The Busiest Man in Town

is the one who always wears a frown, is cross and disagreeable, and is short and sharp in his answers. Nine cases out of ten it's not the poor fellow's fault; it's his liver and digestion that makes him feel so miserable; he can't help being so disagreeable. Are you in danger of getting into that condition? Then start at once taking Ballard's Herbine for your liver—the safe, sure and reliable vegetable regulator. Sold by Suwannee Drug Co.

To Preach Masonic Sermon at the Episcopal Church.

Rev. T. W. Cavell, pastor of the Episcopal church at Lake City, has accepted an invitation to deliver a Masonic sermon at the Episcopal church in this city on Sunday, January 31st, at 7 p. m.

Rev. Cavell is a very able minister, and all who can do so should avail themselves of the opportunity to hear him.

Scientific Spanking consists in punishment only when a child is actually bad. Some mothers think that all crying is badness; it's not. When your baby cries, look for pins or some external cause, if you can't find them give the baby White's Cream Vermifuge as the chances are it is suffering from worms which keep it hungry and cross all the time. Pleasant to take—sure in it's action. Price 25 cents. Sold by Suwannee Drug Co.

A WAY THEY HAVE.

What This Live Oak Citizen Says Only Corroborates the Story of Thousands.

The experience related by this representative citizen of Live Oak is similar to hundreds of others in this city. When there are scores of people all anxious to tell about the benefits received from the use of Doan's Kidney Pills, the greatest skeptic in Live Oak must be convinced. Read the following:

Mrs. J. J. Dixon, corner Sixth Street, Live Oak, Fla., says: "It is now some time since I have used Doan's Kidney Pills, but I will never forget what they did for me. I had kidney disease for a number of years and could find nothing that would help me. When I began using Doan's Kidney Pills, procured from the Suwannee Drug Co., I was in a bad condition. They went directly to the seat of my trouble and I noticed relief from the first few doses. When I had finished the contents of this box, all signs of kidney disease had disappeared from my system."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other. 3

NOTICE.

Notice is hereby given that under and by virtue of final decree made by the Hon. B. H. Palmer, Judge of the Third Judicial Circuit of the State of Florida, in and for Suwannee County, in Chancery, at chambers in Lake City, Florida, bearing date January 7th, 1909, in that certain cause wherein Hinde-Stephens Company, a corporation, are complainants, and J. H. Rogers, Fannie B. Rogers and International Harvester Company are defendants, and in which said cause the International Harvester Company are cross bill complainants and J. H. Rogers, Fannie B. Rogers and Hinde-Stephens Company are defendants; and in said decree, I, the undersigned Special Master, was duly appointed as said Special Master and required to execute the final decree made in said cause, I as said Special Master will on the first day of February, 1909, before the court house door in Live Oak, Suwannee County, Florida, during the legal hours of sale, offer for sale and sell to the highest bidder for cash, or so much thereof as necessary to satisfy the amounts decreed to be due Hinde-Stephens Company and the International Harvester Company, as well as the cost of said sale and sale, the following described property, to-wit: South half of Northeast quarter of Section 4, Township 4, Range 12 South and East, lying and being situate in Suwannee County, Florida, and containing in all eighty acres more or less.

Dated this 7th day of January, 1909.

M. E. BROOME, Special Master.

Found a Better Place.

Mark Twain said: Once when I was going out to visit some friends I told George, my negro servant, to lock the house and put the key under a certain stone near the steps. He agreed to do so. It was late at night when I returned. I went to the stone under which the key was supposed to have been hidden. It was gone. I hunted around for about fifteen minutes, but still no key. Finally I went to George's house—he roomed outside—and rapped vigorously upon the door. A black head, which I had no difficulty in recognizing as George's, popped out of an upstairs window.

"Where did you put that key, you black rascal?" I roared.

"Oh, massa," answered George, "I found a better place for it!"

It Ignited.

Little Rollis, four years old, came to the table, where we had tomato soup, of which he is very fond. Being very hungry, he could not wait for it to cool, but hastily ate two or three spoonfuls; then, laying down his spoon, he exclaimed, "My goodness, that soup is so hot it makes sparks all down me."—Delineator.

Why He Was Mad.

Stubb—What's the trouble with the writer's husband? He looks angry enough to chew tacks. Penn—And he is. She dedicated her latest book to him. Stubb—Gracious! I should consider that a compliment. Penn—Not if you knew the title of the book. It is "Wild Animals I Have Met."—Chicago News.

Proved It.

"What started the riot at the performance of 'Hamlet' last night?"

"Why, Hamlet held the skull and said: 'Alas, poor Yorick! You are not the only deadhead in the house.'"

