ASHES are dull, and sales to a limited extent only have been effected at our quotations.

BACON has continued to meet a very active demand, and in the face of large arrivals our currency has not only been well supported, but an advance has been established on superior parcels of Eastern cure, which are much sought after. Western selling briskly at prices ruled by its varied quality. Lightand heavy sides and neck pieces should each be packed separately, and so marked, and not mixed together in one box. We can say but little in favor of shipments of either Shoulders or Rumps.

BEEF—Notwithstanding light imports, our prices have slightly receded, owing to want of confidence on the part of dealers as to the extent of future supplies; should these prove as short as we are led to expect, higher rates must be current—meanwhile holders who are not ready are very firm.

BUTTER is in short supply from all quarters, and a parcel of States' fine sold at 79s to 80s 6d. New Irish is taken on arrival at 64s to 112s, but prices will run down as supplies increase. Grease much inquired for.

CHEESE—Pressure in the money market operating on the manufacturing districts, has prejudiced the value of Cheese, but stocks are now light—we are without any of fine quality, and present prices will be supported.

COTN, &c.—Subsequent to our respects of the 19th ult. want of money prohibiting speculation, coupled with liberal imports and compulsory sales, led our market to touch 36s for Western Canal Flour; a slight improvement in the money market placed us on the 1st inst. at our present quotations, and, with stocks of all kinds of Grain and Flour diminishing daily in the face of large arrivals, it is more than probable that prices must advance considerably, as under the severe monetary pressure experienced subsequently to our last respects, it would have been impossible that they could have stood the test they did, had our accumulated stocks been greater than the waste of the country fully warrant. A fair prospect of restored confidence in the money market, will now probably lead for a time to a decided upward movement, as stocks in the hands of dealers are admittedly small, and Wheat is becoming daily more scarce.

Our quotations are those of the afternoon of Saturday, the 1st, consequent on the small hour on the morning of the 3d being very early, but our advices by letter will very likely exceed our printed currency, should nothing intervene to check the upward tendency of the market.

Pure White Kidney Beans have sold at 60s and upward, Black Eye and Red Eye 56s to 61s per 480 lbs.

The prospects of our Corn Market possessing at the present peculiar interest with our correspondents, we deem it advisable to can other them better information than will be found in the followng extract from the "Mark Lane Express:"

"The very great rise which the price of Wheat has undergone of late appears to have had the effect of bringing forward somewhat increased supplies from the growers at a few of the markets situated west and south of the metropolis; but in the eastern counties the deliveries from the farmers have been on the same limited scale this as the preceding week. Indeed it would seem that the stocks in the hands of producers are reduced into a very narrow compass in all the principal agricultural counties such, at least is now the prevailing opinion; and it is certainly hard to account for the shortness of deliveries in any other manner. The very high value which Wheat bears at present has naturally led to a desire to realize, while at the same time it has induced buyers to act with great caution. There has consequently been less excitement in the trade than at any former period; speculators have kept aloof altogether, and purchasers for actual consumption have shown no inclination to go beyond the mere trade supply from hand to mouth wants. Notwithstanding this contraction of the demand, the quantity brought forward by the farmers has proved inadequate to the requirements of the trade, and prices have, therefore, continued to tend steadily upward. Where the advance is to end, it is difficult to foresee, if it really should prove that the quantity of home-grown Wheat remaining in the country be really so short as is feared. Much will certainly depend on the extent of the habit of looking for supplies, when our own crops turn out defective, are in a worse position than ourselves; indeed the scarcity of breadstuffs may be said to be almost universal over the whole of Europe, and it may well admit of doubt whether the surplus growth of America, great as are her resources, will be found sufficient to make good such extensive wants.

