"John Paul" Goes Fishing.

A Pungent History.

John Paul of the New York Tribune took a dinner at Moon's, Saratoga, the other day, and, having been allowed to catch his own fish from the pond, tells the story of his angling thus: It is a nice pond, pebbled and weeded like a natural one, and black bass, varying in weight from one to four pounds, swim round in it contented and happy as clams at high water. Before catching our fish we thought it best to select a fat one, so one of the party went up to Moon's to get something to call them to the top of the water with. He returned with a paper of fried potatoes—the cheapest thing he could get—and we threw them in. A fine young bass came up to inquire the price, but immediately retired below, remarking in a deep bass voice that he couldn't afford anything from Moon's. Spying a big fellow lying in the shade of a plank that is stretched over the water, to tempt visitors to walk out and fall in, and so furnish cheap food for the fish, we determined to drop a line and, if possible, persuade him to join us at dinner. In response he opened and shut his mouth slowly once or twice. His sounds did not get up to us, but we guessed he was asking "Where?" So as the old moon was reflected in the water we pointed at her yellow disk. He bit at our meaning at once—I mean he caught the reflection without further elucidation. And he again began making at us those slow, solemn mouths in which you've seen fishes indulge—vide gold fish in a glass globe or brook trout in an aquarium. Dr. Holland's beautiful lines—where a child is supposed to be lost in abstract contemplation of a prattling parent—came vividly to my mind:

> What is the sardine talking about?
> Very wonderful this, no doubt.

But my manufacturing friends from Meriden, who, among other things, make fish-spoons—I mean "spoons" for trolling, supplying fish with a "plate" which is instrumental in landing them on one eventually—had little trouble in understanding this unspoken and only suggested language. According to their interpretation, our big bass remarked that he had an engagement to sing tenor for the first time at a small fish supper, that evening, and thought it was about time to be taking his place. Besides, he could not think of joining our party if we were going to dine at Moon's. Such invitations had fallen in his way before, but he always steered clear of them; he knew what was expected. As for furnishing the dinner, to that he had no particular objection; and being eaten up was a destiny which he contemplated in a cheerful spirit rather than otherwise, since among other lines, the celebrated ones of Pope—or Pagan, he was not exactly sure which—had met his eye:

> Sure this pleasure is as great,
> In being eaten as to eat.

He thought an Irishman ought to reel off the last line to make the rhyme perfect or even allowable, but would not be betrayed into a criticism which, after all, might be considered finical. But he did object, decidedly object, to furnishing the dinner himself, and then being expected to pay for it besides. He could never bring himself to believe that being devoured was a personal favor for which one should show gratitude to the gulper, and he understood that this was what Moon demanded of his guests. "We'd be all in the same boat, if we dined up there, gentlemen," he said in conclusion: "it would be the last of every mother's son of us;" and waving his tail in gentle adieu he swam away. I did not hear his tale, but I understood its end got at the finale, so to speak. And the nub of it was exactly like that of an editor's letter when, after praising the article you "have honored him by submitting," he tapers gracefully off with, "declined with thanks." We then tried to net the fish, but failed, and had to content ourselves with getting at their weight in gross. Tempting them with "spoons" plated by the rival manufacturers present proved equally ineffectual; they looked at the trade-marks about which so much fuss is made, but declined to be betrayed by either. But why amplify when a word tells it all? The dinner was bad, and fish had place thereat. In the very front of it figured our big bass, just as I thought he would while he was doing all that mouthing. He imagined himself so smart and so frequently expressed an intention not to be caught, that I guessed he'd soon pick up a worm that would trouble him. I've seen such people before.

THE MIRACLE OF GENIUS.—We can never prophesy the exact limits of intellectual power. History warns us against doing so. The genius of Plato was naturally evolved from the capacities of the Pelasgic race. But who in Homer's time could have conceived the possibility of Platonism? It would have been a revelation—strange enough—in the heroic age. Cultivation prepares the way for him, however, and Plato comes, the perfection of Grecian genius and, by a singular law, at the declining moment of Grecian inspiration. It would have been unwarrantable presumption in the time of Copernicus to have denied the possibility of an intellect like Newton's. Every genius is an impossibility till he appears. There are never facts enough in human experience to serve as a basis for safe induction as to the mental capacity of man. We cannot reach the law that governs the development of genius. Two centuries before his time Shakspeare was a poetic miracle; he is a poetic wonder still. From the average powers of boys at ten, it would seem monstrous that there should be heads like those of Zerah Colburn and young Safford. They appear like new planets taking a wider sweep in the universe of mind; and the limits of human nature are carried out.—T. Starr King.

