NEW-YORK TRIBUNE.

THE LIGHT IN THE WINDOW.

BY CHARLES MACKAY, LL.D

Late or early home returning,
In the starlight or the rain,
I beheld that lonely candle
Shining from his window-pane
Ever o'er his tattered curtain
Nightly looking, I could scan,
Aye inditing,
Writing—writing,
The pale figure of a man;
Still discern behind him fall
The same shadow on the wall.
Far beyond the murky midnight,
By dim burning of his oil,
Filling aye his rapid leaflets,
I have watched him at his toil;
Watched his broad and sunny forehead,
Watched his white industrious hand,
Ever passing
And repassing;
Watched, and strove to understand
What impelled it—gold or fame—
Bread, or bubble of a name.
Oft I've asked, debating vainly
In the silence of my mind,
What the services he rendered
To his country or his kind;
Whether tones of ancient music,
Or the sound of modern gong
Wisdom holy,
Humors lowly,
Sermon, essay, novel, song,
Or philosophy sublime,
Filled the measure of his time.
Of the mighty world at London,
He was portion unto me,
Portion of my life's experience
Fused into my memory.
Twilight saw him at his follos.
Morning saw his fingers run
Laboring ever,
Wearying never
Of the task he had begun;
Placid and content he seemed,
Like a man that toiled and dreamed
No one sought him, no one knew him
Undistinguished was his name
Never had his praise been uttered
By the oracles of fame.
Scanty fare and decent raiment
Humble lodging, and a fire—
These he sought for,
These he wrought for,
And he gained his meek desire
Teaching men by written word—
Clinging to a hope deferred
So he lived. At last I missed him
Still might evening twilight fall,
But no taper lit his lattice—
Lay no shadow on his wall.
In the winter of his seasons,
In the midnight of his day
Mid his writing,
And inditing,
Death had beckoned him away—
Ere the sentence he had planned
Found completion at his hand.
But this man, so old and nameless
Left behind him projects large,
Schemes of progress undeveloped
Worthy of a nation's charge;
Noble fancies uncompleted,
Germs of beauty immatured,
Only needing
Kindly feeding
To have flourished and endured
Meet reward in golden store
To have lived forever more.
Who shall tell what schemes majestic
Perish in the active brain?
What humanity is robbed of,
Ne'er to be restored again?
What we lose, because we honor
Overmuch the mighty dead,
And dispirit
Living merit,
Heaping scorn upon its head?
Or perchance, when kinder grown,
Leaving it to die—alone!

The Late Storm—Marine Disasters and Further Loss of Life.

From the Boston Traveller, 22d

The steam tug R. B. Forbes, which went below yesterday, offered assistance to two British brigs, the Anglo-American and Exile, which were ashore, the former near Lovell's Island, and the latter at the Outer Brewster. They both declined, as they expected to get off at high tide without damage. The British schooner Olive Oliver, which was wrecked near Point Alderton on Monday, was boarded by Captain Tower, at Lowester. No one was on board, her decks were swept, bulwarks gone, boat broken, and hull full of water. She was laden with plaster. All hands undoubtedly perished.... The Olive put into Portland on Sunday, where her two passengers left her. Captain Oliver soon after sailed again for this city. It is supposed that she had had five or six persons on board.... The outer Marine Telegraph station reports that three bodies from the wreck of the British schr. Olive have been picked up on Long Beach, Nantasket.

Schr. Welcome Return, Capt. Hewitt, off and from Prince Edward's Island for Boston, went ashore at Rocky Hill, off Plymouth, on the evening of the 20th inst. and immediately went to pieces. The crew were all saved. A woman who was on board, with six children, succeeded in reaching the shore with her infant in her arms, while other five were lost. A correspondent of the Courier says that "their bodies were recovered and placed in the Town Hall, presenting five as beautiful faces as were ever seen in one family.... Capt. Hewitt spoke at 4 P. M. same day, off Gurnet, a brig from Prospect, Me. with loss of foremast and head of main mast, drifting into Barnstable Bay, where she has since arrived.

A letter from Barnstable, dated Nov. 21, received at the Merchants' News Room, states that three vessels drifted out of Bass River on the night of the 20th, and were not in sight on the 21st. But little if any damage had been sustained by the shipping at Hyannis. A boat left Barnstable for the brig (belonging to Prospect) to render assistance.

