FORD DEALERS STAGE A MONSTER PARADE

Unique Method is Adopted To Show Versatility of Fordson Tractor.

Detroit's twenty-three Ford dealers hit upon an unique method of demonstrating in a practical way to Detroit's public the versatility and many city uses of the Fordson tractor by staging a parade Thursday noon.

The parade, which was lead by Miss Mary Percola, a Ford employee, driving a pure white Fordson, pulling a trailer containing the Ford band, started from the Ford Motor Company's plant in Highland Park, and proceeded South the entire length of Woodward Avenue to Jefferson, then to Gratiot, second avenue and Fort Street, and was witnessed by thousands of interested spectators. All along the route the parade presented the aspect of an industrial tractor show on wheels, with the added advantage of displaying the tractor and equipment in actual operation.

One interesting feature of the parade was the fact that Miss Percola, until within an hour or so of the time of starting the parade had never attempted to drive a Fordson tractor, and knew nothing whatever of its mechanism. This was pointed out by Ford dealers as demonstrating the ease with which the Fordson can be handled. And the fact that the pavements were wet from Thursday morning's continuous drizzle, did not hinder the Fordsons in pulling their weighted-down trailers.

Each of the forty-two Fordson tractors making up the parade was equipped with rubber tired wheels, showing their adaptilitity to city uses, and each was equipped with a heavily loaded trailer or other equipment showing a specific use of the tractor in the city. Neatly painted banners announced the tonage of each load or named the operation performed by the equipment.

Although the Fordson weighs less than 3,000 pounds, one of them pulled behind it two trailers carrying a net load of 25,000 pounds of gravel; another hauled two trailers piled high with lumber; and coupled to one Fordson was a10,000 lb load of coal.

There were trailers for hauling garbage, sand, clay, steel and other materials. A novel heavy-duty street sweeper attached to the front of a tractor, was designed to show its usefulness to the City fathers. Snow-plows, road-graders, an electric lighting plant, a winch, a cement-mixer, a land leveler and a wheel scraper are some of the machines which took part in the parade. A banner on one Fordson, equipped with wide, flat wheels, announced the fact that it was adaptable for golf course maintenance.

Several of the outfits used in the parade have been in daily operation for a year or more by local merchants; some operate in manufacturing plants others were purchased by local contractors; two were loaned for the occasion by the City of Highland Park, and one by the village of River Rouge.

Although the Fordson comes from the River Rouge plant equipped for farm duty, the substitution of rubber-treaded wheels converts it into an economical power plant for either traction or belt power. The contractor may haul his various machinery and equipment to the scene of operations with the Fordson-unhitch and start running his concrete mixer, hoist, land leveler and other equipment with the same power.

At the present time the River Rouge plant is operating on a schedule of 200 Fordson tractors a day, which is not sufficient to supply the demand. The recent price cut of the Fordson from $625 to 395 brought in a flood of orders resulting in speeding up of production.