LONG division—A divorce.

The Cotton Crop of 1873.

We are in receipt of advanced sheets of the cotton crop report of the New York Financial Chronicle, for the cotton crop of 1872-73. We learn from it that the total crop this year to September 1, reaches 3,930,508 bales; exports 2,679,986 bales; home consumption, 1,201,127 bales; leaving stock on hand of 90,989 bales at the close of the year. The total receipts at the Atlantic and gulf shipping ports this year have been 3,651,346 bales, against 2,732,286 bales last year. If now we add the shipments from Tennessee and elsewhere direct to manufacturers, we have the following as the crop statement for the two years:

	Year ending Sept. 1. 1873-74.	1872-73.
Receipts at the shipping ports	3,651,346	2,732,286
Add shipments from Tennessee, etc., direct to manufacturers	141,908	122,065
Total	3,793,846	2,854,351
Manufactured south, not included in above	137,062	120,000
Total cotton crop for the year, bales	3,930,508	2,974,351

The result of these figures is a total of 3,950,508 bales as the crop of the United States for the year ending August 31, 1873. The sea island crop this year is, as stated in the report, 26,289 bales, and with the stock at the beginning of the year 351 bales, the total supply has been, bales 26,640.

The stock at the end of the year, September 1, 1873, was	1,667
Making the total distributed	24,973
Of which exported to foreign parts	14,850
Leaving consumed in the United States	10,123

We thus see that our spinners have consumed of sea island cotton this year 10,123 bales.

A further increase is shown this year in the consumption by spinners north and south. With regard to southern consumption, the takings of the mills north and south have been as follows:

Total crop of U. S. as above stated ... bales				3,930,508
Stock on hand at commencement of the year (Sept. 1, 1872): At northern ports	37,997
At southern ports	16,534	54,531
At Providence, etc., Northern interior not left	4,766	59,297
Total supply during year ending Sept. 1, 1873				3,989,526
Of this supply there has been Exported to foreign ports during the year		2,679,986
Sent to Canada by rail direct from mills		2,000
Burnt north and south		1,000
Stock on hand at end of year (Sept. 1, 1873): At northern ports	65,993
At southern ports	25,196	90,989
At Providence, etc., Northern interior not left		10,750	2,788,625
Total taken by spinners in the U. S. year ending Sept. 1, 1873				1,201,127
Taken by spinners in southern states included in above total				137,062
				1,063,065

The foregoing statement indicates that the mills north and south have taken from this crop 1,201,127 bales. If we now apply to these figures, and also to the figures of the previous three years, the statement of increase and decrease of stock believed to be held by the mills, we have the following as the actual consumption of the mills for the four years:

	1869-70.	70-71.	71-72.	72-73.
Taken by mills North, exclusive of Providence, etc.	806,869	1,008,956	977,540	1,063,065
Taken by mills South, etc.	80,000	91,276	120,000	137,062
Total taken by spinners	886,869	1,000,156	1,097,540	1,201,127
Added to mill stock during year			90,750
Reduction of mill stock during year	33,596			40,000
Total consumption	920,736	1,019,446	1,187,540	1,201,127

These totals show an increase in actual consumption this year of 63,587 bales. If, however, the stocks held by northern spinners are smaller than indicated above, their consumption has been somewhat larger.

The total gross weight of the crop reaches 1,824,920,023 pounds, and the average weight of bales 464 pounds.—Nashville Banner.

The Value of Work.

