NEW-YORK TRIBUNE.

Law Courts.

SUPERIOR COURT.—Decisions.—Mutual Insurance Companies.—The Court gave its decision on the point whether or not the premium notes given to Mutual Insurance Companies, and which, in fact, form their capital stock, are valid against the makers. The Court considered that they are valid and binding against the parties giving them, subject to the 5 per cent interest, (as agreed upon by the Croton Company) in cases where such agreement exists, down to the time the notes passed to the receivers.

The decision was made in the case of Philip Hone and others, receivers of the American Mutual Insurance Company vs. Allen & Paxson, to recover the amount of a note for $2,000, thus given to said Company—but the decision also embraced similar claims for notes made by George C. DeKay, James Whittaker, James Cruikshank and Isa S. Crosby, and given by them to the Croton Insurance Company—the suits being brought by Mr. Broomer, the receiver, also the note of Robert L. Crooke and partner given to the same Company and discounted by Mr. Henry W. T. Mali.

As to the American Insurance Company in which the decision particularly was made, a subscription was opened, by which the parties agreed to give their notes to the amounts set against their names, the amount of premiums to be credited and the residue to be negociable and appropriated to meet the requirements of the Company.—Messrs. Allen & Paxson subscribed $2000, and gave their note to that amount, which was renewed, and is now in suit. The amount intended to be raised by such notes was $200,000, but $250,000 were subscribed—the charter allowing on interest to be paid to the credit thus afforded not exceeding 5 per cent, and the agreement being, after applying for insurance to be considered stockholders.—In order to raised a fund for starting applications were received for insurance which made the amount realized for premiums, $7500.

The Company went into operation in Jan. 1843, and was very successful. At the great fire in July, 1845, however, it lost $350,000, and the whole of its assets, including these notes, was but $230,000, which, on the 30th Nov. of that year, were passed over to the receivers, for pro rata payment of the losses of the Company.

Various grounds were raised in opposition to the payment of the notes, one of which was that no consideration had been given for them—also that although available for negociation and the raising of money while the Company was solvent, they ceased to be so after the Company had failed—that they were mere accommodation notes, not negociated away to third parties, but still in the hands of the Company, and were without effect.

On the various points raised the Court considered that passing the notes to the receivers for the benefit of creditors, whether before or after due, was a negociation—that they formed the capital of the Company, and were so intended, as shown by the monthly and yearly returns of the Companies—that the mutual agreement between the parties forming the Company to give their notes each to the other as common stock was consideration—that the promise of the President of the Company, as stated in one of the cases, to return the notes at the end of the year was of no effect, as he had no right to make such a promise: the notes were intended to be capital; insurance was based upon them; and good faith to the public demands they should be paid. The 5 per cent a year was ample compensation, from all appearance at the time, for the risk taken. In all the cases judgment was given for plaintiff.

COURT OF COMMON PLEAS—Before Judge Ulshoeffer.—Christian A. Schoerzwaelder vs. George Bruce.—Action to recover damages for non-fulfilment of contract in not giving Mr. S. possession of stores 113 Fulton-st. and 24 Ann, according to lease, Mr. Colton, the occupant, claiming prior right, and afterward getting a lease, &c. referred to yesterday. Mr. S. claims, 1st, $100, (which he paid in advance, with interest [it is conceded he has a right to this]—2d, value of storage for furniture made expressly to vend in these stores—3d, loss of profits, the goods being of a better quality than required in Chatham-st. and the best season of sale being in May—4th, damages for having been compelled to employ four or five additional clerks, who had been engaged expressly with a view to those stores. &c.

As it was simply an action for breach of contract, Mr. Gerard, on behalf of Mr. Bruce, contended that special damage could not be shown. M. Blunt, counsel with Mr. Bloomfield for Mr. S. denied that such was the case where the special damage, as now, is set forth in the declaration. The Court decided that evidence could not be gone into showing special damage, or anything beyond a loss that would necessarily flow from not being able to get possession. The Court suggested that a juror might be withdrawn, so as to afford time for the points to be more fully brought up. A juror was consequently withdrawn by plaintiff, and the case for the present rests.

MARINE COURT.—Before Judge Waterbury.—William P. Emery vs John Vanderbilt.—Mr. E. resides at Flemington, N. J. He bought some fine goods of a firm here to be put on board the steamboat Water Witch, commanded by Capt. V. to be sent to Elizabethport, N. J. thence forwarded over the Somerville Railroad. The goods were enclosed in a large bundle, directed to Mr. E. and delivered on board the steamboat, but probably subsequently stolen, as they never came to hand. Mr. E. now sues to recover $76 72, being the value. The defence is that the bundle was passed to the Railroad, and that the steamboat is not liable. Decision this forenoon.—For plaintiff, Mr. Cary. For defendant, Mr. Thorne.