Wreck of Ship Clara of Portsmouth, with Loss of the Captain.—Ship Clara of Portsmouth, Capt. Penhallow, from Cadiz Oct. 1st, went ashore on Truro Beach, two miles South of Cape Cod Light, on Monday, at 9 A. M. Capt. Penhallow was lost overboard a few minutes previous to her striking. The remainder of the crew were saved. The ship remains tight, high upon the beach, mizen-mast gone. At the latest advices the people of Truro were stripping her. The C. was owned by Messrs. H. P. Patten and T. W. Penhallow, of Portsmouth.... The Clara is bound to Portsmouth with a cargo of salt. She is stated to be partially insured in this city.

The bark Como, Capt. Bogardus, from Boston, Sunday, A. M. for Charleston, with an assorted cargo, anchored in Herring Cove on account of the threatening appearance of the weather. During the gale dragged her anchors, and to prevent going on shore, cut away her mast, when she rode out the gale and was towed into Provincetown, where she now lies at anchor, waiting for the R. B. Forbes.

The Gloucester Telegraph of this morning says: "On Sunday night we were visited by one of the most severe storms that has been experienced for years, and it continued to blow pretty fresh throughout Monday. Some snow fell, but not sufficient to make good sleighing. But little damage was done in this vicinity that we hear of. Several small vessels struck adrift in the harbor, and went ashore on Rocky Neck, but no serious damage was done. Several of our fishing vessels are ashore on George's, and must have had a hard time of it.

Murder in Owego.—We learn from the Owego Advertiser, of the 16th, that a most atrocious murder was committed in that village on the Sunday evening previous, by a mulatto, named James Carl, who without any apparent provocation, stabbed another colored man named John Hughes, killing him instantly. It seems that Carl had insulted a female in the street, who was a friend of Hughes. On reaching home, at Mr. Crane's, she mentioned the fact, and John immediately started off with the intention, as he said, to ascertain who was the offender. He overtook Carl on the sidewalk near Cameron's corner, and as he approached, Carl struck him a blow which sent him into the street. On recovering he again went up to Carl, who then gave him the fatal blow, the blade of the knife or dirk entering his neck and severing the carotid artery, making a very large and deep wound. In five minutes he was a corpse. Several young men collected around the murderer and his victim, one of whom asked Carl if he was the man who did the murder, to whom he answered with an oath that he was, and immediately fled, pursued by only one person, who followed him a short distance and then gave up the chase, permitting him to escape. He was, however, arrested on Tuesday evening, and confined in the Tioga Co. Jail. He gave no reason for the murder, other than he thought Hughes intended to kill him. Hughes had no weapon about his person at the time he met Carl.

Sad Affair at Plymouth.—We learn from the Boston Journal that Mr. Isaac Barnes of Plymouth, came to his death last week under very distressing circumstances. He had been trying to dissuade his son, Samuel D. Barnes, a youth of 18, from a practice to which he was addicted, of gaming in company with younger lads. On Thursday last, after remonstrating with his son, who resisted all his efforts, he took possession of his gun, and was in the act of carrying it up stairs, when the son seized it and jammed it against his father's stomach, causing him to cry out with pain. They were soon separated, but Mr. B. died in great distress on Friday night. He had been afflicted with a severe rupture, and the injuries he received rendered the disease still worse, and probably caused his death. A Coroner's Jury was called to investigate the matter.

Death of a Brave Boy.—We learn from the Portland Argus that Frederick Whitmore, about 13 years of age, a son of Gen. John C. Humphreyes, was drowned in Brunswick on Saturday afternoon. He was skating on a pond with others, when the ice gave way and a lad fell in. While some one went for assistance, young Whitmore remained and assured his companion that he should not be drowned, and lay down on the ice to reach his hand, and save his young friend from sinking until help should come. The lad grasped his hand, and in his struggles, drew in his brave benefactor to sink and die, while he contrived to keep above water, and was rescued.

☞ It is said that Col. Fremont sent to Gen. Kearny, just before his death, a conciliatory message, by the hand of Mrs. Fremont.

The Late Transit of Mercury.—Thursday, the 9th inst. Agreeably to the predictions of astronomers, the sun rose with the planet just entered on its disc, and with only occasional interruptions of thin clouds, remained visible till the time of the end, a few minutes before 11 o'clock A. M.