"From the tenor of our continental advices it appears that the scarcity of breadstuffs becomes more and more severely felt, and there can no longer be the slightest doubt that all the Corn which can be obtained from the other side of the Atlantic, will be required on this, before another harvest can be gathered. We learn, however, by the most recent reports from France, that some reaction has taken place in prices after the great excitement of the preceding week. At Paris, on Wednesday, Flour declined 5 francs per sack; and as the article was previously low in comparison with the price of Wheat many of the millers were working short time, which would, it was thought, prevent any farther decline. From Havre we learn that large supplies had been received from America, principally by rail, but though the immediate effect has been to cause a fall in quotations, the demand for the interior had been so active that a speedy clearance of the supply would, it was calculated, take place. At Marseilles very little business appears to have been done during the week ending 17th inst. Large supplies of Wheat had been received there from the Eastern coast, which, with a falling off in the demand, had sufficed to give a downward tendency to prices.

"From the Northern parts of Europe the reports are of a firm character; and at the principal markets in the Baltic, prices of both Wheat and Flour have advanced—those of the latter article materially. We learn from Dantzig, under date of 17th inst. that the supplies have fallen short of the demand, and that prices varying from 63s to 68s per quarter had been paid for moderately good qualities of Wheat; while Rye had commanded equal to 38s per quarter for local consumption."

The prospects of our growing crops are of a highly favorable character, and if fully realized, the ruinous price of breadstuffs will be low before the current year terminates.

HAMS have been in very abundant supply, and have in consequence declined in value. Some serious mistakes have been made by shipments of old rubbish under the name of Smoked Hams.

LARD, as anticipated in our last, has given way, and must be reported dull at our quotations; at the same time we have realised 52s to 53s for a superior quality in barrels, and for a particularly fine article of Boston shipment, in neat white tub, we made the unprecedented price of 74s 6d per cwt.

LINSEED CAKE—Sales limited to retail parcels at our quotations, and lower prices have been accepted for forced sales.

PORK—The bulk of our stock consists of old Prime, which is not wanted, and the value declines. All finer kinds continue to be in active demand, the range of our quotations for Mess being from old to new. Old Mess sells freely.

SEEDS—700 bbls of old Flaxseed sold at 46s per hhd. In Clover, there are buyers, on speculation, at 46s per cwt.

TALLOW—Sales are very limited, but light stocks induce importers to hold very firmly. Yours,

STITT, DAY & CO.

☞ Woodbridge's Improved Patent Bank Lock.—In offering this lock, the subscriber wishes an impartial public to judge of its claims to superiority.

It is of the first importance that a lock should be safe—The great inquiry has been, how is security of lock-picking has rendered locks wholly unsafe which were recently considered perfectly secure, and shows the necessity of a radical change of the principles on which they are constructed. In view of this fact, the subscriber sought for a principle of perfect security, and, fully confident that he had found it, proceeded to make practical use of it.

His first trial was unsuccessful, (as the public have been extensively informed, although in mis-stated terms,) but with undiminished confidence in the original principle, he corrected the mechanical defect which had caused his failure, and resubmitted it to the most rigorous possible test. It was placed on a sale in the Merchant's Exchange, and a reward of FIVE HUNDRED DOLLARS was offered to any person who should pick it or unlock it with the key, with the privilege of previous free examination of the lock, thus giving every advantage the maker of the lock could have, and the offer was extensively advertised. To this test it was publicly exposed for six weeks (ending on Friday last), during which time it was thoroughly examined, and so utterly hopeless was any effort to open it, that no one made the attempt.

The effect of this examination of the lock to be operated on, and the use of its key, is wholly unexampled, and no other lock offered to the public was ever submitted to this test, which alone is fully adequate to determine the complete safety of a lock.

Next in importance is, certainly of operation. The recent cutting of the iron door of a Bank in this City, is evidence in point. The simplicity of its construction, and the manner in which its motions are produced, combine to render the action of this Lock certain.

It contains none of those complications which have been added to other Locks to increase their safety, and is the only Lock in which all the movements are performed by the direct action of the key. No parts is dependent on springs or gravity, for its motion, as is the case with the other Locks now in use.

