualifications. A consideration of American literature, American scientific achievement, American statesmanship and politics—and the representative magazine must not be a mere chronicle alone of these, it must stand at the front in shaping them to be all that is American in the highest and most hopeful sense—would make the selection an extremely difficult one were it not for the Atlantic Monthly. The Atlantic responds now, as it has for more than forty years, to a fulfillment of all that could be desired of the representative American magazine. Nor in any way losing in steadfastness to its first purpose, 'to hold Literature above all other human interests, and to suffer no confusion of its ideals,' it has kept pace with the changes that have come since its first number."

NEW POPULAR MUSIC FOR MAY.

assertive swain, who sings that "There are Other Girls, but None Like Mine," (Dan Packard), and the production of the descriptive writer; in this case a "story-song" called "Your Mother's Wedding Ring," (J. D. Bingham) The admirers of "coon-songs" are also well provided for; "Forget It, Don't You Care!" (Williams & Walker), and "I'se Workin'—I'se Hustlin'," (Powers & Gouraud), attesting that the darkey dittty is as irrepressible as ever; while the juvenile contingent is looked after in "Columbia Ann," (Maribel Seymour) a clever child song.

In the instrumental works the same luxuriance of style is observable, and pianist have an assortment to choose from. Lovers of syncopated music—commonly called "rag-time," will find "Rag-Time Jimmie's Jamboree," (Ned Wayburn), a notably clever specimen of it. (Published by Howley, Haviland & Co., New York City.)