The duties of the Cincinnati Observatory were not neglected. At the invitation of the Director, Messrs. Walker, Yarnall and Fourtales made such observations of this interesting phenomenon as were suited to the occasion, and recorded in the Journal of the Observatory. It is but three years and a half since the great telescope was erected. The first use made of it was to observe the transit of Mercury on the Palo Alto anniversary of the 8th of May, 1845. The longitude of the Observatory by that transit, has received no correction till the recent comparison of it with the Atlantic Observatory may occur, some two years hence. We learn that tories through the aid of the telegraph. We learn that the longitude obtained by Prof. Mitchell on that occasion, has needed only a change of about a quarter of a minute of time to conform to the most recent result.

It seems somewhat strange, that, in the present perfection of the science of Astronomy, an error of some three minutes should be committed by computers, in assigning the time of the end of the transit. Three minutes, however, is better than half an hour—the ordinary error of such work at the commencement of the century.

Number of Hogs in Ohio.—The State Assessore having completed their Lists, the State Journal furnishes an abstract of the number and value of Hogs in the several Counties of this State. We give the following results:

Hogs returned in 1847			1,757,310
Hogs " 1848			1,810,777
Increase			123,479

The Counties which have the largest number are the following:

Butler	54,095	Preble	42,533
Ross	62,279	Clermont	44,721
Pickaway	54,566	Warren	40,912
Franklin	41,993	Montgomery	40,099
Highland	46,509	Fairfield	40,094

These ten Counties have more than one fourth of the entire number.

The value of Swine has greatly depreciated with the depreciation in value of Salt Provisions. Thus:

Assessed value in 1847	$3,169,106
" " 1848	$2,229,403

There is a depreciation of value in this State, therefore, equal to 95 per cent.

Whether this depreciation will continue must depend on the results of the Provision Market this Winter.

Elopement.—A nice little specimen of an elopement has brought to light, this morning, at the City Hotel. A lady of very genteel appearance, accompanied by a very young gentleman, not more than 16, arrived a few days since from Indianapolis, and took rooms together, passing for brother and sister. The young man went to Louisville for the purpose of procuring money from his uncle residing there. A brother of the lady arrived a day or two afterward, having traced them to this city. He followed the "brother" to Louisville and there had him arrested. The lady is the mother of an interesting family of children. [Cincinnati Dis. 17th

Elopement.—Night before last the startling intelligence broke upon an aristocratic family, on Ninth-st. that Miss Mary, the pride of the household, had so debased herself as to elope with the coachman, a jolly, hearty son of the land where praties are a staple commodity. What a shocking thing truly! The Bishop refused to "tie the knot," but a man with powers proper, in Fulton, was found who rejoiced in the privilege of uniting what no man can now put asunder. The happy pair have not yet been received at the homestead, but we advise the family to brush up their philosophy, and put as smooth a face as possible on what can't be helped. [Cincinnati Times, 17th.

Death of Rev. Dr. Rudd.—The Gospel Messenger, published at Utica, is in mourning for the loss of its Editor, the venerable and Rev. John C. Rudd, D.D., who died in that city on Wednesday last. He was a distinguished and highly-esteemed minister of the the Protestant Episcopal Church, but in consequence of a partial loss of voice, which prevented him from discharging the constant duties of the pulpit, he established the Gospel Messenger some 22 years since, and continued its able and faithful Editor up to the time of his death.

Suit for Damages.—We understand that a suit for damages has been commenced against the Worcester Railroad Company, by the relatives of a female, who was injured by the accident at the Brookline Crossing a year or more ago, in which six persons were killed. The female in question, it is claimed, has since died of the effects of the wounds then received. [Boston Traveller.

Sentence of Death.—We were in the Court-house in Elizabethtown, on Saturday last, when his Honor Judge Lucky passed the sentence of death upon Martin, a free man of color, for the murder of Wilson Mattox, last Spring. He is to hang on the 24 Th ur day in December. [Jonesborough (Ten.) Whig, Nov. 15.

Missing.—Capt. Black, of the brig Anna, of Halifax, N. S. left his vessel on Saturday afternoon, 14th inst. and has not since been seen or heard of by his friends in this city. The owner of the vessel, who is on board, is apprehensive that some serious accident must have happened to him. [Boston Bee, 22d.

☞ The completest pun in the records of literature is produced in the following words, which were inscribed on a tea chest:—Tu doces, which is the second person singular of the verb doceo, to teach and when literally translated, becomes thou teachest.

