The proper lighting of show windows has been a great problem with most merchants, i. e., lighting them in a way which will display the MERCHANDISE and not his LIGHTING FIXTURES. While the lighting fixtures are absolutely necessary for the proper lighting of the display they should be designed to place the light on the goods and not in the eyes of persons looking in the windows.

National X-Ray reflectors are designed exclusively for window lighting, and the merchant will have no difficulty in selecting one which will correctly and economically illuminate his windows.

PRACTICAL TALKS BY GOVERNMENT FARM EXPERTS

No. 1.—County Roads—New Game Laws — Tick Eradication.

(Official News Summary of Up to Date Matters Compiled by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

ACCORDING to a bulletin just issued by the office of public roads of the United States department of agriculture, county roads paved with vitrified brick are becoming popular in many states, and owing to the general satisfaction which the roads so paved are giving when properly constructed it is probable that the use of brick in road building will continue to increase rapidly.

The principal advantages which roads constructed of vitrified brick possess are:

They are durable under heavy traffic conditions.

They afford easy traction and a good foothold for horses.

They are easily maintained and kept clean.

They present a very pleasing appearance.

On the other hand, the principal disadvantage is the high first cost. The defects which frequently result from lack of uniformity in the quality of the brick or from poor construction are usually to be traced to an effort to reduce the first cost or to a popular feeling that local material should be used even when of inferior quality.

Proper engineering supervision is emphasized by the department in the construction of roads. Many communities in the past have expended large sums in efforts to improve public roads without first having obtained the services of some one competent to plan and direct the work. The results have usually been very unsatisfactory. One of the mistakes most commonly practiced is the constructing of some expensive type of pavement on a road where the quality of the subgrade or the grades are objectionable.

Even in constructing good earth roads it is doubtful economy to dispense with the services of a competent engineer, and if any considerable quantity of work is to be done such services should certainly be secured. Slope brick pavements are probably more expensive to construct than any other type of pavement at present used on county roads it is very important that their construction should be carefully planned and well executed.

Popcorn New Farming Industry.

The department of agriculture has announced an interesting investigation on the value of popcorn as a breakfast food and states that $150 worth of raw material can be made to produce $30 worth of popcorn on a piece of land forty feet long by twenty feet wide.

The department recommends popcorn as a valuable breakfast food—superior to many of the market varieties. A quantity can be grown profitably, and when there is a surplus not wanted for home consumption it can be disposed of to merchants or to consumers direct at a good profit.

Different ways in which popcorn can be prepared, as a food, are suggested by the department, some of which are:

Two teacupfuls of white sugar, half a cupful of corn sirup, two ounces of chocolate and a cupful of water. Put these ingredients into a kettle and cook them until the sirup hardens when put in cold water. Pour over four quarts of crisp, freshly popped corn and stir well to insure the uniform coating of the kernels.

Game Laws For 1912.

The department of agriculture, through the bureau of biological survey, has issued the fourteenth annual summary of the game laws of the United States and Canada.

The bulletin contains, among other things, a brief synopsis of the new game laws enacted in each state and province and a series of tables showing the provisions relating to seasons, export, sale, limits and licenses. The general objects of the bulletin are to present in condensed form the restrictions on hunting which affect the enforcement of the federal statutes regulating interstate commerce in game and the protection of migratory birds, and to show the trend and general condition of legislation from year to year.

Some of the laws enacted in the last [illegible] are found in the bulletin, among them being that Ohio and Pennsylvania now require a license to wear a badge commonly called a hunter's cap, number of [illegible] Manitoba requires hunters to wear a white coat or sweater and cap, and Saskatchewan insists that those who hunt big game must wear a complete outer suit and cap of white. The latter province has recently made the penalty for accidentally shooting a person a fine running from $100 to $1,000 or imprisonment for six months and suspension of further license privileges for ten years.

Connecticut has provided that any hunter, who shall injure a fence or let down a bar without replacing it shall forfeit his hunting license, and the closed season for two years. Connecticut, Pennsylvania and British Columbia require licenses, uniformly upon attaining years of age in each case the [illegible] of parents or guardians. Vermont has a similar restriction for those under fifteen and Oregon does not permit children under fourteen years old to hunt except on the premises of their parents, relatives or guardians.

A MILE MORE OF CHILD LABOR BILL

Williamsport, Pa., [illegible] will the law makers do about it? It seems that the mills will soon have to stop working children at all.

The merchant and farmer who work his child when he gets ready and just as many hours as he wants to, but the cotton mill man has to do with his child as a few other men say.

The majority of the men who make these laws are able to live without working their children in cotton mills or any other place. The poor widow and disabled parents who want to need the support of their children in order to get a decent living are being deprived of the same.

All parents should send their children to school as much as possible but at the same time if a man needs the assistance of his child to meet the emergency of life he should have the right to place him in the cotton mill if he so desires and not do by them as others may do.

There are children in the mills 12 and 14 years old who make any where from 50 cents to $1.25 per day and the hours are only 10 a day. Those doing odd and sweeping and such work as that do not average 8 hours per day. [illegible] the privilege of working in the mills they will be out on the streets learning [illegible]
