Among those who registered Wednesday was a man from Missouri, who said he owned a sawmill and he hoped that the claim he would get would have good saw timber on it, so he could move up his mill. He thought that forest reserve meant that the reserve was covered with a forest.

Registration Closes Tomorrow Night

The registration for the land drawing will close tomorrow night, and if the present ratio keeps up until the booths are closed the total will exceed 70,000. Quite a number of those who arrive today and tomorrow will remain until the drawing is made next Tuesday. The drawing will probably be held in the Lloyd opera house and will begin at ten o'clock in the forenoon. It is probable that not more than four hours will be consumed in the drawing, and that by the middle of the afternoon the names and addresses of the lucky holders will be known. About four times as many numbers as there are claims in the reserve will be drawn, thus giving ample leeway for others to take the place of those who draw the lower numbers but fail to locate. Generally in these drawings there are quite a few who do not take advantage of their privilege to enter the land.

The rush of the home seekers this week has been heavier than last week, taking the number day by day. Tuesday the registration was 2791 and Wednesday 2522. There has not been a day since registration began that the number has fallen below 2000.

Last week those registering were principally residents of Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma and Iowa. This week there has been a greater percentage from more distant states. Quite a number come from Ohio, Indiana and Illinois, and Missouri is showing up strong.

There is but little decrease in the number arriving by automobiles. Among those Wednesday was a party of ten from Oklahoma, who carried camping equipment with them. After registering they started for the reserve and will examine all parts of it. They will return here for the drawing. By the time they arrive home they will have traveled over 1500 miles.

The crowds at the booths have been handled even more quickly this week than last, the notaries becoming more experienced and therefore more expeditious. Yesterday morning 375 came in on trains No. 13 and No. 19, and practically all of them returned on train No. 10 at 9:30, only spending two or three hours in town.

C. O. Weingand made a hit yesterday when he took a map, drew circles around certain sections and placed thereon the estimated value of the designated sections. These values run from $4,000 to $15,000. The map was placed in the window, and since then there has been a continuous crowd in front of it, many of the men reproducing the markings on maps for their individual use.

The percentage of women registering this week has been greater than last, evidence that the lure of the land effects females as well as males. One woman who came from Thermopolis, Wyo., stated that she had drawn a claim on the Shoshoni reservation, had proven up on it and felt sure she would get a lucky number in this drawing.

In connection with the registration Minor Hicman conducted a drawing of his own. He offered an $1800 Chalmers car to the holder of a certain ticket among 2000 issued. As those registering passed through the rear of the building, he solicited them to purchase a ticket with the result that at the end of seven days he had disposed of 2000 tickets. This shows that the gambling spirit among the visitors was strong.

Won Their Pardons.

From the time of the story of Damon and Pythias various reasons for temporary release from jail have been given. It is related that in the Napoleonic era a soldier confined in a military prison for a minor offense against the service during a brief time of peace was released in order that he might be present at the christening of his infant son, born during his imprisonment. But Napoleon, in order to test the intensity of the man's desire, made him agree to serve a year longer for the privilege of a three day furlough. The soldier gladly did it and when he returned found a pardon and a corporal's warrant for his infant son, to be valid when the son had "served with credit six months in the emperor's army of the future." Frederick the Great released an audacious captain under sentence of death so that the captain might "tell him a few beneficial things about himself." The things told face to face influenced the great king to pardon the blunt death defying soldier.—New York Sun.

Becher Found Them.

Henry Ward Becher used to visit his old friends once a year for many years, but in the latter part of his life he was not able to do this. In his very last year, however, he was able to spend a day in Indianapolis and went round the place. That evening he was received by the ministers, and the chairman in welcoming him said: "Doubtless you find few of your old friends here in Indianapolis after so many years of absence, but we who are here welcome you just as warmly."

Mr. Beecher in reply said: "Your chairman has said that I have found few of my old friends here in the city. It is true. I found only Mr. —, Mr. — and Mr. — (naming four or five of the old men of the city). "But this afternoon we drove out to Cedar Hill" (the cemetery), "and I found them. They are all there, sleeping just as peacefully as they used to do under my sermons."

Speed of Animals.

According to the naturalists, no animal is known to have exceeded the speed attained by the famous race horse Sysonby. Instantaneous photographs show the full length of one complete stride of about twenty-six feet. In the stride of the fastest racers the hind quarters and limbs are raised considerably higher than the shoulders and from this relatively great height is brought downward and forward, widely separating from each other, as a sportsman says, "to avoid striking the fore legs." The hare which is hunted with fast dogs has not in reality the speed of the dog. The dog, on the other hand, does not attain the speed of the horse. The graffe is said to run at the rate of fifteen yards per second under the most favorable conditions. The elephant, going at a rate of two yards a second, carries a weight approximating that carried by six horses.

Perpetual Silence.

A curious mourning custom obtains among central Australians, who, although representing perhaps the lowest and most degraded type of human beings, have managed to evolve a most complex system of rites and ceremonies which governs almost every action of their lives. When a husband dies the widow paints herself all over with white pigment and for the space of a year must not exhibit herself to a male member of the tribe on pain of death. For the rest of her life, unless she marries again, which is sometimes allowed, she must not speak, but communicate with the other women by means of a sign language, consisting of movements of the hands and fingers, which has been developed by these savages to a marvelous extent and by which their limited stock of ideas can be fully expressed.