"What is your secret of success?" asked a lady of Turner, the distinguished painter. He replied, "I have no secret, madam, but hard work." Says Dr. Arnold, "The difference between one boy and another is not so much in talent as in energy." "Nothing," says Reynolds, "is denied well-directed labor, and nothing is to be attained without it." "Excellence in any department," says Johnson, "can now be attained only by the labor of a lifetime; it is not to be purchased at a lesser price." "There is but one method," says Sydney Smith, "and that is hard labor, and a man who will not pay that price for distinction, had better at once dedicate himself to the pursuit of the fox." "Step by step," reads the French proverb, "one goes very far." "Nothing," says Mirabeau, "is impossible to the man who can will. 'Is that necessary?' 'That shall be.' This is the only law of success." "Have you ever entered a cottage, ever traveled in a coach, ever talked with a peasant in the field, or loitered with a mechanic at the loom," says Sir Edward Bulwer Lytton, "and not found that each of those men had a talent you had not, knew something that you knew not?" The most useless creature that ever yawned at a club, or counted the vermin on his rags under the suns of Calabria, has no excuse for want of intellect. What men want is not talent, it is propose; in other words, not the power to achieve, but the will to labor. I am no believer in genius, but I believe that labor, judiciously and continually applied, becomes genius.

Th owing Money Away.

How is it, with the "Hotel Albums," "Stranger's Guides," and such like volumes introduced to the merchant by the supple young solicitor, as "the greatest medium of the age or the grandest advertising scheme ever projected." It is true that the merchant is promised "circulation of from five to ten thousand and a copy gratis to every hotel." But is the promise kept? are one thousand copies printed? five hundred, one hundred? The advertiser has no means of knowing. It is too often the case that such schemes are advertising traps which the merchant enters blindly. In the newspaper every facility is offered him in ascertaining the strength and the probable value of his investment, while at the same time, the newspaper must send its issue to its various subscribers who pay for it and are bound to read it. But supposing the volumes referred to are to be found in all the hotels; who reads them? You see hundreds of people in hotel parlors with their newspaper, but how many look over the old, dilapidated margin-scribbled "Guide to Strangers?" The moment such a work is published it becomes old. The matter and the pictures are already obsolete before the last advertiser pays in. Have these the influence of the family newspaper, chiefest of household gods? Probably not. The "Hotel Album," if its publisher's promises are kept, is sent to divers hotels. Suppose for a moment that strangers read them, of what advantage is it as compared with the paper which strikes the very heart-center of those from whom the merchant expects his trade? And, last of all, the "Album" gives him but one insertion. One insertion for perhaps a hundred dollars. The same amount would make the merchant's name a household word in the community from which he draws his best custom; custom that he can look after among people he knows something about. The question then arises, "Why do merchants waste money in this kind of advertising?" Perhaps the merchants could best tell us, if they would.—Newspaper Reporter.

BROWN SUGAR DIRT.—But it surprised us to see your correspondent's recommendation to use brown sugar in the preparation of food. I queried whether she had ever seen the process of the manufacture and refining of sugar. Does she know that brown sugar means, simply and solely, moist and dirty sugar? Does she comprehend the quality and nature of the dirt which constitutes its brownness? Does she know that pure loaf, crushed or granulated sugar is not only perfectly free from dirt and is incapable of adulteration, but is much cheaper, pound by pound, even at the slight additional price usually charged for it, than brown sugar of any grade, because you buy no dirt or moisture, but pure saccharine matter? Does she know that the notion that brown sugars are sweeter than white is a pure fancy, and that the contrary is true? I suppose we are each and all destined to eat our peck of dirt sooner or late, but there is dirt—and dirt—and save us from the dirt that makes brown sugar brown.—Cor. Herald of Health.

NARROW-GAUGE passenger cars, as generally constructed, stand thirteen inches nearer the rail and have about fifteen inches less overhang at the side; hence the center of gravity is considerably lower than on the standard gauge, making the car ride very steadily, and with less oscillating motion than is usually observable upon the wide gauge. The seats, thirty-six to a car, are arranged double on one side and single on the other, with the order reversed midway of the car, to distribute the weight equally.

Strongest Proof of Intrinsic Merit.