The Missing Part.

Mrs. Boarder—How do you find the chicken soup, Mr. Boarder? Mr. Boarder—I have no difficulty in finding the soup, madam, but I am inclined to think the chicken will prove an alibi.

Talk not of a good life, but let thy good life talk.—Schiller.

An Amateur Conjurer.

During a little pedestrian trip a gentleman came unexpectedly upon a country race course and on one portion of the ground found a thimblerig establishment in full work. Notwithstanding the remonstrance of his companion, the gentleman, who was a bit of a madcap, insisted on watching the game.

"Now, would the gent like to wager a crown he could find the pea?" remarked the expert.

"Yes," was the reply.

The money was on both sides deposited, and the pedestrian, lifting up the thimble, pointed out the required pea and took the stakes.

A second bet, "double or quits," ended, to the surprise of the expert, in the same result.

Then a third wager, "a pound or nothing," steadied the nerves of the loser, and the trick was accomplished with great caution. The gentleman lifted up the thimble and showed the pea, at the same time pocketing the stakes.

"Help me," etc., "I didn't put it there!" exclaimed the bewildered artist.

"No, but I always carry my own pea," rejoined the man who had come out right as he went on his way with the spoils of war.—London Tit-Bits.

In Modern Egypt.

Douglas Sloden's book on Egypt contains some curious anecdotes. For instance: "My doctor was called to see an Egyptian who was in a very low state. 'What is the matter?' he asked. 'I think it is only depression. I have been a fool and lost a law case. I would not backsheesh the other man's lawyer, and he backsheeshed mine.' Later on when another Egyptian told my friend that he had won a law case my friend said, 'I suppose you backsheeshed the other man's lawyer?' The Egyptian gave a beautiful smile and said, 'How did you know?'"

And again: "I was at Luxor when they were recruiting for the army. If a young man was found to be physically fit his relations were plunged in grief. Professional mourners were hired to squat outside the police station where the recruiting took place, yelling and weeping. If, on the other hand, he was rejected as undersized or a weakling or tainted with a loathsome disease, his relations and friends flew to him rejoicing and kissed him and hung on his neck."

"Goes" of Whisky.

Forty "goes" of whisky had been consumed by the licensed victualer, and still he was sober—at least so he told the city coroner. "Goes" is a common term in this connection, but it lacks the full appropriateness to the situation of its Scottish equivalent in the story of another big drink told by Dean Ramsay. It was at a party near Arbroath, held to celebrate the reconciliation of two farmers who had long been enemies. When the party at last broke up, at a morning hour, the penurious lady of the house, who had not been able to sleep a wink for anxiety, called over the stairs to the servant:

"How many bottles of whisky have they used, Betty?"

"I dinna ken, mem," was the answer, "but they've druncken six gang o' water."

To the poor girl, who had to "gang" to the well for the qualifying fluid, these were "goes" indeed.—London Chronicle.

Expert Figuring.

A well known actor tells a story of a ne'er-do-well in a little New England town where he has often spent his summers. "I was walking down the main street one day," said he, "when I saw old Silas grinning from ear to ear. I hardly thought that he was that glad to see me. So after speaking to him I said: 'Why the smile that won't come off, Silas? What has happened to make you so happy this morning?' 'I've been a-gittin' married this mornin',' was the unexpected reply. 'Married! You?' I exclaimed. 'Why, Silas, what on earth have you done that for? You know you can't even support yourself as it is.' 'Waal,' said Silas, 'you see, it's this way: I ken purty near support myself, an' I kind of figured out that she could finish up the job.'"—Argonaut.

A Sensible Person.

An old Scottish lady during her last illness was assiduously attended by a physician, to whom she invariably gave a guinea when he came to see her. He told the friends with whom she lived that her death would probably be very sudden, and one day when she seemed to have become unconscious the doctor was hastily sent for. On his arrival he found that his patient had ceased to exist, and, taking hold of her right hand, which was closed, but not rigid, he calmly extracted from it the customary fee, remarking as he did so to the attendant friends, "Sensible to the last!"

Not Surprised.

Mrs. Gramercy—She must have been surprised when her husband gave her such an expensive present. Mrs. Park—Not surprised, my dear, but suspicious.

Eyes Only For Him.

Martha—You don't mean to say you have accepted that Mr. Spooner? Why, he is so awkward, you know! I saw him holding an umbrella over you the other day, and all the water it caught he allowed to drain right on to you. Nancy—What better proof could I have that he is in love with me? He hadn't the least idea that it was raining, the dear man!—Boston Transcript.
