Auto Accident.

John LeMaster tells of a wonderful lucky auto accident which occurred yesterday seven miles west of town, a Hershey man came to town to get John to go home with him to remedy a defective piece of machinery. They were enroute to Hershey and were traveling at a forty mile clip. Ahead of them were two cars each traveling at the rate they were traveling. One of the two cars was a big one and one light, the latter being ahead. The big car attempted to pass the lighter car and in doing so forced it into the ditch with the result that it turned over on its side and slid along for some distance. LeMaster and the Hershey man sped forward to the overturned car, expecting to find someone badly injured, but to their relief found that not one of the five occupants of the car were hurt other than a few scratches. They were, however, unable to extricate themselves but with the assistance of other men who arrived, they were gotten out and the car righted. Other than bent valves, top and radiator, the car was not damaged. The occupants of both cars were tourists.

The Glad Hand.

We are not isolated units in this universe of ours. We are all of us members of a great world community. All of us are so constituted that our welfare and our happiness depend on the maintenance of good will with others.

To a great extent, however, we always have it in our power to determine just what the attitude of others toward us shall be.

We have this power by virtue of the fact that the human mind tends to be swayed in its critical judgments by the character of the emotional moods experienced. People usually think exactly as they feel.

Hence the value of the glad hand. The cordial greeting, the cheery smile, the display of genuine interest—all these help to create pleasurable moods in other persons, and consequently prepossess them in our favor.

Whereas the cold, indifferent approach, the flabby handshake and the languid air arouse feelings of antagonism, if not of suspicion and aversion.

—H. Addington Bruce in Kansas City Star.

Perfect Pitch.

A fairly large number of people are gifted with a good ear for music, and their friends think it quite wonderful that they are able to play or whistle tunes which they have heard only once.

But this gift, however remarkable it may seem, is by no means extraordinarily or exceptional, especially when compared with the possession of what is called an "ear of absolute pitch."

This means that the person possessing it is able to stand away from the piano and tell you what note you are playing or to what key. One well known lady pianist is able to read over the score of a piece of music in the train or omnibus, leave the book behind her and yet play the whole piece through by memory when she reaches home.

Perfect pitch is a gift to some people, but it can be acquired. Indeed, many authorities say that to be a really great musician this power must be possessed.—London Answers.

Now is the Time to Buy a Home of Your Own.

There never has been a time in the last ten years when property could be bought as cheaply and on such easy terms as it can now. There never was a time when all indications pointed to quick increase in value as now, and consequently there never was such an opportune time to buy. I have a large list of city property, both improved and vacant lots. A great many of them can be bought on monthly payments, and all of them on easy terms. Let me show you what I have.

The Bell Organization

The Bell Telephone System is composed of about thirty Associated Companies, such as this Company, and the American Telephone and Telegraph Company.

The American Telephone and Telegraph Company operates many of the long distance lines connecting the various Associated Companies, and works out the big engineering, scientific and executive problems for the Associated Companies.

The Telephone Relationship

Each local Bell Company has its own officers and employees, and its own local problems, but it constantly operates along the lines of "One Policy, One System and Universal Service," so that telephone practices will be uniform throughout the country.

Skilled engineers, as well as experts in operating, accounting, construction, maintenance, and other departments of the business, are retained by the American Telephone and Telegraph Company to give information and advice to the Associated Companies.
