A Novel Banquet.

The enterprising town of New Smyrna is about to adopt a novel method of showing to its winter visitors what it can provide for the sustenance of life. The city will give a banquet to its visitors on the 22nd of this month, and as the announcement says, "there will be a menu of extended proportions and not an item on it but can be gathered from the woods and waters of this section, 'without money and without price.' The bread will be made from coontie root, vegetables from cabbage palmetto, and others found growing wild. Fish, oysters and game will furnish the meats. The people propose to show what kind of a meal a man can get up here without purchasing a single article. We believe we have a country in which a man can live cheaper than anywhere else in the world, and propose to demonstrate that fact." Well done, New Smyrna.

A Big Fish

M. J. Gibbons, of Brooklyn, N. Y., is an enthusiastic disciple of Sir Issac Walton, and spends much of his time at the favorite recreation of his chosen saint. Yesterday afternoon Mr. Gibbons was fishing from the pier of the Grand Atlantic Hotel, of which hotel he is a guest, when suddenly he had a heavy strike.

Eye witnesses say that he had a bite, how large the fish was may be guessed by the results. Mr. Gibbons is not a small man by any means; he looks as though he might tip the scales at 180. When the fish struck he attempted to play it, reeling in the line or letting it out as necessity seemed to demand, stepping first to one side and then the other—in fact using every art of the fisherman. In his excitement he forgot about the slippery boards, made so by recent rains, and stepping near the end of the last board slipped and plunged overboard.

Spectators hurried to the rescue, a boat was quickly manned and the fisherman pulled aboard. Mr. Gibbons' only regret was that he lost the fish.

Several of the Palmetto's guests, ladies and gentlemen, enjoyed a game of ball in the rear of the hotel this morning.

Gagnon and Pollock.

Bert C. Gagnon and Miss Edith Pollock, supported by Harold Mordaunt and an excellent company, opened a week's engagement at the Tampa Bay Casino last night, presenting "A man of Mystery." The play and the company made decided hits with the audience, which was a good one and an appreciative one, and the merit of the play's presentation was accentuated by the very clever specialties of Mr. Gagnon and Miss Pollock and the illustrated songs of Mr. Gagnon.

The play is a double-life, deceitful villain, safe robbing, smart detective, tragic ending sort of affair, with all kinds of excitement, suppressed and otherwise. Mr. Gagnon does the Jim Ahn part very cleverly, while Miss Pollock does the heroine effectively. George Hanna as Dr. Leslie, George Castellane as Bill Burke, Miss Myrtle Hulbert as Kate Burke, and Miss Violet Marsden as Millie Merton fill their parts acceptably, while James Howard as Noah Lott, the "coon," was the laugh-maker of the attraction.

"Rag-Time Opera," a specialty by Mr. Gagnon and Miss Pollock, and the illustrated song, "The Man in the Overalls," were exceptionally good. Every union labor man in Tampa should hear the latter.—Tampa Tribune.

This company will be at the Opera House every night next week. Prices will be 25, 35, 50 and 75 cents.