DEAR SIRS—I ought to have acknowledged long ago the box of Pain Killer you had the goodness to send us last year. Its coming was most providential. I believe hundreds of lives were saved, under God, by it. The cholera appeared here soon after we received it. We resorted absolute to the Pain Killer, using as directed for cholera. A list was kept of all to whom the Pain Killer was given, and our native assistant assured me that eight out of every ten to whom it was prescribed, recovered. It has, too, been very useful in various other diseases. It has proved an incalculable blessing to multitudes of poor people throughout all this region. Our native preachers are never willing to go out on their excursions without a supply of the Pain Killer. It gives them favor in the eyes of the people, and access to families and localities by whom otherwise they would be very indifferently received.

Believe me, dear sirs, gratefully and faithfully yours,

A RUSSIAN EDITOR.—Russia has as yet produced but one great journalist, M. Katoff, editor and proprietor of the Moscow Gazette, which has a daily circulation of 80,000 copies. He is still a comparatively young man, and his editorial sanctum is sumptuously fitted up, after the best American establishments. There is a library of ten thousand volumes, speaking tubes to every part of the building, a telegraph office, and also a genuine Russian peculiarity, a room for the offices of police, to whom all articles are submitted previous to publication. The presses are of the largest kind, made in New York. At first he was disgusted with his own editorials, but his young wife urged him to perseverere, which he did to gratify her, sometimes rewriting his articles half a dozen times. Ten years ago he was a very poor man. Now he is a millionaire, and the imperial government at St. Petersburg respects and fears him.

AN Indian lady of an original turn of mind bases her application for a divorce on the circumstance that her husband's legs are too long for her to keep step with him when they take a walk together.

CAN IT BE TRUE?—Within the last few months a considerable number of persons have called upon Dr. Walker, the proprietor of the popular medicine known as Vinegar Bitters, and assured him that, in their belief, his preparation is an infallible antidote for rum and tobacco. The minute details which have been furnished him forbid him to doubt the accuracy of the statements. This new claim of a great remedy to the confidence of the public will give a vast and well-deserved impulse to its popularity. Heretofore the Bitters have been recognized as a pure vegetable tonic and corrective, devoid of alcohol, and thoroughly adapted to the cure of stomach and bowel complaints, nervous disorders, bilious affections, muscular diseases, and, indeed, a majority of the ailments within the reach of medicine; but if it will also cure the cravings for liquor and tobacco, philosophers, statesmen and theologians ought to unite their voices in its praise. Can the good news be true? It is easy to test the question.

WE see that PROCTER & GAMBLE'S EXTRA OLIVE SOAP is becoming very popular in our city, its quality we know is superior, and being nicely perfumed we are not surprised that consumers prefer it, and that it has a large sale.

THE most astonishing cure of chronic diarrhœa we ever heard of is that of Wm. Clark, Frankfort mills, Waldo county, Maine: the facts are attested by Ezra Treat, Upton Treat and M. A. Merrill, either of whom might be addressed for particulars. Mr. Clark was cured by Johnson's Anodyne Liniment.

PEERLESS CLOTHES WRINGER

Half Alive.

It is a sad thing to pass through life only half alive. Yet there are thousands whose habitual condition is one of languor and debility. They complain of no specific disease; they suffer no positive pain, but they have no relish for anything which affords mental or sensuous pleasure to their more robust and energetic fellow beings.

In nine cases out of ten this state of lassitude and languor arises from a morbid stomach. Indigestion starves the energy of both mind and body. When the waste of nature is not supplied by a due and regular assimilation of the food, every organ is starved, every function interrupted.

Now, what does common sense suggest under the circumstances of depression? The system needs rousing and strengthening; not merely for an hour or two, to sink afterwards into a more pitiable condition than ever, as it assuredly would do if an ordinary alcoholic stimulant were resorted to, but radically and permanently.

How is this desirable object to be accomplished? The answer to this question, founded on the unvarying experience of a quarter of a century, is easily given. Infuse new vigor into the digestive organs, by a course of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Do not stop short in a short-lasting temporary remedy, but wake the system up by recuperating the fountain-head of physical strength and energy, the great organ upon which all other organs depend for their nurture and support.

