THE TRIBUNE.

EDITING A PAPER.—Hear what the "National Intelligencer," published by Messrs. Gales & Seaton, at Washington City, one of the most valuable and ably conducted papers in the country, says about editing a newspaper:

Many people estimate the ability of a newspaper and the industry and talents of its editor by the quantity of editorial matter which it contains. It is comparatively an easy task for a frothy writer to pour out daily, columns of words—words, upon any and all subjects. His ideas may flow, in "one weak, washy, everlasting flood," and his command of language may enable him to string them together like bunches of onions; and yet his paper may be a meagre and poor concern. But what is the labor, the toil of such a man, who displays his "leaded matter" ever so largely, to that imposed on the judicious, well-informed editor, who exercises his vocation with an hourly consciousness of his responsibilities and its duties, and devotes himself to the conduct of his paper with the same care and assiduity that a sensible lawyer bestows upon a suit, a humane physician upon a patient, without regard to show or display! Indeed, the mere writing part of editing a paper, is but a small portion of the work. The care, the time employed in selecting far more important, and the tact of a good editor is better shown by his selections than any thing else; and that we all know is half the battle. But as we have said, an editor ought to be estimated and his labors understood and appreciated, by the general conduct of his paper—its tone—its temper—its uniform, consistent course—its principles—its aims—its manliness—its dignity—its propriety. To preserve these as they should be preserved, is enough to occupy fully the time and attention of any man. If to this be added the general supervision of the newspaper establishment, which most editors have to encounter, the wonder is, how they can find time or room "to write at all."

SHORT SIGHTED.—The Editor of the New York Globe says he cannot perceive any difference between negro slavery and retaining livery servants, as practiced in Europe. We are inclined to think that if the Editor himself could be persuaded to make the experiment of working for six months on a sugar plantation, either with or without the cart-whip, and then could be transformed to some such easy berth as footman to a lordly aristocrat, he would find that the extremes of slavery were not quite so similar as to amount to identity. He would discover, at least, one striking difference. The owner of white slaves may not beat, or brand them, and neither lord nor commoner can detain them if they prefer trying to se k a livelihood by some other means. The 'white slave' can change his condition; the black one cannot, except by consent of his master. There is neither law nor custom to prevent a pampered menial, in livery or out of it, from giving his master warning, putting his wages in his own pockets, and turning his physical and mental powers to some other productive employment. If the Editor of the Globe cannot see the difference, we can—and so can the livery servants, we humbly opine. [Boston Mail.

GOVERNOR SEWARD.—The promptness with which the Whig press of the State came forward to vindicate the reputation of this distinguished statesman from the vile aspersions of the New-York Express, has been closely followed by Whig County and Senatorial Conventions through the State. This impotent malice of the Express will not hereafter carry much terror into the mind or whenever it selects as the victim of its base slanders. If it is able to do no more injury to any of its victims than it has to Gov. Seward, it will be harmless indeed. It has served to show how strong is the attachment of the Whig party to Gov. Seward, and how prompt it is to resent insults offered to him. The feeling of indignation it has called forth, will hereafter teach the Express a more correct estimate of its own importance, and learn its editors to measure more accurately their own resources, when they determine upon a crusade against one whom the Whigs delight to honor. [Elmira Republican.

THE SMALL POX.—A letter dated Batavia, Genesee county, N. Y. Oct. 11th, says—"Our county is in a state of excitement in relation to the prevalence of small pox. Henry Hawkins, Esq. a member of the State Senate, and formerly of the firm of Hawkins & Blodget, at Alexander, is dead. He was buried yesterday morning at eight o'clock, and the report is that there were twelve new cases yesterday. The stores and taverns are closed at Alexander, and the streets leading to that place fenced up."

THE DEBATE ON SLAVERY between Rev. Messrs. Rice and Blanchard at Cincinnati is to be published.

TARRYTOWN, Sept. 20, 1845.

The undersigned having been requested by Wm. F. Lyon, Esq. to attend the examination of the pupils of the Irving Institute, over which he presides, take pleasure in stating the high gratification they derived from the manner in which the proficiency of the pupils and the evidences they have exhibited of a thorough, systematic and eminently successful course of instruction in all the branches of solid and polite education. While the minds of the pupils give such evidence of careful culture, some of the undersigned have had occasion through successive years to observe that their morals and manners are equally subject to a careful and discreet watching, and to a system of discipline at once flexibly rigid and paternal and just.

In addition to the advantages which the Irving Institute possesses for the education of youth, on account of its eminently salubrious situation, the health of the pupils is systematically promoted by active exercises within the ample grounds of the Institute, part of which is fitted up as a gymnasium, by swimming or skating as the season invites, and by more extended rambles among the attractive scenery of the neighborhood.

With a confidence in the Irving Institute strengthened in most of the undersigned by prolonged observation, they are at once prompted by their feelings and by a sense of duty to commend it strongly to public consideration. Signed,