Law Courts.

United States Commissioner's Office.—Before Commissioner D. Ingersoll.—Capt. Robert M. Carey, of the ship Ann Columbia, was examined on a charge of manslaughter, in relation to the death of Nathaniel Smith, one of the passengers, who while being marshalled to a stanchion on deck, during the gale, was struck by the boom and swept from the deck, and suddenly taken sick in a few minutes and died. Deceased had a wife on board. It appeared that a portion of witnesses had occurred among the passengers, which was considered by the prisoner to be improper, and it was represented to Capt. M. that the deceased was the person who was the cause of it. Capt. M. had ordered all the passengers to get out of their berths and prepare to have the steerage cleaned. Smith refused to get up, and threatened, it was stated in testimony, to stab Comer, one of the ship's police, who tried to get him up. Capt. M. then ordered another police officer, and the deceased was carried on deck, and placed on the quarter-deck, where some coffee and the Captain's cloak were spread the afternoon while the second mate carried the handcuffs, and he was left there; the wind was between 11 and 12 o'clock, and he was seen twice during the night, but not more twice during the night, and at the second mate's request, at 6 o'clock, was informed that the man was in irons and gave the key of the handcuffs; he saw the man standing where he had been placed; in a short time he perceived a squall coming ahead, and was forward to see orders to take in the sail; he then went aft to the ship, and told the Captain of the ship, was then struck aback and immediately the lee main top gallant stem rail broke broke at the end of the top sail yard, carrying away the iron, and came upon deck; I was standing at the time within two feet of deceased, perceived he was dead; he came aft to report it to the Captain, who came out of his head and stated deceased, though I was not aware of it at the time, it being very dark, and deceased making no exclamation. I hurried to my duties in taking care of the ship. In a short time one of the crew came to me and asked me if I knew the man was dead, and I told him I was apprehensive of it. Went aft, and found Captain M. had been apprised of it, and was inquiring for the key of the irons. The irons were taken off and deceased carried into the saloon, where it was ascertained that he was dead. Here the examination closed, Capt. M. being bound to remain in the country or the use of his passengers.

The complaint was made by the officers of the Irish Emigrant Association, some of whom were present. One of them stated the matter, if he supposed the boom had struck deceased, it by no means, and stated that he was in great danger, and he thought that the crowd and the rows of 300 persons who were on board required his attention rather than a single individual.

The wife of deceased was on board. They have one child, but I was left in Ireland. The witness testified that she did not know why her husband was on deck; he did not leave his cot or bed on deck to turn up afterward. It was dark and rainy (after was denied) he crawed could not sit down, for his bed on, and his coat over his shoulders, when standing there was nothing to hold on by; went again to the steerage; in about an hour was informed that my husband had been hurt. Was taken to the chamber of the saloon, and there found him lying dead; deceased was a native of the County of Waterford; he was forty years of age.

On being cross-examined Mr. Carey said that there was great danger of the ship being lost; that a man and a child died during the passage of fever, and that the doctor of the ship is now sick with the fever at the hospital. It was also shown that he was kind to his passengers, assisting them, when sick, away from the cabin and upon from the steerage.

Capt. McC. in his own justification, said he did no more than he thought necessary for the safety and good government of the ship and passengers—and as for the accident, it was not his fault.

The officers of the Ann Columbia testified that they considered it their duty to investigate a case of the kind, which was their sole object in the present proceeding. The Commissioner did not consider the complaint of manslaughter to be made out, and directed that Capt. McC. be discharged, which was done accordingly. The prisoner was defended by Mr. Meredith, U. S. Assistant District Attorney, and others present.

Capt. McC. was given a high character by his employers—he has been for a long time in the Liverpool trade—he has a brother, one Captain of a vessel in the New Orleans trade.

Before Judge Cadwalder.—Jonas Hunter, et al. vs. Thomas Crowell, et al.—To recover freight for granite from Quincy, Mass. reserved on yesterday, the question being whether freight should be reckoned at the rate per ton of 2,240 lbs. when the granite was delivered, as received, but received in the rough, or paid on actual measure in the rough. Testimony was presented to show the custom, which appeared to be somewhat contradictory, and is a question for the Jury.—Verdict this forenoon.

