(Entered as second-class matter January 3, 1905, at the postoffice at Daytona, Florida, under Act of Congress of March 3, 1897.)

Pleased With Daytona.

A fine looking old gentleman was introduced to the NEWS reporter by the popular night clerk of The Ridgewood, Harry Ledyard. The gentleman was David C. Herbst, of Pittsburg, and the reporter was told that he was a judge of the Superior Court of his State.

Mr. Herbst laughed heartily and denied the charge, and stated that it had been but a few minutes since he had been accused of being a bishop. Mr. Herbst, now a retired business man, was at one time a prominent figure among the oil men of Western Pennsylvania. He is accompanied on the tour to Florida by his wife and niece, Miss Stella H. Taylor, of Philadelphia. Speaking of Florida and his impressions of this town he said:

"This is my first trip to the land of sunshine and flowers and it has been a most delightful one to all of us. We have visited many places on the East Coast and throughout the State but this is the most home-like, the prettiest of all. The houses are neat and well kept, your streets are fine and the beach driving is magnificent. When I start South next season commend me to Daytona and her charming people.

Foster Rogers, of Bookline, Mass., left today for points down the East Coast. He will return in about ten days and again be a guest of The Austin.

Ruby and Mandy will take a trip to Cony Island, for the amusement of all who come to Daytona's big free Street Fair, March 14 to 18.

Warrants are out for Ewing Rice and Bob White, accused of disorderly conduct.

Hilton House, lately known as The Lone Bay Inn, has never been so well patronized as it has this season. Mr. Hilton will open up a summer boarding house on the beach about April 1st.

T. D. Durpree, Memphis; Palmer Walthom, Atlanta; T N. Biddle, Philadelphia; Mrs. M. E. Rogers, Mrs. Jas. D. Wright, N. Y.; H. Laycock and wife, Eau Claire, Wis; Albert Ken Detroit, are guests of The Austin.

J C. Pettepher went to New Smyrna Friday over the new road and states that the road is in good condition except about one and a half miles just beyond Spruce Creek. An auto can be driven the entire distance at a good speed.

Riddell Carnival Company.

This company will open its tents to the public tomorrow night at the corner of Volusia avenue and First street. A testimonial, signed by fourteen representative citizens of Titusville, was shown to the editor of THE NEWS, which reads as follows: "We recommend the Riddell Carnival Company as one of the cleanest and most orderly that ever visited our town. Each and every show is clean, moral and entertaining and worthy of the patronage of the best citizens of any community."

ORIGIN OF WHIST.

The Game Was First Called Triumph and Afterward Trump.

Whist was first called triumph, a name which was afterward corrupted into trump. The eighteenth century saw whist in its primitive form, the whole object of the game being to win tricks by leading high cards or by trumping. Then came the era of Hoyle, which may be said to have lasted from 1750 to 1860 and taught players to think not only of their own hands, but of the other hands also, and to take advantage of the positions of the cards in them. Hoyle also taught that trumps might be more profitably employed than in simple trumping and showed that they might be used to disarm the adversary and to obtain secondary advantage in trick making by other suits of less apparent power. It was not until 1860 that the philosophical era can be said to have begun, and the origin of the new movement was a knot of young men at Cambridge, England, known as the Little Whist school. This body kept records of its games, but no one thought of making the data known until 1861. Coherence in the system of play was still wanting, and this was supplied in 1864 with Dr. Pole's essay on the theory of the modern scientific whist.

THE ART OF EATING.

Food Must Please the Mind as Well as the Palate.

Pawlow has established the physiological importance of the mental state on digestion, having shown, for instance, that delicacies produce secretion of gastric juice as soon as they are perceived by the eye, even before they are eaten.

The food must not only be palatable, but must be served in an attractive manner—fine dishes, table decorations, etc.

In eating we must take time to chew our food thoroughly. This serves a double purpose—first, through the act of mastication the coarser particles of food are broken up; second, more saliva is secreted and is thoroughly mixed with the food. The digestion of starch is thus materially aided, and the proteids are made more easily accessible to the action of the gastric juice.

Water should accompany each meal. It increases the appetite and the enjoyment of food.

After eating we should rest a little while before returning to our work.—Dr. Max Einhorn in Medical Record.

A DIFFICULT PENANCE.

Irish Pilgrims to the Skellig Rocks Risk Their Lives.

Ten miles off the coast of Kerry, in the west of Ireland, lie the Skellig rocks, one of which has been for years the scene of a difficult penance. A zigzag path leads up some 700 feet to a lighthouse, but 700 feet more must be climbed before the summit is reached, where stand the ruins of St. Finian's monastery and a cross of St. Michael.

Here on the anniversary of St. Michael devotees risk their lives in performing their devotions. First they have to squeeze themselves through the Needle's Eye, a tunnel in the rock thirteen feet long, the passing up which is like the ascent of a chimney. Then they creep on all fours up the Stone of Pain, on whose smooth surface one false step is fatal; then, getting astride the Spindle, a rock 1,500 feet above the Atlantic and projecting some ten feet, each pilgrim must "ride a cock horse to St. Michael's cross," say a Paternoster and shuffle back as best he can. —Pearson's Weekly.

Hams.

A mother sent her twelve-year-old daughter to the pork butcher with money to purchase a ham. "Tell Mr. —— that I want a ham exactly like the last two I bought," she said, and when the little lady arrived at the shop she delivered the message thus: "Mr. ——, mamma says she wants another ham off the same hog as the last two she bought." How many of us wish that when we accidently pick up a first rate ham the same hog could keep on producing its like for time and eternity! As the butcher says: "Hams run peculiarly. We may have 'em all fine for a month or two; then they suddenly get tough and dry and hard and altogether disappointing." — New York Press.