The simplicity of its construction also contributes to its durability. To demonstrate the durability, a Lock was put in motion by steam power, and was locked and unlocked in a few days, sufficiently for fifty years daily use, and hardly showed any signs of wear or tear at all.

It may be added to this, that to this lock was awarded the first Premium at the last Fair of the American Institute.

The Prices are comparatively moderate, especially when considered in connection with their safety. Each lock is accompanied with two keys. Price of the largest size $200; medium size, $125; for Safes and Stores, from $50 to $100, according to size. Reduced locks are made on the same principle, but with solid keys. M. E. WOODBRIDGE.

☞ A Plain Statement.—Thompson's Compound Syrup of Tar and Wood Naptha.—This medicine, the invention of a man who gave the subjects of Pulmonary, Bronchial and Pectoral Diseases the most rigid examination has now been before the public near four years. During this interval it has performed some of the most remarkable cures on record of Pulmonary Consumption—secured the recommendation and use of physicians in their practice, and the warmest approval of thousands of persons in ordinary and severe colds, coughs, in hoarseness, spitting of blood, &c.

Certificates of its wonderful power have been given in some instances, and sworn to as true, by persons, who, at any time, will give verbal verification of their contents.

But, beware of imitations, and purchase Thompson's Compound Syrup of Tar from none but advertised agents, or of those above the suspicion of dealing in counterfeits.

It is frequently used and highly recommended by some of the most respectable physicians in New-York and Philadelphia.

Prepared only by AUGNEY & DICKSON, N. E. cor. of Fifth and Spruce sts. Philadelphia. Sold wholesale and retail by WYATT & KETCHUM, general Agents, 121 Fulton-st. and at 275 Broadway. a22 3m*is Miscellaneous.

TO HOTEL KEEPERS and others of New-York and vicinity. A gentleman bearing the following description and supposed to be temporarily deranged, left his home about two weeks since and has not since been heard from. Any information respecting him would be gratefully received and rewarded by his family. The following description will be sufficient to identify him. He is about 30 years of age, five feet ten or eleven in height, has a large forehead and rather large nose, dark eyes and hair, wears a full beard, is very quiet in his manner, but timid and suspicious of being watched. He had on at the time of leaving a black suit considerably worn—the coat upended in front, the pants ripped in the seams and torn on one side below the pockets; he wore also a black cravat and shoes, and had with him a dark overcoat with paint upon it. Any one who can give the slightest information of the above will pick it or unlock it with D. C. X. this office, stating where an interview may be had. my19 3t*

DAY'S PATENT HOSE AND LEATHER.—The Patent Hose is perfectly tight—Leather sweats—the Patent Hose requires no grease, is clean as the carpet—Leather is filthy to handle, and requires constant greasing. The Patent Hose cannot be bursted with ten times the pressure of the Croton; is always pliable in winter and summer; it costs but a trifle over half the price of leather, and is much better; and the inventor offers it for sale with the pledge to make every consumer satisfied with its wear. After ten years experimenting, a hose-pipe is produced which is bound to take the place of leather. For sale at 25 Cortland-st, by the manufacturer.

REDFORD CROWN GLASS.—The subscribers having been appointed Agents for the sale of Redford Crown Glass, the manufacture of which has been lately recommenced, desire to call the attention of the public to the Glass.

The REDFORD GLASS is made from white flint sand, obtained in the vicinity of the factory, and is the only Crown Glass made from that species of sand in this country. The superiority of this Glass consists in its brilliant white color—its clear, even surface, and its great thickness, strength and straightness. Its surface always retains its enamel and lustre—is not affected by change of climate, and is entirely free from the objection which applies to plate glass, of becoming easily bedimmed by dust or age.

The SARANAC CROWN GLASS, made at the same works, is of the same strength and thickness as the Redford, and is a desirable article for stores, factories, steamboats and canal boats, railroad cars, green-houses, &c. Orders furnished at short notice.
