NICKLETS.

Scandal writes with indelible ink.

There never has been a time when good cheer was a drug in the world's market.

Many a girl has stooped to conquer when she merely intended to tie her shoestring.

The easiest thing in the world is spending money that was earned by somebody else.

For some reason that nobody ever attempted to explain the long hairs that are found on men's coats are always blonde.

The merchant who advertises that he is selling his goods at less than cost probably believes the old statement that a fool is born every minute.

Cupid and coffee cause a lot of heart trouble—and both have grounds for it.

A GENTLE HINT.

He—Intuitively I divine what people are thinking about me.
She—How unpleasant for you.

Mother's Song.

Mother sang it years ago
On the little farm,
While a tired, sleepy boy
Rested in her arm.
While a squeaky rocking chair
Creaked and groaned below,
With the rhythm of the song
Sung so soft and low.

"Suwanee River"—still it rings
In these ears of mine.
"Suwanee River"—unto me
Nothing was so fine.
Still I hear a creaking chair,
Still the shadows creep,
Even now the little song
Makes me think of sleep.

Boyhood sorrows were forgot
These on mother's breast,
"Suwanee River—far away,"
Brought me peaceful rest.
Many songs I've heard since then,
None has half the charm,
Mother sang it years ago,
Mother—on the farm.

CAREFULLY THOUGHT OUT.

It is better to point with pride than view with alarm.

Refuse to talk and no one can prove how little you know.

Guessing at anything is fine exercise for a weak imagination.

Don't expect a lawyer to mind his own business. He would soon starve if he did.

It takes a rousing demonstration to get a small boy out of bed in the early morn.

Marriage is an eye-opener; at least it enables a man to see his wife as others see her.

Some girls cultivate the art of pouting because they imagine it makes them look cute.

Fortunate is the woman who is able to mend both her husband's clothes and his ways.

The happiest period in a girl's life is when she gets her first skirt that swishes when she walks.

The bonds of matrimony are frequently broken by a club—of which the husband is a member.

A girl thinks it wrong for a man to attempt to kiss her and a young widow thinks it wrong if he doesn't succeed.

HIS FORM OF SELF-DEFENSE.

Wiggs—Henpeck is very fond of entertaining, isn't he?

Waggs—Yes; his wife is always pleasant when there's company present.—Stray Stories.