Court of General Sessions.—James Boyle was placed on trial charged with attempting to break into the house of R. W. Boyer. The Jury found him guilty, and the Court sentenced him to imprisonment in the State Prison for a term of 3 years.... Two boys named James Mack and John Spence, were tried and convicted of breaking into the st re at J. Donaghue, West-st. on the night of the 1st of Oct. Wyman was sentenced to the State Prison for 2 years and 6 months, and Andrews for a term of 4 years and 6 months.

Police Court.—Last night, while a man named Thomas Burns, was locked up in the Sixth Ward Station House, three of his fellow prisoners, named Albert White, L. Dunn and Samuel Hamer, contrived to case him of his watch and about $40 in cash. They succeeded in breaking through the partition separating the cells, when Caroline and Mary Ann Martin, were taken into custody yesterday on a charge of stealing, some time since, $40 from Thomas J. Crane of 426 Broadway. Remanded for examination.... Captain May, of the Sixteenth Ward, yesterday arrested a man named Michael Quinn, on a charge of snatching the watch and chain from the person of one James Dunn, containing $20, out of his hand, and running away with it.

Disasters, &c.

The schr. Styrax, (of Surry) Wood, went ashore inside of Portland Light, in the gale, morning of 20th, and will be a total loss, except a few sails and rigging.

The report that whale ship Susan was ashore below New Bedford was incorrect. She dragged her anchors about two miles into the Bay but did not touch bottom.

MEDICINES.

SANDS'S SARSAPARILLA.
IN QUART BOTTLES,

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD, AND FOR THE CURE OF

Scrofula,	Liver Complaints,
Rheumatism,	Bronchitis,
Stubborn Ulcers,	Consumption,
Dyspepsia,	Female Complaints,
Salt Rheum,	Loss of Appetite,
Fever Sores,	Debility, &c. &c.

THE PROPRIETORS have spent much time in bringing this preparation of SARSAPARILLA to its present state of perfection; and the experience of fourteen years has furnished them the most ample opportunity to verify, in every various form, the diseases for which it is recommended, and to adapt it exactly to their relief and cure. Patients who wish a REALLY good Medicine are invited to give it a trial, and satisfy themselves of its superiority, and the invaluable property it possesses of arresting and curing disease. The bottle has been enlarged to hold one QUART, and in its present improved form may safely claim to be the BEST and CHEAPEST medicine of its class. Its progress to the fame it has attained may be traced by a long line of facts and cures, that stand as landmarks and beacons for the invalid, pointing the way to the heaven of health, and what it has already done for the thousands who have used it, it is capable of doing for the millions still suffering and struggling with disease. It purifies, cleanses, and strengthens the fountain springs of life, and infuses new vigor throughout the whole animal frame.

The diseases for which this article is recommended are those in which it is known from personal experience to be adapted; and those apparently removed beyond the sphere of its action have yielded to its influence. The catalogue of complaints might be greatly extended to which the Sarsaparilla is adapted, but experience proves its value, and each succeeding day is adding new trophies to its fame.

REMARKABLE CURE OF BRONCHITIS.

New-York, Feb. 17, 1848.

Messrs. Sands—Having suffered many years with a disease of my throat, affecting the larynx, during which time I was treated by the most distinguished physicians in Europe and the United States, without receiving any permanent benefit, but all the time my general health and strength declining, and the disease making fearful progress, erratic applications were made, and the whole star was thought the efficient for producing a cure; but I am confident the deplorable situation I was in, the larynx being accompanied with phthisis and great difficulty in breathing, would soon have terminated my life, had I not obtained relief through the medium of your valuable Sarsaparilla, must say, gentlemen, when I commenced using the Sarsaparilla I did not place much confidence in it, and had tried so little but surprise you, when you are informed I had tried almost all fully different remedies during the past four years, without any success; but after taking your Sarsaparilla a few weeks, I was obliged at least to yield to evidence. This marvellous specific has not only relieved, but cured me; and I therefore think it my duty, gentlemen, for the benefit of suffering humanity, to give you this attestation of my cure. Yours very truly, CORNELIUS P. FARRY.

Consul General of France in the United States.

Sands's Sarsaparilla—Scarlet Fever disarmed of its Terrors.—This dangerous and alarming affection, which has swept from the stage of time so many both at the innocent age of infancy, and the more vigorous and mature age of manhood, has at length met its bane and antidote, in its own effects upon the human system. NB—Rains reasonable.