By the time that a dozen doses of the great vegetable tonic and invigorant have been taken, the frame of the dyspeptic will begin to feel its genial influence. Appetite will be created, and with it the capacity to digest what it craves. Persevere until the cure is complete, until health, in blood, is to be the material of flesh and muscle and nerve and brain, flows through the channels of circulation, instead of the watery pabulum with which they have heretofore been inadequately nourished.

LIVER PILLS, skin diseases, and affections of the bladder and kidneys are removed by Dr. Jayne's sanative pills. They produce healthy secretions in the stomach, liver, and other organs of the body, and are beneficial whenever an alterative or purgative medicine is required.

CHILLS and fevers can only be cured by a removal of the cause. Shallenberger's Pills do this speedily, and vigorous health is sure to follow.

VINEGAR BITTERS

VEGETABLE — FREE FROM ALCOHOL — PURELY — CALIFORNIA — DRAKE — EUREKA — VINEGAR BITTERS

Dr. J. Walker's California Vinegar Bitters are a purely Vegetable preparation, made chiefly from the native herbs found on the lower ranges of the Sierra Nevada mountains of California, the medicinal properties of which are extracted therefrom without the use of Alcohol. The question is almost daily asked, "What is the cause of the unparalleled success of VINEGAR BITTERS?" Our answer is, that they remove the cause of disease, and the patient recovers his health. They are the great blood purifier and life-giving principle, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system. Never before in the history of the world has a medicine been compounded possessing the remarkable qualities of VINEGAR BITTERS in healing the sick of every disease to which flesh is heir to. They are a gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Vital Organs, in Bilious Diseases.

The properties of DR. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS are Aperient, Diaphoretic, Carminative, Nutritive, Laxative, Diuretic, Sedative, Counter-Irritant, Sudorific, Alterative, and Anti Bilious.

WICKEDNESS.

Every newspaper that meets the eye contains a record of crime in which the loss of human life figures to a large extent. The knife or pistol of the assassin is scarcely ever idle but claim their victims. The scene in all the walks of life; and yet, if the record of murders or hidden crime, resulting from ignorance or blind stupidity in regard to the laws of health and life, the list of victims would be found far in the ascendency. While in the first instance the murderer robs his victim of life by the fatal bullet or gnashing steel at a single stroke; in the latter the patient dies a lingering death from the effects of drugs and poisons administered to blind ignorance of the laws which govern human life. Dyspepsia, liver and bilious complaints are often declared with pills and purgatives that would kill even a weak man, but thank goodness, people are growing more intelligent in these matters, and hence the wide spread popularity of Dr. Smith's Old Style Bitters, that powerful tonic and invigorator which is a never failing remedy for all complaints, because it removes from the system the cause of the disease, while at the same time it strengthens and purifies. The Sun.

NEW YORK, 1873-4. WEEKLY, SEMI-WEEKLY, AND DAILY.

THE WEEKLY SUN is too widely known to require any extended recommendation; but the reasons which have already given it fifty thousand subscribers, and which will, we hope, give it many thousands more, are briefly as follows:

It is a first-rate newspaper. All the news of the day will be found in it, condensed when unimportant, at full length when of moment, and always presented in a clear, intelligible, and interesting manner.

It is a first-rate family paper, full of entertaining and instructive reading of every kind, but containing nothing that can offend the most delicate and scrupulous taste.

It is a first-rate story paper. The best tales and romances of current literature are carefully selected and legibly printed in its pages.

It is a first-rate agricultural paper. The most fresh and instructive articles on agricultural topics regularly appear in this department.

It is an independent political paper, belonging to no party, and wearing no collar. It fights for principle, and for the election of the best men to office. It especially devotes its energies to the exposure of the great corruptions that now weaken and disgrace our country, and threaten to undermine republican institutions altogether. It has no fear of knaves, and asks no favors from their supporters.

It reports the fashions for the ladies, and the markets for the men, especially the cattle markets, to which it pays particular attention.

Finally, it is the cheapest paper published. One dollar a year will secure it for any subscriber. It is not necessary to get up a club in order to have THE WEEKLY SUN at this rate. Any one who sends a single dollar will get the paper for a year.
