The Faults of Men and Those of Women

By Mrs. FRANK LESLIE

"WHILE the barrooms are full of men the churches are full of women," said a shrewd observer in one of the daily prints lately. His statement was a broad one, but after all conveys a truth of which women may perhaps be too proud.

Women don't frequent barrooms and similar resorts, to be sure, but then one must remember THEY DON'T WANT TO. They do go to church a good deal, but they take pleasure in doing it. Virtue and vice are, after all, COMPARATIVE terms, and the temperament of the individual comes in to modify most decisions.

On one of the occasions when I helped to swell the congregation of women at church I heard what seemed to me a most sensible and rational theory propounded by the preacher. He was talking of the judgment, and he said that the Judge was not going, like an earthly magistrate, to apply an iron law TO EVERY CASE ALIKE, but to consider each culprit's temperament, opportunities and environment.

MEN, FOR INSTANCE, WOULD NOT BE SO SEVERELY JUDGED FOR FREQUENTING BARROOMS AS WOMEN WOULD, AND A FRETFUL, SUSPICIOUS, "NAGGING" WOMAN WOULD NOT BE PUNISHED FOR HER FLIGHTS OF TEMPER AS A MAN WOULD BE FOR SIMILAR CONDUCT.

Each sex has its own class of faults, and doubtless the temptation to those faults is far stronger in the class which has a sort of hereditary right to them than in any other. They differ essentially, these faults of men and women do, and very often they clash all the more ON ACCOUNT OF THESE DIFFERENCES. Man's wrong tendencies run into vices more or less coarse and degrading, while woman's tend rather to foibles and faults more or less narrow and contemptible.

The woman has her foibles of temper, of selfishness, of jealousy, of vanity, of precision and intolerance. These qualities are not vices, unless we call jealousy one, but they are capable of making life INTOLERABLE to any one compelled to associate intimately with the woman who possesses and develops them.

A man under certain conditions of excitement and provocation is apt to become coarse and brutal. He swears, he bangs the furniture about, he tells his wife she is a fool, or a liar, or a scold, and taunts her with cruel insults. He visibly, to her eyes if not to his own, steps down from his position AS MAN AND GENTLEMAN and becomes an object of scorn and loathing.

Now come in her foibles to fan the flame his vices have kindled. She uses her nimble tongue like a lash, she minnies him, she "looks" at him, she wishes she had his picture; in fact, she arouses all that is worst in his nature to a condition of frenzy, and AFTER THAT POINT ANYTHING IS POSSIBLE. He may strike her, he may heap upon her insults so terrible that no penitence can ever wash them away, he may even be so wrought upon by rage and that sense of helplessness which assails a man when a clever woman lets loose her tongue upon him as to lay out his brute strength upon her and lay her dead at his feet.

TWO MEN OR TWO WOMEN RARELY, IF EVER, STIR EACH OTHER TO SUCH A PITCH OF IRRESPONSIBLE WRATH AS AN ANGRY WOMAN CAN DRIVE AN ANGRY MAN.

Man Will Some Day Recognize Woman as His Peer

By SUSAN B. ANTHONY

UNTIL woman has obtained "that right protective of all other rights, the ballot," agitation must go on, absorbing the time and the energy of OUR BEST AND STRONGEST WOMEN. Who can measure the advantages that would result if the magnificent abilities of these women could be devoted to the needs of government, society, home, instead of being consumed in the struggle to obtain their birthright of individual freedom? Until this be gained we can never know, we cannot even prophesy, the capacity and power of woman for the uplifting of humanity. It may be delayed longer than we think, it may be here sooner than we expect, but the day will come when MAN WILL RECOGNIZE WOMAN AS HIS PEER not only at the fireside, but in the councils of the nation. Then, and not until then, will there be the perfect comradeship, the ideal union, between the sexes that shall result in the highest development of the race.

WHAT THIS SHALL BE WE MAY NOT ATTEMPT TO DEFINE, BUT THIS WE KNOW—THAT ONLY GOOD CAN COME TO THE INDIVIDUAL OR TO THE NATION THROUGH THE RENDERING OF EXACT JUSTICE.

Appeal to Arms Should Be the Last Resort

By CARTER H. HARRISON, Mayor of Chicago

IN my opinion, arbitration should ALWAYS be resorted to between civilized countries when differences arise. The world is surely far enough advanced by this time to be willing to make an appeal to arms THE LAST RESORT when nations fall out. Christianity, humanity and all of the higher motives of men make it imperative that before a war is declared every peaceful means of settling matters in controversy should have been employed. That arbitration is not a mere word, but a living principle, has been proved over and over again. The settlement of the Alaskan boundary question is one of the late examples of the wisdom of arbitration.

WHEN NATIONS AS WELL AS INDIVIDUALS ARE READY TO LISTEN TO THE DICTATES OF REASON AND PRUDENCE BEFORE EMBARKING IN WAR AS A MEANS OF SETTLING GRIEVANCES, THE WORLD WILL HAVE ADVANCED IMMEASURABLY TOWARD THE HIGHER CIVILIZATION.

Humor and Philosophy

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

In spite of the Don't Worry clubs all the people worry some of the time, and some of the people worry all of the time.

A man isn't funny when he works hard at it.

Children are imitative and sometimes tell lies, and their parents wonder how they ever learned it.

Some men's heads are so swelled that it is a shame to have to crowd them in to a two dollar hat.

Some people are jolly because they can't help it.

Job would hardly have succeeded in making a record if he had lived in a flat.

The man who never argues, simply lays down the law.

A bachelor is a misanthrope who prefers a state of lone cupidity to a state of cupid's ownity.

A gentleman is one who gives up his seat as cheerfully to a woman as to a lady.

If golf were not fashionable it would be work.

In the Country.

When the rattle of the reaper
Wakes the echo of the hill,
Rousing me, an idle sleeper,
Down behind the old sawmill
Lazily I turn me over
On my bed of fragrant clover.

Seems to me, our country cousins
Don't appreciate the tunes
That the birds, by tens and dozens,
Warble through the leafy limes.
Very simple is the reason
They are grubbing all the season.

Not for me the rasp and rattle
Of the reaper in the wheat.
I had rather watch the cattle
Of the fragrant clover eat.
Rather lie here cool and lazy,
Than to labor till I'm crazy.

Draughts of perfume, sweet as honey,
Loose are lying round up here
But the hired man—it's funny—
Says he'd rather have some beer;
Says the stuff that nature mixes
Isn't what the barkeep fixes.

An Insinuation.

Miss Trill—I love to hear the birds sing. Jack Downright (warmly)—So do I. They never attempt a piece beyond their ability.

Joseph's Well.

At Dotham, in upper Palestine, is a pool which has refreshed the traveler for centuries. It is the well of Joseph. Its environs form a dreary enough prospect. Above it is a low, insignificant hill upon whose summit cluster a few miserable mud huts, and at the base is the sordid anachronism of a puffing steam mill, while away from it stretches in all directions the faint toned, almost hueless expanse of the Syrian landscape, long reaches of palest blue and gray and yellow, with only an occasional blotch of brilliant color in the foreground. Dreary and waste and sad indeed is the scene to the eyes of the flesh, but to the eyes of the spirit that spurt, bald hill becomes a veritable Mount of Visions—visions a thousand times more real and vivid than the spectacle of mud huts and steam mill and rocky wastes.—Metropolitan Magazine.
